'Loaded Against Little Man'—B.C. Leaders

Move Mocks 'Just Society;' No B.C. Share

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and T. C. Douglas, seatless federal NDP leader, all agreed today that the federal budget is unfairly stacked against the "little man".

Each said the budget mocked Prime Minister Trudeau's "just society" election campaign slogan.

They also suggested the "social development" label was merely a gimmick to prevent the provinces from sharing the revenue increase and to make up for last year's defeat of Mitchell Sharp's original surtax proposal.

B.C.'s new Liberal Leader Pat McGeer declined comment on the budget but explained it was because of his policy to avoid "useless off-the-cuff comments" on events worthy of serious study first.

Premier Bennett, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, scored the 2 per cent tax on two grounds.

He said Finance Minister Benson "is endeavoring to avoid" sharing any part of the $440 million the tax will produce next year by not identifying it as an increase in the personal and corporation income taxes which are shared under the federal-provincial tax rental agreements.

In B.C.'s case, he said, the provincial government stands to lose a 28-per-cent cut of the tax collected from its citizens.

(No firm estimates are available but the figures suggest some $50 million or more of the new tax revenue will come from B.C. citizens.

(About $14 million of this would be diverted to the province if the tax-rental arrangements applied. That would produce almost a 10-per-cent increase next year — aside from normal growth increment — in the provincial treasury's estimate that $154 million will come to it during the current fiscal year from personal income tax sharing.)

Bennett Soft-Pedals Criticism

But Mr. Bennett soft-pedalled his criticism of the "social development" label because he said the levy was a bad tax anyway by falling heavily only on ordinary Canadians.

"It just hits the poor people and then — with the $120 limit — it cuts off at the higher income levels," he said.

He also criticized the failure of the government to add the tax to corporation incomes "so that the companies don't have to share (the load) with the low income people and workers with families.

"If this is the just society, the people obviously are very quickly going to have enough of the just Liberal policies," the premier said.

Mr. Bennett also dismissed as political propaganda Mr. Benson's appeal to provincial governments to slow-down the cost increases of jointly-shared programs.

(Federal payments to B.C. for shared-cost programs jumped $10 million to an estimate of $115 million for the current fiscal year but this is expected to be exceeded in actual experi-

Sit-Down Removed From Sharp's Office

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons guards began dragging 27 demonstrators, among them two nuns, a minister and two priests, from External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's Parliament Hill office about three hours after they began a sit-in today.

The demonstrators crammed the office unexpectedly, refused a request by Mr. Sharp to go away, and said they planned to stay for three days as a spur for Canadian action at the United Nations to end the Nigerian civil war.

The protesters first were told that if they left the office to go to a washroom they could not return. Then reporters and photographers were ordered from the office by Commons guards, who began hauling the demonstrators off.

It took the guards only a few minutes to clear the minister's office of the protesters.

Most Canadian Businessmen Not Impressed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With few exceptions, business and political leaders across Canada sharply criticized Finance Minister Benson's budget tabled in the House of Commons Tuesday night.

"Not at all impressed," was Alberta Treasurer Anders Aalborg's reaction to the budget.

"It gives no signs of coping with the financial problems of the country," and stepped-up corporate taxes will only increase costs and "in a short time will be reflected in higher prices."

STEUART IS PLEASED

However, Saskatchewan Treasurer D. G. Steuart said he was pleased that the income tax was not hit harder.

He said the decision to tax life insurance companies, hitherto almost exempt from federal taxation, was a "move in the right direction."

Finance Minister Gurney Evans of Manitoba said the increase in personal income tax leaves that much less for the provinces and municipalities.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said the federal government ignored the needs of provinces and municipalities for financial relief.

He also said the budget, preceding the federal-provincial meeting on finances Nov. 4 and 5 in Ottawa, has largely nullified efforts to find new approaches on solving national fiscal problems.

Anti-Inflation Move in Budget

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

OTTAWA (CP)—A new two-per-cent levy on taxable personal income shapes as a key weapon in a tough anti-inflationary bid outlined by Finance Minister Edgar Benson Tuesday night in his first budget speech.

The tax, effective next January 1, carries a maximum limit of $120 a year for any taxpayer.

Mr. Benson forecast a token surplus of $5,000,000 in the next fiscal year starting April 1, but Opposition members promptly attacked the budget as shocking, idiotic and vicious.

Checking Prices, Living Costs

The finance minister stressed the anti-inflationary aspects of his proposed measures.

"In the broad field of economic policy the most urgent need now is to check further the continuing increase in prices and living costs," he said.

"There appears to have been some easing of inflationary pressure in recent months. But there is little evidence that the damaging upward spiral of prices and costs has been effectively broken."

Mr. Benson said: "In spite of its timing I think it will be obvious to all, that this is no 'baby budget'. It is a new budget, by a new government, but it is not an easy budget. It is one which, I believe, will ensure that we have a sound economic and financial base from which to move forward through a new period of balanced expansion and social progress."

The minister again promised that the federal government will tighten its own belt by clamping down still harder on proposed expenditures and continuing the freeze on the size of its staff.

In addition to the two-per-cent personal tax increase in this anti-inflation campaign, he announced plans to have corporations speed payment of their taxes and to collect an estimated $85,000,000 in new revenues from the hitherto little-touched life insurance industry.

In a different vein, he sought to eliminate what he called a deeply felt grievance by exempting from taxation all amounts left to a spouse. He also plans to end taxation of gifts between husband and wife.

In all, the proposed tax changes will add $55,000,000 to government coffers in the current fiscal year ending March 31, but that will soar to $845,000,000 in the following 12 months, Mr. Benson predicted.

Deficit to Total $675 Million

But, despite the higher revenues this year, the expected deficit will total $675,000,000 on spending of $10,780,000,000 against revenues of $10,105,000,000. This compares with the peacetime record deficit of $732,000,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Next year's anticipated small surplus would come from revenues of $11,675,000,000 and expenditures of $11,670,000,000.

News of the deficit forecast this year brought low whistles from opposition benches as the 45-year-old Kingston, Ont., chartered accountant — wearing a yellow rose in his lapel — read through his 11,800-word speech.

Sharpest opposition attacks, however, were reserved for his proposed tax increases.

Conservative Leader Robert L. Stanfield said outside the House they will put a heavy burden on the people, coming on top of the tax surcharge imposed last winter.

Max Saltsman, financial critic for the NDP, said Mr. Benson's bid for a balanced budget next year is almost certain to bring on a recession.

Mr. Benson made it clear in his budget speech and at a later news conference that the changes in estate and gift taxes and the move on life insurance companies are the beginnings of a major tax-reform program.

He told the news conference he hopes to have a thorough program of reform ready by next spring, but he does not anticipate having a rebuilt tax system operating before 1970.

The proposed two-per-cent personal tax increase, dubbed a social development tax, will bring in about $440,000,000 next year — more than half the anticipated additional revenues, Mr. Benson said.

Under the new rate, a married man with two children and earning $5,000 a year will pay 90

Peace Envoys Trade Charges

PARIS (AP) — American and North Vietnamese peace envoys traded charges today of aggression in Vietnam without providing any detectable sign that they might be nearing agreement on terms for halting the bombing of North Vietnam.

There had been speculation that Hanoi might reply in this 27th session of the conference to Washington overtures about ending the aerial attacks.

Ambassadors W. Averell Harriman and Xuan Thuy clashed in the 2½-hour meeting over who is entitled to speak for the South Vietnamese people.

Harriman reaffirmed American backing for the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu while Thuy once again demanded U.S. recognition of, and negotiations with, the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

There was no immediate information to indicate whether the two envoys used their 35-minute tea break for a private exchange on the status of current moves for a bombing halt.

A spokesman for the Hanoi delegation said after the meeting:

"There is nothing new today."

Harriman startled reporters on emerging from the old Majestic Hotel conference and

'FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY TO POINT OF DULLNESS'

By PETER NEWMAN

Newman

OTTAWA — Given the choice of trying to damp down inflation or attempting to combat unemployment, the Trudeau government has opted for a fight against higher prices.

It's a risky enterprise because the budget tabled last night by Finance Minister E. J. Benson clearly documents the fact that Canada's finances are now out of control.

Not since the Second World War when unforeseen defence expenditures turned federal budgeting into a guesswork holding operation, have the national accounts been in such a mess.

Benson's gamble of trying to battle inflation instead of unemployment is based on figures produced by the Economic Council of Canada which show that when unemployment gets down to 3 per cent (the level which economists, though not the unemployed, term as "acceptable") prices rise 5 per cent to 6 per cent. This kind of inflation, according to Benson's theory, would eventually produce far more serious unemployment.

So he intends to run the Canadian economy with an unemployment level of about 5 per cent (near the current rate of 4.8 per cent) and hopes that price increases can be kept down at the 2 per cent to 3 per cent level.

The whole thrust of this budget is to somehow manage the country's economic prosperity without allowing the mild prosperity we have to spiral out of control.

Normally, this would call for a balanced budget, or even a small surplus.

But Ottawa is committed to so many expenditures already that the economy will have to absorb a $675 million deficit this year before the budget (hopefully) moves into a balanced position in 1969-70.

By announcing such a huge deficit in a budget intended to be anti-inflationary, Benson has turned Keynsian economics upside down.

He has returned budget making, at least temporarily, to the old-fashioned idea that governments tax to raise money. (According to the elegant theories of Lord Keynes budgets are meant to be instruments for modifying the boom-bust psychology.) But Benson needs the money for monetary as well as psychological reasons.

The untidy state of our national finances is all the more surprising because the economy is basically healthy.

On Tuesday, just before the budget was tabled, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin announced that Canada was well on the way to its first billion-dollar trade surplus.

But the extravagant spending of the Diefenbaker and Pearson governments, particularly the shared-cost programs with the provinces, have placed the federal treasury in temporary jeopardy. The 4½ per cent error in estimating this year's federal expenditures doesn't inspire much confidence in the finance department's ability to produce the promised surplus next year.

What this budget sets out to prove is that the short-term management of the economy is possible only if the shared-cost federal-provincial programs are brought under strict control.

This will require some adroit manoeuvring from a prime minister who claims to be a constitutional purist.

He cannot direct how the provinces should manage the Ottawa money spent in their jurisdictions.

But there's no doubt at all that the Trudeau government intends to be very tough in its dealings with the premiers. Instead of placing a straight 2 per cent surcharge on personal income taxes, Benson chose to impose a 2 per cent social development tax.

The only difference is that the provinces don't get a share of this new levy, as they would have if it had gone into ordinary revenues.

What the first Benson budget reveals about its author is that he's totally in accord with the Trudeau approach: fiscal responsibility to the point of dullness and government through a strictly applied series of priorities.

There is little likelihood of any major confrontation between this minister of finance and the prime minister.

They even seem to agree about economic nationalism, which was such a big issue when Walter Gordon and Lester Pearson used to spar around Ottawa: neither Benson nor Trudeau believe in it, and there's no mention of any nationalistic legislation anywhere in this budget.

Only slightly less discarded is the Carter Royal Commission on taxation. A few of its measures were included in last night's budget, but its overall philosophy has been jettisoned in favor of the finance department's own attitude to taxation reform.

This is a pity because a fully implemented Carter-style approach might have given us the most advanced taxing system in the world.

Benson's first budget was probably the best that could have been written in the circumstances.

But unless the circumstances are radically altered during the next year, Ottawa could be in really serious trouble.

As it is, the federal treasury now collects roughly $21 millions per working day from Canadian taxpayers, which is almost exactly what it cost to run the government for a whole year at the time of Confederation.

Nobody likes taxes—but ever'body likes what they buy.

'YEAR OF THE CHICKEN' GOOD VIETNAM OMEN

SAIGON (UPI)—Even before the Communist lunar New Year offensive last winter the Vietnamese predicted 1968 would be a typical Year of the Monkey—troublesome.

Now they are starting to sing about 1969.

"It will be an untroubled, a calm year," they said. "It is the Year of the Chicken."

ence and next year an even larger jump is anticipated.)

"Slow down on what?" he demanded.

"It was the Liberals who, after the war kept their hands on provincial revenues (through the tax-rental agreements) just so they could go across the country and make good on their political promises to put in these programs for hospital insurance and medicare and the other things.

"And now they want the provinces to cut back on them? What kind of just society is that?"

Mr. Douglas accused the federal government of imposing the 2-per-cent new tax merely to get back the ground it lost in last winter's 5-per-cent surtax fiasco when an emergency boost was defeated on the floor of the Commons.

In the ensuing crisis, the government was able to get a compromise 3-per-cent surtax through Parliament.

"What Mr. Benson has done now is merely impose the remaining 2 per cent surtax which had been defeated," Mr. Douglas told The Times in a telephone interview from Nanaimo.

"But this time it is not being levied on corporations too — just on wage earners."

He said that compounded the "inequity of adding a 2 per cent income tax increase on what already is an unfair tax structure as demonstrated by the Carter Commission report.

"No attempt has been made in this 'just society' budget to rectify these inequities — to make the freeloaders with special tax concessions assume their fair share of the load.

"Instead of rectifying, he's increased the inequity imposed on the salary and wage earners while the exemptions enjoyed by the free-loaders — mining companies, banks and oil companies and others — actually total more than the deficit he's trying to eliminate."

Mr. Douglas said angry as he was over the treatment to ordinary Canadians, his main criticism of the budget still rested on philosophical failure.

"My main criticism is that this budget does not appear to have any purpose or direction," he said.

"It's merely a housekeeping budget to patch up a deficit. It is not being used as we conceive a budget — an instrument of economic policy which, together with monetary policy, can be used to improve society's conditions.

'Must Balance Economy First'

"Surely the primary purpose of a budget is to balance the economy, to provide full employment, bring maximum production and a more equitable purchasing power.

"In the long-term view, the purpose of any budget must be to balance the economy — and then the budget will balance by itself."

Dr. Douglas said he was not impressed by Mr. Benson's promise to reform the tax structure by 1970 "because they've been saying that for the past two years and have done nothing yet."

In Nanaimo, Mr. Strachan said the budget "is not a very promising one for the people of Canada.

"Mr. Benson is still not facing up to the radical revisions necessary to improve the entire tax structure," Mr. Strachan said.

"Canadians would have been better served if Mr. Benson had imposed a capital gains tax rather than the new two-per-cent social development tax," he added.

Mr. Strachan said he also would have liked to see increased personal income exemptions for the lower income group and added that the name social development tax was misleading, as he said it was simply an additional tax, not earmarked for any specific programs. The NDP leader said the use of the term, social development was "a public relations effort."

Commenting on Mr. Benson's plea for "vigorous co-operations" by the provinces, Mr. Strachan said he was not hopeful.

"I don't think the co-operation will take place until all the basic weaknesses are attacked, including exemptions, amounts taxes and allocations of revenue as between the federal and provincial governments."

Mr. Strachan said he recognized there were attempts to "catch those who have gone too far" on depletion allowances for gas, oil and mines, but again he felt greater change was necessary.

"To simply try a harder implementation of existing legislation is not a very progressive step," he said.

Asked if he felt the farmers had scored a gain with an allowance for faster tax depreciation for on-farm grain storage facilities, the NDP leader was amused.

"It won't solve the agricultural problem, still I suppose in this budget we have to be grateful for small mercies."

Charge Quashed

The British Columbia Appeal Court has quashed the conviction of a Victoria man on a charge of escaping from lawful custody.

Henry Klat, 22, of 1615 Belmont was convicted in Victoria police court of escaping from the custody of Constable Dennis Lush outside the White Spot restaurant on June 17, 1967.

Constable Lush said he arrested Klat for being intoxicated in a public place. In police court the charge of intoxication was dismissed, but Klat was found guilty of escaping.

Dermod Owen-Flood appealed the conviction on the ground that, because Klat was found not guilty of intoxication, he was not under lawful arrest at the time.

The appeal court allowed the appeal and acquitted Klat.

cents a week extra. If his salary were $10,000, he would pay the maximum increase — $2.30 a week.

Despite the ending of taxation of estates left by husbands or wives to their surviving spouses, no loss of federal revenue is expected since estate taxes on inheritances to other people will be about doubled.

In other reforms of the estate tax, the finance minister proposed a $10,000 exemption for every mature offspring, with a bigger exemption for younger and wholly-disabled children.

A general exemption of $20,000 was suggested for any estate.

In addition to freeing gifts between husband and wife from taxation, the government proposes to set up a new sliding scale of tax rates on other gifts, more closely in line with normal income tax rates.

Insurance Firms Must Pay

Life insurance companies, which paid less than $3,000,000 in taxes in 1967, should be taxed generally the same as any other industry, Mr. Benson said.

He proposed a 15-per-cent tax on life insurance companies' investment income, and also taxing income received by a policyholder who sells or cashes in a policy. This income would be considered the difference between the cost of the policy and the return to the holder. It would not apply to a beneficiary, who would face only the normal estate tax charges.

The move to bring life insurance companies into the pale of corporation taxes was one of the major recommendations of the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation made public in early 1967.

The recommended speed-up of corporation tax payments means in effect that companies will pay 12 months' tax in 10 months.

They now pay their tax in monthly instalments, starting in the third month of their fiscal year. Under the new system, they would complete their payments by the end of the fiscal year instead of carrying them over into the third month of their next fiscal year.

Mr. Benson said this faster payment will add $320,000,000 to federal revenues next year, although it does not represent any increase in taxation.

He admitted it will reduce the cash assets that companies have on hand to invest, but said this reduced liquidity would be countered in large part by repayments made under the refundable corporation tax instituted two years ago.

Tax-Free Reserves Reduced

In another move on business axes, the finance minister proposed cutting by half the amount that banks and mortgage loan companies could move tax-free into reserves.

These companies now can exempt up to three per cent of the base on which these reserves are calculated. Mr. Benson said 1½ per cent is enough to be tax-free.

He also called for tighter controls on depletion allowances granted mining and petroleum companies, suggesting that some large companies have been able to take advantage of a loophole to escape paying all the taxes they should.

In some other moves, he proposed:

—Allowing farmers to write off more quickly the costs of new grain-storage facilities put on their property from Aug. 1, 1968, to Dec. 31, 1969.

—Withdrawing tax exemptions now given provincial Crown companies where individuals or companies have options to buy shares in the corporations from the province.

(It will directly effect a Newfoundland plan to build an oil refinery, to be optioned to U.S. oil interests).

—Allowing as a medical expense the cost of an artificial kidney machine or oxygen equipment.

—Not permitting a taxpayer to claim as a medical expense any bills paid under an approved federal-provincial medical care insurance plan.

Mr. Benson warned taxpayers that the growing use of computers will make it tougher for them to avoid taxes which might have been overlooked in the past.

Checking by computer will make it possible to trace interest and dividend payments as small as $20, he said.

He reintroduced tariff cuts Canada agreed to during the Kennedy Round of trade negotiations, named after the late U.S. president. The cuts were presented to the last Parliament, but died when it was dissolved April 23 for the June federal election.

Mr. Benson said the government now is faced with the financial situation where it cannot afford programs it would like to introduce and also foot the bill for programs already on the books without raising taxes.

Attempts to increase taxes in time to reduce this year's forecast deficit would be crippling to the economy.

With the introducing of medicare plans in a number of provinces, taxpayers will no longer have to pay certain medical costs which formerly were classified as medical expenses for tax purposes.

Mr. Benson proposed to follow the pattern set in 1959 when hospital insurance was introduced and amend the income tax act to provide that medical expenses, as defined in the act, shall not include amounts which are paid on a taxpayer's behalf, or for which he is reimbursed, under a provincial medical care insurance plan which meets the criteria set out in the medical care act.

Quebec Moves To Attract Immigrants

QUEBEC (CP) — The third session of the 28th legislature resumed Tuesday with introduction of a bill to establish a provincial immigration department.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand noted in introducing the immigration bill that the majority of Quebecers are French-speaking and said the new department will attract immigrants "better adapted to the French culture."

Asked in an interview later if this meant newcomers to the province would be obliged to send their children to French-language schools, Mr. Bertrand replied:

"Once they come to Canada or Quebec they enjoy the same rights as other citizens. They will enjoy the same rights as those who speak English and those who speak French."

The immigration bill provides for co-operation between the projected department and the education department in the realm of education of immigrants.

MAKE COURSES AVAILABLE

The two departments would "see that courses in technical and vocational adaptation and special teaching programs are made available."

The bill says the department would also "promote the working out of standards for the recognition in the province of diplomas, studies and training received or pursued abroad."

Mr. Bertrand noted that the Quebec government has reached agreement with the federal government, with whom it shares immigration responsibilities, to place Quebec immigration officers in federal office abroad.

The bill would also empower the immigration department to obtain data on needs of the labor market, conduct studies on the possibility of attracting people to Quebec and to establish an immigration aid service.

Nixon Moves to Attack To Counter HH Gains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richard M. Nixon accused Democratic opponent Hubert H. Humphrey of loose talk and position-switching today and said Humphrey as president would create a "great risk of miscalculation on the part of our adversaries."

Humphrey, meanwhile, was being hailed as a political miracle worker for uniting at-odds Texas Democrats behind him. He heads for California later today to try to repeat the feat.

And third-party candidate George C. Wallace—hit by an apple core thrown along with eggs and tomatoes Tuesday—said leaders of both major parties have "kowtowed to anarchists" and ignored average citizens.

Nixon said today the present Democratic administration has not been able to keep the peace, has not kept up military strength or American prestige "and now it cannot restore peace."

"To this dismal record, my opponent brings the fastest, loosest tongue in the nation and the fastest switch of positions ever seen in American politics," Nixon said in a statement.

"Mr. Humphrey has shown a constitutional inability to treat the Vietnam war and the Paris negotiations discreetly or, for that matter, understandably, ever since this campaign began."

An aide said Nixon's statement that the present administration cannot restore peace was based on what has transpired on the public record and did not reflect any secret information about current peace efforts.

Humphrey has won a strong show of unity in Texas and now faces California where a sizable number of Democrats were won to Senator Eugene J. McCarthy's peace stand and are reported withholding support for Humphrey at the moment.

Texas Gov. John Connally and his longtime political adversary, Senator Ralph Yarborough, stood side by side with Humphrey at stops in Texas, political differences seemingly put aside.

"We have never in 24 years had as united a party in Texas as we have now," Yarborough said in Fort Worth.

Wallace reacted good-naturedly to heckling in Oshkosh, Wis., Tuesday, even when he was struck on the shoulder by an apple core.

"That's all right," said Wallace as the candidate's car was surrounded by shoving, howling students who managed to push it into another car ahead.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

One of the most intense storms of the year now lies north of the weather ship and will continue moving slowly northward. A disturbance which has moved out of the low centre will cross the coast through the day.

Cloud now covers the entire province and rain has reached the western sections of the interior. Gale force winds are occurring in all coast water and speeds have reached as high as 60 to 80 along the outer coast.

Clouds and showers are expected to persist behind the disturbance on Thursday. Temperatures will be a few degrees higher in most regions.

The Pinch

THE WORD FROM ALL PARTS of Canada has been that the federal government must cut its spending, increase its tax revenue, and try to balance its budget. Now Finance Minister Benson has started to do just those things, and the opposition protests are loud. That is to be expected, for while everyone wants to curb the seriously eroding effects of inflation, most want the curb to be at the expense of someone else.

This sentiment the opposition leaders have been quick to capitalize on. The NDP speakers, supporting a party which has always urged more and more government spending on welfare programs, twist in every direction to avoid facing up to the fact, as Mr. Benson has, that if the country is to spend money on expensive humanitarian programs, no matter how worthy they may be, then it must pay for them. And that means taxes. Mr. Stanfield, professing the dream that some great new panacea would have been announced, is dismayed to find that "the same old direction" will be followed, putting a "substantial burden on the people of Canada"—as though there were any other way in which we could pay for the benefits we demand.

Mr. Benson in his budget has had two chief objectives in mind: through an increased tax on spending power to curb inflation — the economy's greatest hazard; and by the same means to provide more revenue for the government to pay for its programs. His philosophy closely parallels the principles set out here last week by Mr. Louis Rasminsky, Governor of the Bank of Canada. It constitutes a refutation of Socialism's pie-in-the-sky at no cost, and Mr. Stanfield's stock reaction that no matter what the government does it is wrong anyway, even if it follows traditional Conservative practice.

Mr. Benson has not, of course, solved the problem of this year's huge deficit, nor will his budget immediately dispel inflation. That was not to be expected. His present measures are a first step toward a promised small budgetary surplus next year and an easing of inflationary pressure. Too abrupt a diversion from the course of the past few years, as he points out, would disrupt the economy and contribute further to unemployment. There remains much to be done, in the way of departmental spending restraints and public education, but we have at least made a start.

Mr. Benson's measures are an attempt to meet the peculiar situation in Canada today, in which unemployment and interest rates show gains even though the country's Gross National Product and national revenue are at new peacetime peaks. Contributing to this situation is the large portion of our wealth that is now expended on humanitarian investment, which includes social welfare, health, education, and similar efforts to better the lot of every Canadian. We have plunged ahead rapidly on such plans. But as Mr. Rasminsky warned, and Mr. Benson has confirmed, we must back up our spending demands with production.

To make matters more difficult, the three extensive programs of post-secondary education, hospital insurance and welfare payments, to which the federal government contributes, are open-ended. Ottawa can exercise little control over such debit items in its budget because the demands are largely in the hands of the provinces and municipalities to which federal participating grants are pledged.

Once the public realizes clearly that the spending of the various levels of government must be financed in the end by the earnings of every Canadian, then it should begin to question more closely the programs on which the money is spent. What governments are saying is: we are spending your money on the basis that what we are buying is more important than what you would buy with it.

Much of this may be true, as economist Kenneth Galbraith has argued, but the need for a full public knowledge of the objectives of government spending is obvious, along with a continuing close look at the efficiency with which the job is being done. That is where the opposition parties should be concentrating, rather than in playing the tired old game of political one-upmanship.

Discourtesy to the Bench

COMMENTS ON THE COURTS voiced at a meeting of the Saanich and the Islands Social Credit constituency association must have caused some surprise to citizens who respect the integrity of this institution. During a question period a woman rose to ask "what chance has a Socreder" in a provincial appeal court composed "of three Liberal justices and a Liberal law firm?"

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle reportedly raised laughter with his interjection "Does that need an answer?" and Mr. Philip Gaglardi contributed the comment "I understand your feeling completely—I've felt it myself," adding later that there were, however, "some things you can't tamper with."

If the interchange was a joke, it was in very poor taste. If any part of it was serious, members of the Social Credit Party should buttress the implications of their remarks with facts, or offer an apology in public. Do they consider the men presiding over the courts figures of fun, or is it their intention to challenge the integrity of those who preside? Snide and insulting remarks have been made regarding the bench, by persons who should be expected to know better.

Belated, Broke and Disbanded

THE CANADIAN CITIZENSHIP Council is apparently dying of starvation. Delegates meeting in Ottawa the other day voted 45 to 22 to disband, and the former executive director, Mr. Arthur Stinson, informed them that after a peak of popularity in the 1940's its resources had dwindled to the point that in the present decade it had become "almost bankrupt".

Whatever its merits in earlier years, the council seems to have outlived its usefulness under present conditions. Its various subsidiaries, including the local groups which have sought to encourage appreciation of Canadian citizenship among new Canadians, have received public notice mainly on those occasions on which court ceremonies have given groups of foreign-born their citizenship papers. In point of fact, the ceremonies and concern by the local groups, came a little late to be effective. Those seeking citizenship are required to put in five years' residence before they can apply — conventionally after they have learned the language.

After five years in a country a belated show of interest is not likely to make much difference. The intent was good. Those who gave up their time deserve credit for the service they were ready to perform. But the job of making good citizens rests with the community as a whole, its schools, its family units and the opportunities provided for the new-comer. We should concentrate on those fields and perhaps skip the coffee and cookies served at least five years after arrival.

'The Theme Is the Threat of Inflation'

Western

THE net result of Mr. Benson's budget of pain is to set back the fiscal clock by one year. Mr. Sharp, relying heavily on Mr. Benson's assistance, planned to bring us forward to financial solvency in 1968-69. According to his precise accounting, the actual forecast deficit was $80 million and that, as Mr. Benson observed in the context of medicare, is "peanuts." Even the peanuts disappeared as the government multiplied its paper economies of the spring months. On February 13 Mr. Benson gave the House his "guarantee" that "we will hit our $10.3 billion ceiling and will balance the budget this year."

On June 6 in Toronto he repeated this claim. Unfortunately for taxpayers, the minister was so wrong on expenditure forecasts (and so impervious to warnings) that the deficit, in the absence of tax changes, would be a massive $730 millions. Mr. Benson also mentions that we are paying 3½ per cent more in price increases this year, which he calls a "modest improvement."

With the aid of additional taxes the deficit is to be reduced by $55 millions, an even more modest improvement.

Solvency Set Back

Solvency has accordingly been set back a year, to 1969-70, when we are to enjoy a $5 million surplus. This will require another $845 millions in taxes for the federal budget. Why so much? The most obvious reason is that the government which wearies easily of good works where economy is concerned, proposes to increase budgetary expenditures by another 8.27 per cent. Mr. Benson quickly adds that, without medicare, it would be only 5¼ per cent.

The minister, surveying the wreckage of his earlier forecasts, expresses grave concern about the control of public expenditures, or lack of it. Thus, speaking of assistance to post-secondary education, he notes that these costs are now increasing at an annual rate of about 20 per cent. With hospital insurance, the current rate of cost increases exceeds 15 per cent. But he hastens to explain that medicare, which all provinces are urged to join, will be different. "In view of the substantial increases in medical fee schedules in recent years, the new medicare program should not run into cost increases as large as those of hospital insurance, for example." How does Mr. Benson know?

The theme of this budget, as of the last, is the threat of inflation. Without remedial policies there is "great danger" that continued prosperity will cause pressures "that will set in train a new round of price and cost increases." The remedy is higher taxation. The obvious comment, in the light of the record, is that this will work only if the government regains control of its vast expenditures.

To bridge the financial gap the minister proposes to raise new revenues of about $920 millions. With deductions for sums due to the provinces or credited to old age security account and with allowance for some losses (for example, lower duties resulting from the Kennedy Round), this will leave $845 millions for Mr. Benson's budget purposes. It will come from four main sources.

The big contributor, good for $440 millions, will be the general taxpayer. He is to pay a social development tax of 2 per cent, with a $120 maximum. The name is a quaint fiction suggesting that he is getting something extra or perhaps doing his bit for the war on poverty. Without doubt, its purpose — not avowed in the budget speech — is to offset the costs of medicare but it is not credited, like old age security, to a particular account. It is a nebulous extra that can be said to represent advantages of any sort flowing to the public from a whole range of social problems.

Gordon Device

Mr. Benson expects to reap an additional $330 millions ($275 millions applicable to the budget) from the corporations. This is the old business invented by Mr. Gordon, of advancing the collection date. Mr. Benson is the last beneficiary. No future finance minister will be able to resort to a device which does not change the tax yield but merely moves it ahead in time.

Next in line are the life insurance companies and their policy holders. They were targets of the Carter commission. They may also be competitors of government, which is almost desperately anxious to attract funds into Canada savings bonds. Mr. Benson hopes to raise about $85 millions from this source. From financial institutions, including banks and mortgage companies, he expects another $45 million, to be extracted chiefly by reducing the limits of permitted reserves.

Tightening Collection

From a variety of minor changes, including a tightening of collection procedures, especially in respect to interest receipts, the minister anticipates a net gain of about $20 millions.

The rather sweeping changes affecting gift and estate taxes are not supposed to alter the revenue picture. In general Mr. Benson proposes to spare the widows but to recoup from the next generation. Any calculations here must be guesswork because there is no experience to guide the calculators.

On the assumption that Mr. Benson betters his past performance, next year's budget should be a definitely anti-inflationary force. For the balance of this year, of course, government policy will continue to exert an upward pressure on costs and prices. It is fortunate in retrospect that at Kingston last June Mr. Benson was able to announce the discovery by his computers of an additional $100 millions of unsuspected revenue. Without this electronic assistance (about which the budget is silent) our present plight would be that much worse.

Driving With Brakes On

Globe and Mail

How long must the lag be between recognition of a social need by government and action by government to meet the need?

Fanfare last week attended the publication of the report of the British Columbia Royal Commission on Auto Insurance. It was a sensible report. Its most important recommendations were that automobile insurance be made compulsory, with the driver rather than the machine being insured; and that benefits be paid for injury, death or damage, regardless of blame and as soon as loss had been established. A driver would be required to carry a minimum $20,000 policy to protect himself, his passengers and his car, but would be free, as now, to purchase additional coverage.

There would no longer be any civil court proceedings to recover damages. Blame or negligence would be a matter for police investigation and action in the additional coverage. . . .

The B.C. commission made these recommendations because it found the present system simply wasn't compensating insured persons for their real loss. Of each $1.60 spent for insurance, only $1 was paid by insurance companies in settlement. A study of 1,253 traffic accident cases chosen at random from 1963 police files showed that compensation of only $900,000 had been paid on actual losses of $2.7-million, and that claims were settled more quickly and adequately for bent fenders than dead people.

How long will British Columbia wait for these admirable recommendations (which would cost the Government nothing) to become law? At least five years, if the B.C. Government moves no faster than the Ontario Government.

In 1963 a select committee of the Ontario Legislature recommended that automobile insurance policies provide benefits to all victims of accidents, regardless of who was at fault.

In 1964 the Ontario Government commissioned an Osgoode Hall study of compensation in accidents occurring in 1961. The study group reported in 1965.

It found that of all economic loss by automobile accidents that year in the County of York, only 37.2 per cent was recovered through the courts. That of the injured, 37.1 per cent received nothing at all. That of the 10,946 individuals incurring economic loss, 7,800 received nothing or less than full compensation. That the more tragic the loss the less was recovered, and the longer it took to do it. That non-paying passengers received the least—in 80.5 per cent of serious injuries and 81.7 per cent of fatalities, there was no compensation.

That was 1965. Ontario victims of auto accidents are still pursuing their losses through the courts, and recovering only a fraction of them.

It is stupid and it is callous, and it is not insurance. In real insurance, such as life and fire, one insures against loss, and blame—except for deliberate criminality like arson—is not a factor in determining compensation. Ontario should have made the reform when it had the facts—three years ago.

We trust the people of British Columbia find their Government has less lead in its boots.

After Great Reverses Hanoi Eyes Peace

Alsop

WAITING for the other shoe to drop in Hanoi is more exciting, at the moment, than following Hubert Humphrey on the campaign trail; and that is what this reporter is now doing. Maybe the shoe will have dropped before these words are printed. And the chances are at least even, moreover, that it will be a disappointment. Meanwhile, it is certainly worth setting down the real reasons for the current flurry of excitement about new developments in Vietnam. There are only two basic reasons. First, Hanoi's war-planners have run into very bad trouble indeed. And second, since the trouble has proved so bad, the North Vietnamese Politburo has had to decide whether it was better to get down to business with President Johnson, or to wait for his successor.

To understand the trouble it is necessary to go back to the famous Tet offensive of last winter. American policy-makers are inclined to be jittery, whenever domestic politics enters the picture. For that very reason, only a small minority of the inner group in Washington immediately accepted Tet for what it was—a military disaster for the enemy of really major dimensions.

It was not only a military disaster; it was also a hair-raising gamble from weakness. Gen. William C. Westmoreland's strategy had been succeeding all too well. Something had to be done about it. Hanoi therefore decided to raise, by a factor of ten, the loss rates and the orders of risk that were regarded as acceptable.

Any high command that changes its own rules in this manner, can of course count on achieving a lot of broken crockery. There was a lot. But the immediate victory universally promised to the troops and cadres was conspicuously not attained. The South Vietnamese army and government everywhere held firm. And the enemy's huge losses were a fruitless blood-bath.

Tet Offensive Analyzed

By now, the inner group in Washington universally recognized Tet for what it was. Having embarked on this course, however, the Hanoi war-planners were unable to turn back. The second round offensive was attempted in May, when the enemy units actually got into Saigon. Again, there was much broken crockery. But above all, the South Vietnamese army and government again held firm; and the enemy again suffered huge and fruitless losses.

Before the second round, moreover, an early end of the war had again been promised. By late spring, therefore, expectations of instant victory had twice been officially aroused among the VC and North Vietnamese troops; and those expectations had twice proved to be wholly illusory.

You could see the symptoms of resulting trouble in the defections, all within one month, of a regimental commander, a deputy regimental commander and a regional political officer of the VC — all men holding positions that would have carried general officer rank in our army or the South Vietnamese army. Hanoi's decision to go to Paris was another acknowledgement of trouble.

Yet the Hanoi Doctrine, that victory must be won "on the battlefield," had not been abandoned, even after the second round's failure. Thus Vietnamese replacements were sent southwards at the rate of nearly 30,000 men a month for three months on end, in preparation for a third round effort.

Sanguinary Failure

That effort began in August and ended in late September. It was another sanguinary failure. Furthermore, the verve and grim courage that had marked the enemy's efforts in the first and second rounds just were not present in the third round. The contrast was sharp enough to indicate incipient demoralization among the leading cadres, and serious internal trouble in the enemy units.

There was clear evidence for this, too, in the form of captured documents complaining bitterly of "planned mass desertions" from crack enemy regiments. And once again, instant victory had been promised; and the promise had proved a phoney for the third time running. If all does not add up to bad trouble for the Hanoi war-planners, it is hard to know how bad trouble can be defined.

The worst of the trouble is that the Hanoi war-planners have thrown in everything they could, and have lost many tens of thousands of men by so doing, on no less than three occasions. Yet instead of gaining anything, they have ended, each time, quite a bit worse off than they ended the time before.

What, then, are their real choices now? They can of course attempt yet a fourth round (and the captured documents already speak of a "winter-spring offensive"). Yet that will cost Hanoi another 80,000 to 100,000 men to provide needed replacements — the equivalent, for the U.S., of between 900,000 and 1,100,000 men.

As it is, while North Vietnamese replacement packets are already turning up composed of 14- and 15-year-olds. And past experience very strongly indicates, by now, that a fourth round will turn out worse than the other three. Those are the facts that Hanoi has to face.

Looking Back

From the Times of October 22, 1908:

The Conservatives are very loud during the present election campaign to denounce the immigration building nearing completion at the Outer Wharf. They pretend to believe the building is designed purely for Orientals.

To the thinking man, however, the need of such is manifestly apparent. Victoria is a major port and is a natural place for the arrest of stowaways and undesirables, and a building of this type is required.

'Ticking Stars' Excite Interest Of Astronomers

SPECTRUM

RYLE

Radio astronomers led by Professor Sir Martin Ryle of Cambridge University recently produced a series of radio research reports which caused more excitement among astronomers than any new discovery since that of the quasars, six years ago.

The first announcement concerned a newly discovered radio star which was producing a remarkably regular pulsing signal, a sharp burst of radio waves approximately every 1.3 seconds. Altogether five of this type of sources have now been discovered (although only one has yet been identified optically, as a small blue star, and this identification is still only provisional).

Very Tiny Size

The most important thing about this radio source is its very small size; it is less than 5000 km in diameter.

This makes it actually smaller than Earth, although it is virtually certain that it is a star and not a planet, since no planet could produce such powerful radio signals and because the source has not been observed to move as a planet would around a star.

Before the astronomers became more or less convinced that their new discovery was a star and not a planet, they were unable completely to rule out the thrilling possibility that it might be an artificial radio beacon or a signalling station set up by some super civilization of extra-terrestrial life forms.

Near End of Life

Now although this idea has (perhaps a little reluctantly) been forgotten, the astronomers are still very exited. If their source—and perhaps the other four like it—really is a star smaller than our planet, then it must be a star which is near to the end of one interesting kind of stellar life history, and no star as near as this to the end of its life has ever been observed before.

Stars die in different ways; some explode and become novae, a very few undergo a much more violent type of explosion and become super novae, and there are other possible fates.

But some stars begin to shrink instead and while many physicists and astronomers have speculated on the fate of shrinking stars, none has ever been observed.

When the hydrogen fuel which sustains a star's H-bomb-like reaction becomes exhausted, then, with no explosive outward force to balance it, the inward force of gravity, dragging all the matter in a star together can cause a catastrophic inward collapse.

Altogether, 250 stars are known which have gone nearly to the end of this process. These are the so-called white dwarfs.

They are stars, originally bigger than our own Sun, which have shrunk nearly to the size of the Earth, so that their matter has become extremely dense—a matchboxful would weigh nearly a ton.

Squeeze Closer

But mathematical theory shows that this should not be the end of the process. Gravitational forces are powerful enough to squeeze a dying star even closer together, so that its diameter would become a few kilometres only.

To make this possible, the electrons which circle the atoms in the star would have to be squashed in, to join up with their opposite numbers the protons in the nucleus, to form single particles, neutrons, with no electric charge, because the positive charges of the protons and the negative charges of the electrons would have cancelled each other out.

No example of these "neutron stars", which are the last stages in the life of stars, has ever been found—until, perhaps, now.

The Cambridge star could be small enough to be a neutron star and there are theoretical reasons why such a star might be expected to expand and contract in a regular pulsing way and to produce regular radio pulses.

Since the ticking stars, as they have been christened, were first discovered, they have exited more interest than any other astronomical discovery since the quasars.

Black Brothers 'Total Strangers'

By CAMERON DUODO

BLOOMINGTON, Indiana—It is difficult for an African making his first trip to the United States not to become sentimental about the black men he sees over here.

Novelist and former editor of the African magazine Drum, Cameron Duodo is the correspondent of The London Observer in Ghana. He wrote this article while on a visit to the United States.

"Christ, there's an Ethiopian over there," I say to myself. But he is not, and he may never even know that there is a country called Ethiopia.

They look so much like us, yet they are total strangers to us. They don't speak any of our languages and they have no memory of ever being with us. We sold some, others were forcibly seized from our shores and transported in foul boats thousands of miles across the ocean to this part of the world.

"You gotta have soul before you really understand," said lanky, long-haired Carl, who looks remarkably like Malcolm X.

"Soul is what moves us, makes us want to be different than we were before, makes us know that we are black and that is great and we ain't gonna be no whitey's boy no more. Dig?"

LEROI JONES

He unwrapped a packet of marijuana and in the coolest, most deadpan manner, invited me: "Do you get high, man?"

I said no, and he was worried for a moment as his super-ego took over. He fiddled with the packet, unable to decide whether to light or not. Meanwhile, he talked.

He didn't think there could be a 'proper' revolution by the blacks in America. "We live in too many pockets too scattered over the country. Chicago, Washington, Newark — it's too easy for us to be surrounded. We gotta do it with soul."

I left him, determined to seek soul.

There was plenty of it at a performance in the vast auditorium of Indiana University by a militant group founded by the black poet-playwright, Leroi Jones. The group is called "The Spirit House Movers and Players" and they were to stage "Father" Jones's very short satire, Home on the Range.

This is how the student newspaper described the play: "Whites in the audience received a live, living-colour impression of how some blacks see them, their way of life and the future of THEIR country. The communication gap is expressed as whites mouth lines of "Deede dodo! Largegreepe and tooble and noik." Only the blacks in Home speak English that can be understood by the audience.

Certainly, the power of the play was unmistakable. Even more than the shocks of the communication gap was the shock of the four-letter words. Within 15 minutes the play had come to an end — robbing the audience of the final satisfaction, the satisfaction of fulfilment.

There hadn't been enough punishment for the masochist, and not enough punishment had been perpetrated for the benefit of the sadist. The whole miasmic feeling was accentuated with a deja-vu atmosphere created by the inflexion of the technique used by Jean Genet the The Blacks: this time, it was blacks who wore white masks.

But the force of the play was bearable compared to the verse that was recited as a prelude to the main programme of the evening. To a background of Black Muslim worshipping sounds, Alaaaaaah, Ilaaaaahi, Aaaaaaaaamen, came the fiercest words of poetry I have ever heard. The poets rolled on to the stage and began — no announcement as to title, author, or anything — they just let soul fly.

Suddenly, a real-life trauma is achieved. A young white girl gets up from her seat, right up front, and begins to walk out. The apostles on the stage notice her and make a wisecrack which I don't quite hear.

There is an uneasy titer throughout the auditorium and the young girl turns back and walks right up to the stage. It is hard to hear her — her voice is full of tremor.

She says: "I sympathize with you, but I don't think you should fight your cause with insults. Can't we try a little love?"

She is cheered by some of the white members of the audience, who think she must have plenty of guts to do a thing like that.

•

But, of course, the blacks are not impressed. What guts is there in protesting against protesters? One black says, "Go tell that to Martin Luther King." The sarcasm is sad and overpowering.

In Boston there has been a strike of students — black students — who want to be allowed to wear African-type dresses to class and to the college cafeteria.

They've said: "To hell with the white man's tie." Only a few years ago, before "soul" got here, many Afro-Americans were using hot iron combs to stretch their hair so as to look like white men.

I see I've used the word "Afro-American." They used to be Negroes. They said it was the white man's invention, Negro. So we should call them Afro-Americans.

This was when the Africans were hitting the scene here — particularly at the United Nations, where our delegations made quite an impact, both with their fiery speeches and with their lovely national dress.

Now, suddenly — perhaps because Africa is in such bad shape — the word Afro-American is no longer fashionable. The groovy word now is "black." And you can please yourself whether you spell it with a capital B or a small b.

They are tremendously complicated, these black brothers who are such strangers to us. They are a great people. And, therefore, they are bound to win.

Change of Tongue, Change of Person?

By ART STOTT

Stott

Some years ago, after he had delivered a lecture on Antoine de Saint-Exupery, Ron Jeffels gave me a public lesson on the pronunciation of the distinguished French author's name. I tried so hard to reproduce his sounds that I wound up with eyeballs bulging and my lips tied in a slack bow, loose at the centre. The facial reaction lasted longer than one might expect. As we sipped tea during the social hour following the address, Pat sidled up to me to whisper: "You've strained your mouth. Try to get it back into normal shape. You're slurping."

The incident came to mind the other evening when Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay was discussing, from the linguist's standpoint, some of the problems that have emerged in Canada's bilingual and bicultural considerations. He had given a clear, concise explanation of the determining influence of a language on the development of a person's culture — the manner in which the culture depended on the language for the transmission of concepts and the emotional impulses it stirred.

He mentioned, in passing, the remark of one of his students. The student had told him that he had a different face when he spoke French than when he spoke the English he has mastered so completely.

Most of us, I guess, have enjoyed our quiet, superior laugh at the American who said the trouble with foreign travel was that so many of the foreigners couldn't even speak American. I have wondered how many of us, as we laughed, have harbored a subconscious affinity for the attitude we were inclined to deride.

* * *

Many of us who are unilingual assume that we know something about human nature. We've read Shylock's profession of humanness: "Prick me and I bleed." This proves to us that people are people, regardless of ethnic origins and differences in tongue. Sure. But we seldom give thought to the point that Shylock's words were put together by a gentleman who had an exceedingly good English vocabulary, as well as understanding. And what would the reaction have been if Shylock had spoken in a tongue we did not understand?

If I may labor the point, how often do we inflict the wound in complete ignorance of the fact that we have wounded anyone because we did not hear, or could not translate, the cry of injury, and cannot see the blood?

I think of an acquaintance who had a simple, straight-forward solution to the bilingual-bicultural problem in Canda: "Give them (French-Canadians) six months to learn English. If they haven't learned it in that time, then kick them out." He didn't say where "they" were to be kicked to, after three or four hundred years' residence in Canada to which my acquaintance had come as a boy.

In point of fact a very large proportion of French Canadians are bilingual in greater or lesser degree. In some parts of Quebec they have to be, since their living depends upon some fluency in the two languages.

But, as Dr. Vinay pointed out, fluency in the two tongues (he presented the linguist's explanation that a child up to the age of 14 could become almost perfectly bilingual) doesn't eliminate the trouble in a country where the majority speaks only one language.

He drew a diagram of a human figure, with the head divided by a chalk line. On one side the figure was French-speaking and imbued with French culture; on the other English-speaking and saturated with English-speaking culture. But in Canada, he pointed out, the constant flow of English speech and English-speaking culture inundated the figure to the point where the French-oriented side was compressed more and more — a sort of snow job shrinking the basic Quebec ingredient to the danger point.

* * *

Under that kind of pressure, something's liable to blow up. At least, if an explosion is averted, a smouldering resentment burns.

In an altogether different, but perhaps comparable context, I have heard informed people speak of the situation which is arising among Indians and Eskimos in the far north. With the best of intentions, many progressive Canadians are trying to help these peoples of an older civilization to enter the latter part of the 20th century. To do that they are bending them to the language and the culture of the predominant and materially successful English-speaking. In the process, they admit that the old northern Indian and Eskimo cultures are being shattered. That, they point out, is the price of progress into the modern affluent society. Too bad, in some instances, they say, but that's the way the culture crumbles and the Indian and Eskimo conform or perish.

The French-speaking people of Quebec are more durable. They're not prepared to collapse without a struggle.

Most of us who speak English only have sufficient good will, I believe, to want to help the French-speaking to retain the desirable features of their culture. But here we encounter a linguistic problem. How are we to form personal judgments, which must be subjective, if we're able to talk and exchange ideas with French-speaking Canadians only when they adopt the English-speaking characteristics of their bilingualism? Paris-born Dr. Vinay has been told he seems to be different people, depending on the language he uses. Maybe our hope is to work harder at becoming bilingual individuals, with dual personalities also, so we can understand our friends in Quebec. But look out on the pronunciaton bit. Your lips could be tangled so nobody can straighten them out.

Working Women: Equal rights?

Women of World, Unite

By DAVID HAWORTH

LONDON — Women trades unionists from all over the world travelled to Dusseldorf recently for an orgy of criticism of governments, the Church, social institutions of all kinds — and, of course, men.

Women now constitute 30 per cent of the global labor force, and their purpose in German was to reach agreement on the more pressing social and economic difficulties women are now facing.

The integration of women in the trades union movement, the employment of women in relation to technological change, and the vexed question of birth control were all on the agenda.

In a Dilemma

But from the start the Third World Conference of Women Workers was in a dilemma. Some of the more industrialised nations consider that special measures and concessions for women are superfluous. They say it is up to the women to better themselves and that a campaign for women should be part of an overall fight against every kind of economic discrimination with which trades unions have to contend.

For the developing countries, however, as the delegates from Asia and Africa were quick to point out, this approach is not nearly good enough. Nor is it really practical for them.

Miss Agnes Adenowo, of Nigeria's United Labour Congress, told the conference that there was no lack of legal social provisions in Africa providing for family benefits, maternity leave and allowances. The problem was how to get them implemented.

In countries like her own, where unemployment is high, employers could ignore these provisions because if the women really began to assert their legal rights they would be sacked, and there would be no lack of other workers to take their place. Women were thus subjected to a sort of blackmail which implied they must choose between having a job and having a family.

'My Dear Sisters'

This was endorsed by the Indian delegate, Miss Evelyn D'Souz. She addressed the conference as "my dear sisters" and said that protective measures for women introduced by well-meaning governments, her own included, have simply meant that during the past few years there has been an overall decline in women's employment in the developing countries.

What is the answer? Well, said the delegates, in effect it is this: that women should stop being second class citizens, obedient, servile wives, but should develop instead as a monstrous regiment of militant trades unionists.

There were no men at the conference to gainsay this, but the African delegates quickly indicated a flaw in this argument. It is just this: that the real problem facing women trades union leaders in almost every country is that their women members are not active enough through their respective organizations.

Time after time, delegates went to the rostrum to complain of their own members. They said that although women were technically able to become trades union members as easily as men in almost every country in the world, their membership was nominal only.

Husbands Resentful

A possible reason for this, it was suggested, is that working mothers' husbands resent their wives participating in union affairs after working hours, and feel that they should instead be at home with the children.

There is also, as Madam Marcelle Dehareng, secretary of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions' consultative committee on women workers' problems pointed out, a deep-rooted prejudice against women union leaders based on concepts of the role of men and women in society.

Of course, social education — or rather the lack of it — is one of the root causes of this difficulty. For the past 10 years, at both national and international levels, the ICFTU has been involved in training schemes for women trades unionists aimed at encouraged them to be less reticent about taking on responsibilities.

These efforts have not met with great success. For even after training women encounter the old familiar difficulties such as lack of male understanding, the conflict of family responsibilities and straightforward prejudice. And in the industralized countries, the delegates from them agreed, the changing patterns of employment have become so rapid that there is no longer time to wait for the long-term results of educational efforts.

Dad Has Problems

It would be wrong, however, to give the impression that the delegates at this conference were vindictive, or that their censures were not tinged with understanding. After all, for every working mother there is also a working father — and he has problems, too.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnstone, an official of the International Labour Organization, said that the education and training of girls tends to be behind the times, far more so than for boys. "Girls are thus already handicapped when they come to the threshold of employment. If, on top of this, they suffer from a lag in their education, and training to technological advance, they will be doubly handicapped.

"It seems clear," she said, "that technological change is closing doors to girls and women in many fields in which they have tended to concentrate. In occupations other than non-manual jobs, more and more women are going to be forced into lower skilled jobs and occupations with the technological revolution. Or will technological progress make it possible to escape from this wage-slavery?

No final answer to these questions was forthcoming.

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said the budget would impose new taxes "painlessly" upon the Canadian taxpayer.

The federal government "had to have more money . . . and had to get it by taxation, but the taxation is so distributed as not to be too much of a burden on those who will pay."

Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers' Union, said the two-per-cent social development tax is "retrogressive at a time of recession and inflation" which has hit the major sectors of the population.

But he was in favor of taxation on life insurance companies and said that a clamp-down on depletion allowances in mining was long overdue.

K. R. MacGregor, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, said he was shocked and surprised at the way the insurance industry was singled out for taxation.

A. W. Anderson, executive vice-president of London Life Insurance Co. of London, Ont., said "basically it seems to me that this tax on the life insurance industry will be borne by the policyholders."

George Berry, vice-president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. of Canada, agreed.

'WEAKENS THE INDUSTRY'

John L. Bonus, managing director of the Mining Association of Canada, said that any tightening of regulations on depletion allowances for gas, oil wells and mines would weaken the ability of the Canadian mineral industry to compete on an international level.

Gordon Milling, Canadian research director for the United Steelworkers of America, said:

"The government has once again reached into the pockets of those whose pockets are easiest to pick."

Dennis McDermott, director of the United Auto Workers, predicted that the development tax will spur unions to press for higher wages as a means of easing the tax bite.

S. E. Nixon, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, said the budget is "a second-best effort" to control inflation.

E. P. Neufeld, professor of economics at the University of Toronto, said the budget contains no proposals designed explicitly to cope with inflation at a time of relatively high unemployment.

HITS TAXPAYER AGAIN

L. F. Wills, first vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, said:

"Industry and the individual taxpayer . . . are once again required to bail the government out of the deep water in which it finds itself as a result of the inexcusable overspending of all levels of government."

A favorable view came from Douglas Sherbaniuk, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, who said the budget "makes impressive use of the government's fiscal armor."

". . . the finance minister . . . has proposed practical measures which accord with an equitable tax."

A. W. Purdy, president of the Canadian Construction Association, criticized the budget for "ignoring" the 12-per-cent federal sales tax on construction materials.

WILL RESTRAIN ECONOMY

William Dodge, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the "two-per-cent increase in personal income tax . . . will have the effect of restraining the economy and aggravating an already serious unemployment situation instead of providing stimulus, mild or otherwise."

In Montreal, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce generally approved of the budget, but said the government now must "show that it is prepared to match with action its avowed intention to curtail spending and efficiently manage government programs."

G. Arnold Hart, chairman of the Bank of Montreal, said the budget, in an over-all sense, meet the "over-riding concern" of bring "inflationary pressures under control."

However, the budget should have contained "more rigorous" measures to "bring expenditures under control and the accounts into balance."

Two Israeli Planes Shot Down

By United Press International

Egyptian air force planes shot down two Israeli fighters and damaged a third today in a fierce aerial dogfight over the Canal Zone city of Ismailia, Cairo radio reported.

A broadcast communique said a formation of four Israeli warplanes intruded into Egyptian air space and was engaged by Egyptian planes.

One of the Israeli planes exploded in the air, a second was badly damaged and its pilot was sighted parachuting over the Israeli-held east bank of the Canal, the communique said.

headquarters when he said: "We have decided to meet again tomorrow."

For some months, the sessions have been held at weekly intervals so that some reporters assumed a break in the situation may have developed.

But as the chief American delegate talked, his spokesman, William J. Jorden, was seen to shake his head. And later Harriman himself and Thuy made clear it was a slip of the tongue. The next formal meeting will be on Wednesday Oct. 30, maintaining the usual pace.

It remained a possibility that Harriman's slip was an unconscious giveaway. He and Thuy are believed to have met in private several times outside the conference framework on terms of a possible compromise.

DECLINED COMMENT

But spokesmen of the U.S. and Hanoi delegations here have consistently declined to comment on whether any private contacts have been taking place.

Uvic Students To Complain On Recorders

Students in Uvic's faculty of education Friday will be able to tape complaints about their courses and suggestions for improvement.

Three tape-recording booths will be set up on campus on R.I.P. (Recommendations Influence Progress) Day, November 1.

The plan is sponsored by the Education Undergraduate Society with students manning the tape-recording booths.

Written and taped proposals will be compiled in a document to be submitted to members of the education faculty.

EUS social programs director, Laurie Creak, stressed R.I.P. Days is designed to initiate change at the classroom level in education, and is in no way connected with current Alma Mater Society proposals for change within Uvic administrative structures.

Uvic Group Starts Drive Against CUS

By BOB MITCHELL
Uvic Correspondent

Copies of a petition urging that the University of Victoria withdraw from the Canadian Union of Students have been posted around the Gordon Head campus.

The petition is part of a move by members of the student representative assembly to prevent allotment of $5,000 in CUS membership fees at the Alma Mater Society budget meeting Sunday.

While the petition does not specify reasons for pulling out of the national union, student leaders favoring CUS withdrawal were confident Tuesday they would reach their goal of 1,000 signatures.

The petition urges students to confront AMS leaders at a special speakeasy scheduled for noon today to demand immediate withdrawal from the Ottawa-based union.

REFERENDUM ASKED

During debate one month ago, members of the student assembly had called for a referendum on the issue to be held in February.

However, concensus of the petition backers now is that money ordinarily destined for Ottawa is urgently needed to beef up programs already under way at Victoria.

Student president Frank Frketich said he thought the petition was "very unfortunate."

"I hope nothing comes of it," he said.

"It just registers a protest and indicates a lot of people are unhappy with the present situation, but we already know that; that's why there's a referendum in February."

Mr. Frketich said if the petitioners get their 1,000 names the referendum will have to be held immediately.

TOTAL BREAKUP

He said Uvic should stay in CUS "at least for this year anyway" because he anticipates a total breakup of the national organization within the coming year.

"I think there may not be any CUS by next spring anyway, so I don't think it matters that much," he said.

The withdrawal advocates want out now, though, and their main argument is based on simple economics.

Student Union building director Jim Bennett said he feels many of the CUS programs, such as student loans, reduced air fares, life insurance and low-cost housing are worthwhile, but not worth $5,000.

"I'd go along with something like $1,000," he added.

'FAR, FAR LEFT'

Activities co-ordinator Paul Watson earlier this year urged withdrawal from CUS on grounds that it was "far, far left," but he also contends tangible returns from the body that currently groups a majority of Canadian universities do not justify the expense of membership.

Disenchantment with the Canadian Union of Students is growing by leaps and bounds, as universities across the country hold referendums to decide whether to stay or pull out.

Last year the politically conservative University of Alberta at Edmonton was alone in rejecting a seat in CUS.

But following the national congress at Guelph last August, disapproval of the CUS political stance was voiced at several schools in Ontario.

NLF SUPPORT

Students at Waterloo and Windsor have already voted to reject their membership, while referendums are pending at Sudbury, Guelph and London.

Main reason behind the Ontario withdrawals is disagreement with several resolutions passed during the controversial August meeting, notably a pledge of support for the National Liberation Front and an outright condemnation of the capitalist system.

Students at Burnaby's Simon Fraser University vote Thursday and Friday in a CUS referendum, but there, as at Uvic, the main question is one of money, not political stances.

AMS treasurer Dan Gerwing says the extra $5,000 are desperately needed to cover an operating deficit of some $4,000 left over from last year's expenses.

BIGGEST CUTBACK

Mr. Gerwing earlier this week brought out a preliminary departmental breakdown of the upcoming budget that indicated original requests had to be slashed by anywhere from 10 to 50 per cent to bring their total within the $80,000 available AMS revenue.

Biggest cutback was in the athletics department. A $26,000 request was knocked back to $17,000.

The treasurer said he regretted having to deal athletics a financial blow.

"We slashed budgets where we thought they were frivolous," he said, "but the athletics' request was actually the bare minimum of what they needed."

He pointed out the athletics budget as it now stands is increased by 30 per cent over last year, but added Uvic teams need extra money to participate in the Western Canadian Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association.

Stuffed Celery Delights

Fill crisp celery stalks, 2" to 3" long, with any of fillings below; refrigerate until served. Or stuff long, wide celery stalks; refrigerate. To serve, cut celery into bite-size pieces.

Fillings

Pickle-Sardine Mix—Mix one tiny grated onion, one tbsp. lemon juice, two tbsps. mayonnaise, two tbsps. chopped pickle, pinch of salt, half cup mashed canned sardines (without oil).

Red and White Mix—One tbsp. minced onion, five minced radishes, half tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and one cup cottage cheese.

Champignons Grilles

(Broiled Mushrooms)

Fresh mushroom caps of the size and in the quantity desired, melted butter, salt, freshly-ground black pepper, small toast rounds (optional), soft butter, lemon juice.

Preheat the broiler. Paint each mushroom cap with melted butter, using a pastry brush. In a well-buttered, shallow baking dish arrange the caps side by side and hollow side up. After seasoning them lightly with salt and pepper, broil them for five minutes or until they are lightly browned and tender when pierced with the tip of a sharp knife. If desired, arrange them on a heated platter with toast rounds. With a bit of soft butter and sprinkle each cap with a few drops of lemon juice, dot the tops and serve.

Beef steak In Red Wine

Place 2-lb., 1½" thick sirloin steak, cut in strips 3" to 4" long and 1" wide, in a hot Dutch oven. Quickly brown strips on each side and push them to one side of pan and pour in ¼ cup water. Stir well to loosen brown bits. Add ½ tsp. Worcestershire, ¼ tsp. paprika, ¼ tsp. pepper, 2 tsps. salt, 1 tbsp. capers, ½ cup claret or Burgundy, 8 to 10 very small white onions and one bay leaf. Cover Dutch oven and cook over low heat 20 minutes, or until meat is tender. Sprinkle with snipped parsley. This makes four servings.

Swedish Meat Patties

Melt 1 tbsp. of butter in a small pan. After the foam subsides, add 2 tbsps. finely-chopped onions and cook for 2 or 3 minutes, or until they are soft and transparent but not brown. Scrape into a large bowl, add 1 pound lean ground beef, 4 egg yolks; 1 tbsp. capers, drained and finely chopped, 1½ tsps. salt, a few grindings of pepper and 2 tsps. white vinegar. After mixing, moisten with ½ cup of heavy cream, stir in ¼ cup finely chopped, drained beets, freshly cooked or canned. Shape the mixture into 12 or 14 round patties, about 2 to 3 inches in diameter. Heat 2 tbsps. butter and 2 tbsps. vegetable oil in a heavy, large skillet. When the foam subsides, add the patties, 3 or 4 at a time, and cook over moderately high heat for 5 to 6 minutes on each side, or until they are a deep brown. These spicy hamburgers are frequently served with a fried egg set atop each, in which case they are made larger and thicker.

New Delays Hit Mercy Flights

OTTAWA (CP) — The first Canadian transport plane assigned to mercy flights for victims of Nigeria's civil war arrived on the African scene 10 days ago. But no relief runs have yet been made.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Tuesday that clearance has not yet been obtained from Biafra and Equatorial Guinea for flights from Fernando Po, the Guinean island off the coast of Nigeria, into the secessionist territory.

The Guinean officials empowered to grant clearance cannot be located, Mr. Sharp said.

And he added that mercy flights cannot yet be made within Nigerian-held territory because of difficulties with forward airfields.

The Opposition again belabored the government for the delay in relief flights.

One Hercules is at Lagos, Nigeria's capital. The second is on Ascension Island in mid-Atlantic and the third at Recife, Brazil.

Meanwhile, the Commons external affairs committee is scheduled to complete today 2½ weeks of hearings on the needs of the war victims and how Canada can help provide relief.

GENERAL TESTIFIES

Maj.-Gen. William A. Milroy, Canada's representative on the four-nation observer team in Nigeria, testified for 4½ hours Tuesday.

Gen. Milroy arrived Sept. 27 in Nigeria, which invited Canada, Britain, Sweden and Poland to send observers to check on charges of genocide.

Gen. Milroy said the team feels "very strongly" that there is no evidence of genocide against the Ibos of Biafra.

He said the Nigerians seemed to be doing everything they could to provide food and medical care for refugees.

The general would not be shaken in this assertion under stiff questioning by David Lewis, NDP parliamentary leader, and Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood).

Scientific Application 'Unbalanced'

OTTAWA (CP) — Application and use of science in Canada "is alarmingly unbalanced" and threatens economic potential 10 or 20 years from now, the National Research Council said today.

In a brief to the Senate science policy inquiry, NRC urged much greater commitment to new technology in areas selected for special support and encouragement on a priority basis.

"Possible areas which should be considered include transportation, telecommunications, building materials and building technology, environmental pollution, metal physics and metallurgy, marine sciences, food technology, energy and power technology, northern development and specialized computer technology."

The committee was to hear testimony from NRC President Dr. W. G. Schneider, Dr. K. F. Tupper, scientific vice-president; Professor Louis-Philippe Bonneau, Laval University's vice-dean and a member of the council; Dr. W. H. Gauvin, also a council member and manager of Noranda Research Centre, Pointe Claire, Que.; and Dr. A. Brewer Hunt, a council member.

MOMENTUM LACKING

The NRC brief said Canada has not achieved a sufficient footing of research and development in the industrial sector nor has existing research and development gained enough momentum to assure the future welfare of advanced industrial technology.

"Our present industrial climate, structure and resources are not sufficiently favorable to induce industry to undertake major long-range R and D programs."

Industrial research and development had concentrated mostly on short-range programs likely to produce immediate returns. Usually this effort was concerned with extending or elaborating existing technology rather than with developing promising and new technology.

While both kinds were essential, development of new technology is more likely to provide the challenging opportunities in industrial laboratories which will attract highly-gifted and creative scientists and engineers.

"Our deficiencies in these respects today will increasingly compromise our economic potential 10 to 20 years from now."

More Have Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — The September employment picture in British Columbia brightened to the extent of 18,000 more workers employed than the same month last year. A total of 758,000 were employed in B.C. at the end of the month.

Apartment Plans Dropped

Saanich plans for development of the municipally-owned Lambrick Estate at Gordon Head have been changed to drop 14.06 acres which had been set aside for apartment use.

The new plan, submitted to Saanich lands and planning committee Tuesday night, was received as information with no formal action taken.

The first plan of one month ago showed a school site of 10.4 acres, a park of 13.25 acres, a community centre of 2.84 acres, and three apartment sites — of 3.54 acres, 4.45 acres and 6.07 acres.

Several individual members of council, and especially some residents in the area, made known their objections to having apartments — or at least that amount of apartments — on the Lambrick Estate.

The new plan shows a junior community centre of 3.5 acres, park of 22.8 acres and a reserve for school expansion of 3.9 acres.

The school would be on the northwest side of the estate, the community centre on the southwest the park to the east and the school reserve in the north.

Saanich purchased the estate in 1965 for $250,000, with the last payment due in 1969, from the family of former Reeve A. G. Lambrick.

The estate lies within a slightly broader area bounded by Torquay, Kenmore, Tyndall and Feltham.

General support for the new plan, over the previous one, was voiced by Ald. William Campbell, Ald. Foster Isherwood and Ald. Leslie Passmore.

Saanich will build a $470,000 indoor swimming pool and community centre at the site. Architects have been hired and a special sub-committee is handling details.

Two Stamps Bring $380,000

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A New Orleans stamp collector Monday night purchased two of the world's rarest stamps for $380,000, more than twice the record price in any philatelic auction sale.

The two one-penny stamps were on an envelope written from Mauritius, an island in the Indian Ocean, to Bombay, India, in 1847. They were engraved with the words "post office" instead of "post paid" by a French jeweller in Mauritius who knew little English.

The purchaser of the envelope was Raymond H. Weill. The underbidder was A. Michael of Stanley Gibbons Ltd. of London, whose top bid was $370,000.

A spokesman for H. R. Harmer Inc., stamp auctioneers, sponsor of the auction, said the previous record sale was about $155,000 for a German stamp sold in Europe several years ago.

'Disqualify Ignorant Voters'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Psychiatric tests for politicians and disqualification of ignorant voters were two measures suggested by a political science professor last week as a partial solution to the "breakdown in the Simon Fraser University in suburban Burnaby made the suggestions during a lecture at the University of British Columbia.

"Why not have psychiatric tests for politicians when astronauts are forced to take them?" he asked.

"And why not bar a man from voting for a candidate he has never heard of or a referendum or bond issue he simply doesn't understand?"

Dr. McDermott said that frequent elections and popular vote counting were just idealized concepts of democracy and maintained that "the real power rests with a few top politicians and bureaucrats whose thinking is mostly unknown to the general public."

'Resignation Will Clarify Situation'

BURNABY (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Strand, acting president of Simon Fraser University, said Monday the resignation of SFU Chancellor Dr. Gordon Shrum as chairman of the SFU board of governors should improve the situation at the university.

Dr. Strand met with students Monday for an open question period. About 250 of the university's 5,000 students attended.

After saying he favored Dr. Shrum's resignation from the board chairmanship, Dr. Strand said he considered it important because the two positions held by Dr. Shrum, chancellor and board chairman, were different. One was honorary and one was administrative.

When Dr. Shrum made a statement, it was difficult to tell whether he was speaking in his honorary capacity, as chairman, or whether he was making an official statement.

"The separation of the two positions will clarify this situation," Dr. Strand said.

Far-Right Party Gains Toehold

BONN (Reuters) — The far-right National Democratic Party gained a toehold in local councils in three West German states without causing any major upset to the country's leading parties, election returns showed Monday.

Voting for district and local councils Sunay in the Saarland, Hesse and Baden-Wuerttemberg produced tough competition between the feeral government coalition partners, the Christian Democrats and Social Democrats. The Christian Democrats made small gains.

NDP candidates won 5.2 per cent of the poll in both Saar and Hesse. In Baden-Wuerttemberg, incomplete results showed that the NPD had improved its results in the nine major towns.

Southam Buys Montreal Paper For $9 Million

MONTREAL (CP) — Southam Press Ltd. is purchasing The Gazette Printing Co. through an exchange of $3.7 million in cash and 200,000 shares of Southam Press, it was announced Tuesday.

The boards of the two companies said The Gazette, family-owned for almost 100 years, would retain responsibility for its editorial and news policies.

Southam Press shares closed on the Toronto Stock Exchange at $53.25 a share Tuesday, establishing the purchase price for The Gazette Printing Co. at over $9 million.

The Gazette Printing Co. operates a commercial printing business as well as the 140,000-circulation morning daily and The Lakeshore News and Chronicle. Officers of the company would remain unchanged, a front page statement in the newspaper said today.

"The Gazette editorial and news policies will continue to be the responsibility of the present publisher and his staff," the Gazette's statement said.

Charles H. Peters, president of The Gazette, said the transaction was the result of a study leading to the conclusion "that the longer term future of the family-owned business of medium size will be difficult."

"With the company in sound shape at present we decided to move for future security and progress."

Mr. Peters is the grandson of Richard White who, with his brother Thomas bought The Gazette in 1870. The English-language newspaper, now in its 191st year of publication, was founded as a bilingual newspaper during the period of the American revolutionary war.

The Gazette would continue to operate "as a separate entity with its own president and board of directors and with its two divisions — newspaper publishing and job printing."

Details of the agreement would be completed by the end of the year.

Offshore Rig To Extend Oil Search

Decision to extend Shell Canada Ltd.'s west coast offshore drilling program has been made based on encouraging results from the wells drilled to date.

President Harry Bridges reported Tuesday that drilling of the company's tenth Pacific shelf wildcat was underway at the end of September.

The original two-year drilling program will expire in May and when the exploration started in May 1967 it was planned to drill 20 holes. At that time, however, the company said the program would last a minimum of two years.

Mr. Bridges said that while no oil or gas accumulations of commercial value have been discovered, "evidence of a thick sedimentary section offshore has led to a decision to extend the program in order to explore further Shell Canada's large acreage holdings in this area."

The drilling platform SEDCO 135-F is working in the Queen Charlotte Islands part of Shell's holding, currently on Shell Anglo Harlequin D-86, about 40 miles east of Cape St. James.

The previous well was plugged at a depth of 8,302 feet after drilling less than a month. It was the fifth for Hecate Strait.

SEDCO 135-F drilled the initial four wells of the program off Barkley Sound, Vancouver Island, in the first 11 months of the program.

Shell has exploration permits covering some 13 million acres.

The company has dropped the idea of developing large reserves of the Athabasca tar sands, although technical investigations will continue.

It will not drill in the 1.2 million acre site on the Mackenzie River delta area of the Northwest Territories until results of a drilling venture in Tunanuk are known. Shell, Imperial Oil Ltd., and British American Oil Co. Ltd., of Toronto, are conducting a joint program at Tunanuk.

Planned drilling off Nova Scotia will begin next fall.

UP, UP, UP AND INTO PLACE goes the first wall section of a new Alcock, Downing & Wright wholesale plumbing warehouse under construction on Garbally Road. The 8,000-square-foot, $60,000 building will be ready for occupation in December. "Building with pre-cast concrete is fast and economical," said local manager John Bergin. "This is the second new warehouse of the type designed and built by the company. The entire design is geared to provide speedy access and egress for our customers to whom, with labor costs so high, time means a great deal of money." No date has been set for the official opening but Mr. Bergin said company president Jim Alexander would be on hand to cut the ribbon in December.

Insurance Trend Seen

A change in individual Canadians' preference for life insurance is foreseen as a result of Finance Minister Benson's tax amendments.

Harry Seed, president of Vancouver-based Seaboard Life Insurance Co., said a trend to equity-life insurance programs stimulated by inflation may be further accelerated through a desire to put savings into plans offering potential capital gains, as yet non-taxable in Canada.

He also forecast wider dispersal of insurance company surplus funds and greater interest in registered retirement savings plans, also deductible from taxable income.

Mr. Benson said insurance companies would be subject to a 15-per-cent tax on income from investment portfolios, a move which Mr. Seed likened to a similar move by the U.S. government in 1961.

But the Canadian tax will not be as severe as the American one, and he felt there was less likelihood of it being passed on to policy holders through premium payments. There was little evidence of this happening in the U.S.

The executive made one reservation in his comments, that it was not quite clear whether Mr. Benson intends the tax to apply to investment gains or just earnings.

If the government follows the taxation pattern applied to mutual fund companies, then the recently introduced option of providing both stock equities and insurance protection in single premium payments may become more popular. Seaboard was a pioneer in this field and it is being taken up by other major companies.

Registered retirement savings plans, which have been popular with higher income people because of the tax advantage, will likely be found more favorable to other income levels, Mr. Seed said.

Money set aside in this way is tax exempt until it is drawn as a pension. When the individual reaches retirement age, he often takes lump payment, rolling the sum over into annuities.

Referring to changes in depletion allowance application that will affect Canadian mining and the petroleum industry, Canadian Petroleum Association B.C. manager Bert McGillivray felt the reform may aggravate the competitive position of Canada with the U.S.

U.S. companies are allowed more tax relief in the acquisition of new properties, giving them an advantage over Canadian companies desiring to obtain a wider exploration base, and with the result that American control of the Canadian oil and gas industry is encouraged.

Trust Companies Uncertain About Estate Taxation

Relief to family principals in the new budget's approach to estate taxes is generally acknowledged by local trust companies.

But the full effect has not been judged in what some officers refer to as sweeping reforms in gift and inheritance taxation.

A widow, under the amendments, will not have to pay tax on her husband's estate, nor a husband on the death of his wife. But other beneficiaries are still subject to inheritance tax.

One spokesman, Montreal Trust Co. manager Robert D. Ferguson, thought it unusual that the government had become "more personal" in its approach to successors.

"I suppose it is a good thing to favor close relatives in the sense that it favors the family as a unit. But if we gain in one area we seem to have to pay in another," he said.

The implication of provincial succession duties, as in B.C., makes the problem of estate duties more intricate, remarked John Bayne, of Royal Trust.

National Trust Co. Ltd. manager G. B. Empey, said any lightening of the load is commendable, but without more detailed information he said he could draw no conclusions.

Department Store Techniques in Flux

Special to the Times

MONTREAL — Direct factory-to-customer shipment of merchandise bought at department stores will expand in the next decade, according to a T. Eaton Co. Ltd. executive.

Donald James Hudson, 38, merchandise manager for the 15 Ontario department stores of the Toronto-based company, said direct shipments will be one of several developments in retailing.

Others include charges for some deliveries, restrictions on others. Eaton's has been requesting customers to carry small packages for some time.

Department store operations will become more centralized and directed at a distance through market research, inventory control and computer techniques.

Service Declining

Mr. Hudson told the Canadian regional convention of the International Council of Shopping Centres that some department store service has been poor.

"Rising costs have placed tremendous pressure on retailers in the immediate past and service has suffered."

He said stores will try to improve it, not by hiring more staff, but by better deployment of sales staff. There will be a spread of self-service for goods that lend themselves to it and better personal service for items like clothing.

Retailers will be unable to handle all products on the market. "Retailers will have a greater and greater influence on the success of new and old products as they strive to keep their inventories in line by cutting back on assortments and only offering the best selling lines."

More Researching

More market research will be needed to match inventories and varieties to customer needs and more department changes to gain a correct mixture.

Stores will cut back their morning hours in favor of more night shopping, holiday and Sunday shopping, "with the usual resistance being experienced as has occurred with night openings."

A growing body of more educated young customers will force changes in advertising. "Perhaps better educated people will not respond or will respond negatively to the way we as retailers have conducted our business in these areas in the past.

"In terms of media, TV and to some degree radio will become stronger as the retail industry learns to use these media more effectively and as they become even more dominant in our life.

"However, where newspapers are still strong, such as in Montreal and Toronto, this medium will remain dominant in retail advertising in the nineteen seventies."

More advertising will be aimed at apartment dwellers and young married couples.

A Critical Look

Mr. Hudson said apartment superintendents hamper market research because they don't allow unauthorized people in buildings.

He urged taking a critical look at how national population trends relate to the local area.

"Though the growing young element is the most noteworthy factor, do not overlook the absolute numbers of people in all categories—they are increasing with the rising population.

"There will be 220,000 marriages in 1978, compared with 155,000 in 1966. "Marriages will also tend to be more evenly distributed throughout the year — the June bride is becoming a legend if she hasn't already."

Urban markets will continue as the major retail growth areas but will be dominated by the suburban ring. "Not because shopping centres do a better job of retailing but because the customer is there."

PORT PLANNED FOR INDUSTRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Wenman, Social Credit MLA for Delta, said Tuesday the B.C. government is considering proposals for the development of oil, chemical and automobile assembly plants at the Roberts Bank deepsea port site.

Mr. Wenman also said other forms of heavy industry are being suggested for the proposed port 20 miles south of Vancouver.

He described the oil, chemical and automobile assembly plant proposals as detailed and concrete plans "that are being carefully studied."

Firms Face Tightening

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulations to tighten control of depletion allowances granted to petroleum and mining companies were announced Tuesday night by Finance Minister Benson.

He said in his budget speech that existing regulations make it possible for groups of companies to get much greater benefits than were intended.

Depletion allowances — generally a write-off of 33 1-3 per cent — now are allowed on the production profits of a mining or petroleum company.

The production profits are figured after deducting exploration and development costs.

Mr. Benson said some large corporations charge all exploration and development costs to a subsidiary company, while saving all the depletion allowances for another subsidiary company.

Under the proposed changes, all exploration and development expenses of the corporate group must be deducted before any depletion allowances are claimed.

Crown Z. Earnings

Crown Zellerback Canada Ltd. reports net income of $8.3 million for the first nine months of 1968, compared with $7.1 million for the comparable period last year.

Sales, however, were down to $131.3 million compared with $132.2 million in the first nine months of 1967.

President Robert G. Rogers said sales were improved by higher prices for lumber and logs, with demand strong, but were partly offset by a drop in newsprint production and lower prices for pulp shipped to offshore markets.

Shell Earns $1.18

Shell Canada Ltd. Tuesday reported net earnings of $39.08 million or $1.18 a class A common share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1968, compared with $35.40 million or $1.07 for the similar period last year.

The company attributed the increase in earnings to higher sales, improved prices for sulphur and increased production of natural gas and gas liquids.

Imperial Oil Ltd.

Imperial Oil Ltd. had net earnings of $70 million or $2.17 a share for the first nine months of this year compared with $69 million or $2.15 a share for the corresponding period in 1967, the company said. Higher costs offset increased production and sales.

Alberta Rights Sale Brings $1,830,905

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government received $1,830,905 in a sale of drilling reservations of the petroleum and natural gas rights.

Highest price paid was $808,960 by Mobil Oil and Shell (Canada) Ltd. for a parcel of 11,520 acres in the Edson area 150 miles west of Edmonton.

Champlin Petroleum and Canadian Pacific Oil and Gas paid $450,330 for 9,280 acres in the Edson area.

All-Year Tourist Season Aim of Trade Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Pepin wants representatives of all phases of the Canadian tourist industry to gather here next year at a travel-trade congress.

He told delegates to the federal-provincial conference on tourism this congress, the first of its kind in Canada, could discuss tours now for sale and ideas for new travel plans.

The congress could also study development of an all-year tourist season and the need for special rates to stimulate "low-season business."

Key representatives of tour operators, wholesalers and carriers, as well as observers from travel associations and government travel bureaus, would attend.

ENDS LONG DAY

His invitation wound up a long day of discussions on various aspects of tourism among about 100 representatives of the federal, provincial and territorial governments and private industry.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, opened the two-day conference by announcing plans for a major domestic travel survey on Canadians.

The survey, to cost "several hundred thousand dollars," would only be carried out subject to satisfactory agreement of cost-sharing between the federal, provincial and territorial government travel bureaus and private sectors of the travel industry.

It would be an important research project enabling Canada's travel leaders to give new directions to their promotion and development programs.

Conference delegates voted unanimously to support the survey.

Today provincial tourism ministers are holding in-camera meetings while other delegates discuss tourist problems in closed workshops.

Rent Supplement

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition Leader Gil Molgat suggested Monday that rent supplements be paid to low-income families to permit them to find "decent accommodation in the private market." The proposal is one of several included in two briefs the Liberal leader plans to present to the federal task force on housing and urban development when it visits here next week.

Charity Needed, Cardinal Says

BOSTON (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing says the idea that Jacqueline Kennedy excommunicated herself from the Roman Catholic Church by her marriage to Aristotle Onassis is "a lot of nonsense."

In a speech Tuesday to members of the Caritas Guild, men in the licensed beverage industry, the Catholic archbishop of Boston said repeatedly that Caritas stands for charity—and that, he said, is what is needed.

"I turn on the radio and all I hear are people knocking her head off, as it were, criticizing her and so forth, and they are so far from the truth that no one would believe me if I ever got on a radio program and revealed what I know.

"All I know that I am able to tell you is this: Caritas, charity.

"Months ago I knew that Jacqueline Kennedy was going to marry Aristotle Onassis. I knew what she has been going through for many, many months.

"I have bee contacted by many of those who are identified in high places with the administration of the late President Kennedy, and I have been contacted by others intimately related and associated with the Kennedy family to stop all this from taking place, namely that Jack's widow, God rest him, would marry Aristotle Onassis.

"Well, I would have no part."

"The point I want to make is this: Why do people pour letters into me? And today's mail . . . condemning her, condemning me and condemning the church, and the church has nothing to do with it. I never would condemn anybody.

"And this idea of saying she's excommunicated, she's a public sinner, what a lot of nonsense. Only God knows who is a sinner, who is not."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Insurance Stocks Tumble

Most sections of the Toronto stock market showed little reaction to the budget in trading today, although life insurance issues dipped sharply in response to the proposal to subject them to income tax.

The market closed higher.

Investors holding life insurance and oil portfolios showed "some concern" over the tax proposals, Montreal brokers reported.

The New York market was closed today in another of the one-day-a-week holidays.

AT TORONTO—In industrials, Great Northern Capital gained 2⅝ to 13¼, Leigh Instruments 2⅝ to 45, Noranda 1¼ to 58¾ and Consolidated Textile 1⅛ to 13⅜. Great West Life dropped 5⅜ to 70½ and Empire Life 2 to 20½.

Hudson's Bay Mining rose 1⅝ to 72½, Bethlehem Copper ½ to 24⅜ and United Keno Hill 40 cents to $7.00. Leitch lost ⅝ to 11½ and Bankeno 30 cents to $4.85.

Numac fell 40 cents to $7.45 and Central-Del Rio ⅝ to 16⅞. Chieftain Development was up 75 cents to $9.75.

AT MONTREAL all sectors posted small losses in brisk trading today.

Calgary Power dropped 1¼ to 25¾, Union Carbide 1⅛ to 29⅞, Corby A 1 to 35 and St. Lawrence Cement A 1 to 25. Consumer Glass added 1¼ to 21½.

Southam climbed 1⅞ to 34 on announcement of plans to acquire the Montreal Gazette.

Hudson's Bay highlighted the mines sector at 72, up 1½ and Cominco ⅝ to 32⅝.

In oils, Imperial lost 1½ to 78½, Texaco ¾ to 33¼, Home B ¾ to 39⅝ and Shell ⅛ to 32⅛.

AT LONDON the market advanced today but was unable to hold its gain and leading stocks drifted back.

Engineerings made the best showing, especially ship-building shares, helped by more substantial building orders.

Bowaters and Reeds were dull.

Gilts maintained a quietly firm undertone. Golds and oils eased.

Dollar stocks were marked down as a result of Wall Street easing Tuesday.

Among Canadians, Canadian Husky, Cominco, Noranda, Pacific Pete and Imperial Oil all lost ground.

AT VANCOUVER Omega Mines, a graduate of the over-the-counter market, was listed today and gained to $8.05.

Unlisted Tuesday it was in the $7.50-$7.75 range. On the listed board today the price fluctuated from a low of $7.35 to a high of $8.10 on a turnover of 85,100 shares.

Meanwhile, the market continued a brisk 1,800,000 share pace before noon.

Gains and losses were fairly evenly divided in the mining section but losses were noticeable in the industrials and oils.

Gaining were Ace, Bethex, Copper Ridge, Lornex and Western Mines. Losses went to Coast Silver, Dynasty, Interprovincial, Silver Arrow and Territorial Uranium.

Copper Ridge was the heaviest trader at 213,800 shares, gaining .09 to .97.

Block Bros lost .50 at $18 and E.D.P. was down .12 at $23.37. Western Heritage gained .50 to $5.75.

In the oils, Bata, Stampede and Sunlite all suffered losses.

Foreign Car Sales Hike Predicted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sales of foreign cars in Canada will continue to increase in 1969, the 27th annual convention of the Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations was told Tuesday.

Bill Dalglish of London, Ont., moderator of a panel discussion on imported cars, said there is a variety of reasons for foreign car popularity in Canada.

One of the main reasons, he said, is the rising cost of car operation. Another is psychological — the decline of the auto as a status symbol with the increase in popularity of color television, high-powered boats and summer homes.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was dull today through to the close on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Thin offers in flax and rye resulted in fractional gains in a local and commission house trade. Oats and barley prices were firm to fractionally higher in oats, also a result of thin offers taken by domestic shippers.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged except for No. 1 and No. 2 Durum, up one cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures advanced three cents on the Board of Trade today under the strongest buying activity in the pit in many months.

Other grain and soybean futures were influenced to a degree by the advance of corn prices and closed on strong tones in every contract. Trade was active.

The strongest factor in the advance of corn prices was widespread precipitation over the U.S. corn belt which has delayed harvesting. As a result, hedge selling was very limited and buying active.

Japan Firm Will Assist Coal Project

TOKYO (Reuters) — Mitsui Coal Mining Co. of Japan says it is negotiating with the Kaiser Coal Co. Ltd. of Canada for the joint development of coking coal fields in Alberta. This will be the first Japanese project to develop overseas coal fields jointly with foreign interests.

The coal is known as "Barmer brand," currently being imported to Japan at the rate of about 400,000 tons a year.

Mitsui declined to reveal details of its plan, but Tokyo trade journals reported that the Canadian firm plans to cut steep coal seams using Mitsui's hydraulic mining technique.

The reports said Mitsui hopes to start a trial development early next year to test the Japanese technique.

The Japanese firm also hopes to negotiate details with Kaiser to establish a joint venture in Canada, the reports said.

Mitsui hopes to have other Japanese companies join the project to help raise funds and facilitate sales of coking coal, the reports said.

Southam Buys Montreal Paper For $9 Million

MONTREAL (CP) — Southam Press Ltd. is purchasing The Gazette Printing Co. through an exchange of $3.7 million in cash and 100,000 shares of Southam Press, it was announced Tuesday.

The boards of the two companies said The Gazette, family-owned for almost 100 years, would retain responsibility for its editorial and news policies.

Southam Press shares closed on the Toronto Stock Exchange at $53.25 a share Tuesday, establishing the purchase price for The Gazette Printing Co. at over $9 million.

The Gazette Printing Co. operates a commercial printing business as well as the 140,000-circulation morning daily and The Lakeshore News and Chronicle. Officers of the company would remain unchanged, a front page statement in the newspaper said today.

"The Gazette editorial and news policies will continue to be the responsibility of the present publisher and his staff," the Gazette's statement said.

Charles H. Peters, president of The Gazette, said the transaction was the result of a study leading to the conclusion "that the longer term future of the family-owned business of medium size will be difficult."

"With the company in sound shape at present we decided to move for future security and progress."

Mr. Peters is the grandson of Richard White who, with his brother Thomas bought The Gazette in 1870. The English-language newspaper, now in its 191st year of publication, was founded as a bilingual newspaper during the period of the American revolutionary war.

The Gazette would continue to operate "as a separate entity with its own president and board of directors and with its two divisions — newspaper publishing and job printing."

Details of the agreement would be completed by the end of the year.

Offshore Rig To Extend Oil Search

Decision to extend Shell Canada Ltd.'s west coast offshore drilling program has been made based on encouraging results from the wells drilled to date.

President Harry Bridges reported Tuesday that drilling of the company's tenth Pacific shelf wildcat was underway at the end of September.

The original two-year drilling program will expire in May and when the exploration started in May 1967 it was planned to drill 10 holes. At that time, however, the company said the program would last a minimum of two years.

Mr. Bridges said that while no oil or gas accumulations of commercial value have been discovered, "evidence of a thick sedimentary section offshore has led to a decision to extend the program in order to explore further Shell Canada's large acreage holdings in this area."

The drilling platform SEDCO 135-F is working in the Queen Charlotte Islands part of Shell's holding, currently on Shell Anglo Harlequin D-86, about 40 miles east of Cape St. James.

The previous well was plugged at a depth of 8,302 feet after drilling less than a month. It was the fifth for Hecate Strait.

SEDCO 135-F drilled the initial four wells of the program off Barkley Sound, Vancouver Island, in the first 11 months of the program.

Shell has exploration permits covering some 13 million acres.

The company has dropped the idea of developing large reserves of the Athabasca tar sands, although technical investigations will continue.

It will not drill in the 1.2 million acre site on the Mackenzie River delta area of the Northwest Territories until results of a drilling venture in Tununuk are known. Shell, Imperial Oil Ltd., and British American Oil Co. Ltd., of Toronto, are conducting a joint program at Tununuk.

Planned drilling off Nova Scotia will begin next fall.

UP, UP, UP AND INTO PLACE goes the first wall section of a new Alcock, Downing & Wright wholesale plumbing warehouse under construction on Garbally Road. The 8,000-square-foot $60,000 building will be ready for occupation in December. "Building with pre-cast concrete is fast and economical," said local manager John Bergin. "This is the second new warehouse of the type designed and built by the company. The entire design is geared to provide speedy access and egress for our customers to whom, with labor costs so high, time means a great deal of money." No date has been set for the official opening but Mr. Bergin said company president Jim Alexander would be on hand to cut the ribbon in December.

Insurance Trend Seen

A change in individual Canadians' preference for life insurance is foreseen as a result of Finance Minister Benson's tax amendments.

Harry Seed, president of Vancouver-based Seaboard Life Insurance Co., said a trend to equity-life insurance programs stimulated by inflation may be further accelerated through a desire to put savings into plans offering potential capital gains, as yet non-taxable in Canada.

He also forecast wider dispersal of insurance company surplus funds and greater interest in registered retirement savings plans, also deductible from taxable income.

Mr. Benson said insurance companies would be subject to a 15-per-cent tax on income from investment portfolios, a move which Mr. Seed likened to a similar move by the U.S. government in 1961.

But the Canadian tax will not be as severe as the American one, and he felt there was less likelihood of it being passed on to policy holders through premium payments. There was little evidence of this happening in the U.S.

The executive made one reservation in his comments, that it was not quite clear whether Mr. Benson intends the tax to apply to investment gains or just earnings.

If the government follows the taxation pattern applied to mutual fund companies, then the recently introduced option of providing both stock equities and insurance protection in single premium payments may become more popular. Seaboard was a pioneer in this field and it is being taken up by other major companies.

Registered retirement savings plans, which have been popular with higher income people because of the tax advantage, will likely be found more favorable to other income levels, Mr. Seed said.

Money set aside in this way is tax exempt until it is drawn as a pension. When the individual reaches retirement age, he often takes lump payment, rolling the sum over into annuities.

Referring to changes in depletion allowance application that will affect Canadian mining and the petroleum industry, Canadian Petroleum Association B.C. manager Bert McGillivray felt the reform may aggravate the competitive position of Canada with the U.S.

U.S. companies are allowed more tax relief in the acquisition of new properties, giving them an advantage over Canadian companies desiring to obtain a wider exploration base, and with the result that American control of the Canadian oil and gas industry is encouraged.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07 1/16 for cheques, $1.06¾ for cash, $1.05¾ for silver. Sales were $1.07¾ for cheques and $1.07¾ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.07 9/32. Pound sterling was up 3/16 at $2.56 9/16.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was up 1/64 at 93 23/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was up 3/32 at $2.39 9/64.

Trust Companies Uncertain About Estate Taxation

Relief to family principals in the new budget's approach to estate taxes is generally acknowledged by local trust companies.

But the full effect has not been judged in what some officers refer to as sweeping reforms in gift and inheritance taxation.

A widow, under the amendments, will not have to pay tax on her husband's estate, nor a husband on the death of his wife. But other beneficiaries are still subject to inheritance tax.

One spokesman, Montreal Trust Co. manager Robert D. Ferguson, thought it unusual that the government had become "more personal" in its approach to successors.

"I suppose it is a good thing to favor close relatives in the sense that it favors the family as a unit. But if we gain in one area we seem to have to pay in another," he said.

The implication of provincial succession duties, as in B.C., makes the problem of estate duties more intricate, remarked John Bayne, of Royal Trust.

National Trust Co. Ltd. manager G. B. Empey, said any lightening of the load is commendable, but without more detailed information he said he could draw no conclusions.

Department Store Techniques in Flux

Special to the Times

MONTREAL — Direct factory-to-customer shipment of merchandise bought at department stores will expand in the next decade, according to a T. Eaton Co. Ltd. executive.

Donald James Hudson, 38, merchandise manager for the 15 Ontario department stores of the Toronto-based company, said direct shipments will be one of several developments in retailing.

Others include charges for some deliveries, restrictions on others. Eaton's has been requesting customers to carry small packages for some time.

Department store operations will become more centralized and directed at a distance through market research, inventory control and computer techniques.

Service Declining

Mr. Hudson told the Canadian regional convention of the International Council of Shopping Centres that some department store service has been poor.

"Rising costs have placed tremendous pressure on retailers in the immediate past and service has suffered."

He said stores will try to improve it, not by hiring more staff, but by better deployment of sales staff. There will be a spread of self-service for goods that lend themselves to it and better personal service for items like clothing.

Retailers will be unable to handle all products on the market. "Retailers will have a greater and greater influence on the success of new and old products as they strive to keep their inventories in line by cutting back on assortments and only offering the best selling lines."

More Researching

More market research will be needed to match inventories and varieties to customer needs and more department changes to gain a correct mixture.

Stores will cut back their morning hours in favor of more night shopping, holiday and Sunday shopping, "with the usual resistance being experienced as has occurred with night openings."

A growing body of more educated young customers will force changes in advertising. "Perhaps better educated people will not respond or will respond negatively to the way we as retailers have conducted our business in these areas in the past.

"In terms of media, TV and to some degree radio will become stronger as the retail industry learns to use these media more effectively and as they become even more dominant in our life.

"However, where newspapers are still strong, such as in Montreal and Toronto, this medium will remain dominant in retail advertising in the nineteen seventies."

More advertising will be aimed at apartment dwellers and young married couples.

A Critical Look

Mr. Hudson said apartment superintendents hamper market research because they don't allow unauthorized people in buildings.

He urged taking a critical look at how national population trends relate to the local area. "Though the growing young element is the most noteworthy factor, do not overlook the absolute numbers of people in all categories—they are increasing with the rising population.

There will be 220,000 marriages in 1976, compared with 155,000 in 1966. "Marriages will also tend to be more evenly distributed throughout the year — the June bride is becoming a legend if she hasn't already."

Urban markets will continue as the major retail growth areas but will be dominated by the suburban ring. "Not because shopping centres do a better job of retailing but because the customer is there."

PORT PLANNED FOR INDUSTRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Wenman, Social Credit MLA for Delta, said Tuesday the B.C. government is considering proposals for the development of oil, chemical and automobile assembly plants at the Roberts Bank deepsea port site.

Mr. Wenman also said other forms of heavy industry are being suggested for the proposed port 20 miles south of Vancouver.

He described the oil, chemical and automobile assembly plant proposals as detailed and concrete plans "that are being carefully studied."

Firms Face Tightening

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulations to tighten control of depletion allowances granted to petroleum and mining companies were announced Tuesday night by Finance Minister Benson.

He said in his budget speech that existing regulations make it possible for groups of companies to get much greater benefits than were intended.

Depletion allowances — generally a write-off of 33 1-3 per cent — now are allowed on the production profits of a mining or petroleum company.

The production profits are figured after deducting exploration and development costs.

Mr. Benson said some large corporations charge all exploration and development costs to a subsidiary company, while saving all the depletion allowances for another subsidiary company.

Under the proposed changes, all exploration and development expenses of the corporate group must be deducted before any depletion allowances are claimed.

Crown Z. Earnings

Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. reports net income of $8.3 million for the first nine months of 1968, compared with $7.1 million for the comparable period last year.

Sales, however, were down to $131.3 million compared with $132.2 million in the first nine months of 1967.

President Robert G. Rogers said sales were improved by higher prices for lumber and logs, with demand strong, but were partly offset by a drop in newsprint production and lower prices for pulp shipped to offshore markets.

Shell Earns $1.18

Shell Canada Ltd. Tuesday reported net earnings of $39.08 million or $1.18 a class A common share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1968, compared with $35.49 million or $1.07 for the similar period last year.

The company attributed the increase in earnings to higher sales, improved prices for sulphur and increased production of natural gas and gas liquids.

Imperial Oil Ltd.

Imperial Oil Ltd. had net earnings of $70 million or $2.17 a share for the first nine months of this year compared with $69 million or $2.15 a share for the corresponding period in 1967, the company said. Higher costs offset increased production and sales.

Alberta Rights Sale Brings $1,830,905

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government received $1,830,905 in a sale of drilling reservations of the petroleum and natural gas rights.

Highest price paid was $808,960 by Mobil Oil and Shell (Canada) Ltd. for a parcel of 11,520 acres in the Edson area 150 miles west of Edmonton.

Champlin Petroleum and Canadian Pacific Oil and Gas paid $450,330 for 9,280 acres in the Edson area.

Ottawa Plea To All Provinces—Hold Down Shared Costs

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Tuesday he will ask the provinces for help to hold down the hard-to-control costs of federal-provincial joint programs when he meets provincial treasurers and finance ministers early next month.

He said federal and provincial health ministers would also attend the meeting and discuss means of streamlining and making more efficient the health services available through the use of modern systems analysis and operational research.

Noting that spending by all governments had risen from $8.7 billion to $21.2 billion in the 10 years from 1957 to 1967, Mr. Benson called control of public spending a central problem today.

Such shared-cost measures as aid to post-secondary education, hospital insurance and welfare payments under the Canada Assistance Plan, he said, had been among the hardest to control.

He defended medicare as a "matter of high priority" but said that it would cost the federal government $335 million in the coming fiscal year if all provinces joined the plan as he hoped they would.

As an example of the "phenomenal" increase in the cost of joint programs, Mr. Benson cited federal government aid to post-secondary education.

In the 1965-66 fiscal year, he said, it had cost Ottawa about $40 million, including Quebec's share which was taken in the form of a tax abatement.

"This year the equivalent fiscal transfer and cash payments to the provinces are estamated at about $500 million, more than 12 times what they were three years ago."

The cost of the hospital insurance program was increasing at a rate of more than 15 per cent a year, Mr. Benson said, but Canada Assistance Plan payments, although large, did not carry the same rapid built-in cost increases.

Mr. Benson said Ottawa was ready to discuss questions related to medicare at the coming meeting with the provinces.

But he made it clear that the government remains committed to the program.

He said that because medical fees had been substantially increased in recent years, "the new medicare programs should not run into cost increases as large as those of hospital insurance, for example."

Mr. Benson said only a fraction of the cost of medicare would represent a new demand on the economy.

"New government expenditures for medical care will be mainly replacing payments by individuals for the same purpose or payments made through existing private or public plans," he explained.

No Simple Solution To Fight Inflation

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Benson warned Tuesday a "great danger" exists that continued prosperity in 1969 could bring pressures that will set off a new round of price and cost increases. Firm policies to resist inflation are required.

●

"The most urgent need now is to check further the continuing increase in prices and living costs," said the minister in his budget speech.

There appeared to have been some easing of inflationary pressures in recent months, but there was little evidence that the damaging upward spiral of prices and costs had been effectively broken.

He cautioned everyone not to delude themselves into thinking the choice is between either policies of fiscal ease to counter unemployment or policies of fiscal restraint to fight inflation.

It was not that simple, he said.

"In our present circumstances, unchecked inflation would precipitate the kind of economic disruption in which unemployment would surely increase and we would end up with more of both evils," he said.

●

Achieving greater price stability required action on many fronts.

"Our fiscal policy must avoid excess demand on production and markets and keep producers constantly aware of the need to compete vigorously and to prevent cost increases. We need to exercise a wider responsibility to promote competition and minimize restraints on trade," Mr. Benson said.

He called on management to do all it can to improve efficiency and productivity.

"Workers and governments must co-operate to ensure better training and mobility of the labor force. Business and governments must anticipate bottlenecks and shortages and plan production and demands to minimize them in every way possible," he said.

●

Over the long term the provinces must plan and provide better education.

"Finally we must, I feel, do all we can to persuade those who enjoy strong market power to exercise it with due restraint, taking the public interest fully into account. This will require the use of public education, special inquiries into inflationary situations and the mobilizing of public opinion against practices and actions which endanger the maintenance of price stability."

●

Mr. Benson said Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Ronald Basford will say more of plans and measures to combat inflationary cost increases when he takes part in the budget debate.

The finance minister emphasized that the rapid rise in the price level on the scale experienced in recent years has many "serious and damaging effects."

FIRST: It is most unfair to those — mainly the older people and the poor — who do not possess the bargaining power necessary to protect themselves against the increase in the cost of living.

●

SECOND: Rapid price increases undermine the whole basis of our economic structure and competitive market system. A flexible price system cannot operate properly to allocate resources for maximum production and income unless the price level as a whole is reasonably stable, he said.

THIRD: Serious inflation erodes gradually but also surely the competitive position of producers, both in other countries with whom Canada must trade and in our own markets at home.

●

FOURTH: It makes people and the institutions through whom they invest their money, increasingly reluctant to lend money except at high interest rates and in decreasing amounts. Yet the growth and development of our economy requires the large scale investment of savings in the form of mortgages and bonds fixed in terms of money.

These securities are the only means open to home-owners, school boards, municipalities and governments to borrow funds needed for housing and for all public purposes essential in a modern society. Unlike large corporations, none of these borrowers can sell equity shares, but their increasing role in the capital markets means that even a moderate degree of inflation poses a larger problem than ever before, said Mr. Benson.

●

In deciding on an over-all fiscal strategy for 1968 and 1969 the government must take into account both the financial prospects and the broad economic situation. The government, after doing just that, has reached the conclusion that it must raise substantially more revenues in order to bring the budget into balance in 1969-70, he said.

'Just Plain Damn Dirty Tactics . . .'

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Benson has used "just plain damn dirty tactics" by calling the two-per-cent increase in income taxes a Social Development Tax, the executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council said today.

"It is most unfair and most inaccurate because the budget does not say there is any social welfare program or development program to go with such a tax," said Reuben Baetz.

He said the title is part of a campaign by the federal government to discredit social welfare programs and to condition the public against the financing of any further social welfare programs.

WHEN YOU PAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective dates of budget tax changes announced Tuesday night:

Budget Described As a 'Bitter Pill'

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Real Caouette has likened the federal budget's effect on the little people to "the torture of boiling frogs in a pot."

Seen through New Democratic eyes it is "Benson's boomerang."

The Conservatives view it as savagery, a major misfortune and, at best, a bitter pill.

Burden

In short, Finance Minister Benson's maiden effort failed to touch the minds and hearts of the collective opposition.

Undoubtedly Mr. Caouette produced the most intriguing analogy.

He thought the complex document was devious in that the little people would see the two per cent "social development tax" as their major burden.

Not so, he contended. Instead the entire package of budget proposals aimed at other segments of the economy would eventually filter down to burden the shoulders of the ordinary chap.

"The government is proceeding as one who wants to kill a frog in boiling water," the Creditiste leader said.

"You don't just drop it in boiling water—that would be too cruel," he explained.

Far Cry

"Instead, you put the frog in fresh water in a pot and then bring it quietly to a boil."

That, in his view, is what the government is planning for the ordinary person.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield termed the budget a major misfortune.

"It is a very far cry from the assurances given in Parliament last winter and through the election campaign that the budget would be balanced," the Tory leader said.

He noted that even with increased taxation the deficit could not be kept below $600 million.

"And I haven't any confidence in next year's spending estimates in view of the lack of accuracy this year," Mr. Stanfield said.

He said the two per cent social development tax on basic income would place a substantial burden on all people.

But the fact that it has a ceiling of $120 will mean that people with low and moderate incomes will pay a larger proportion than the wealthy, Mr. Stanfield said.

Old Direction

"It is certainly very different from what we were led to expect from a government that was supposed to take off in a new direction—it's the same old direction," he said.

New Democrat financial spokesman Max Saltsman said the budget was a display of a "fine medieval mind."

"It is really a pre-Keynsian, chamber of commerce approach which pays no attention to modern economics by which budgets could be used as an instrument of growth," Mr. Saltsman said.

"There is no evidence that Mr. Benson will be successful in fighting inflation, but he is asking us to pay an enormous cost for this little experiment in balancing the budget," he added.

Departures

The two per cent increase was a far departure from any concept of the just society, he said.

Mr. Saltsman said this year's deficit is not large enough and an NDP government would run deficits both this year and next.

"This will be known as Benson's boomerang," he concluded.

Conservative financial critic Marcel Lambert traced the disaster of the budget back to former Finance Minister Walter Gordon's "60 days of decision" when the Liberals regained power in 1963.

'Savage'

"What we saw tonight was a savage budget and there must be a horrendous deficit when it has to be made up in a period of 18 months," he said.

He noted that the Liberals had been boasting of a balanced budget for some time because they had terrific computers to ensure the accuracy of their estimates.

"Apparently the computers were out to lunch, or the people who were manning those computers were out to lunch," Mr. Lambert said.

"After all no computer is any better than the brains and the hands setting up the program."

He concluded that the just society had flown out the window.

Duty Lower On Horses, Liver, Eggs

OTTAWA (CP) — Customs duties on horses and pate de foie gras are moving down.

So are tariffs on eggs, maple syrup, coffee, some fish and cooking gas under revised tariff schedules presented to the Commons Tuesday night as part of Finance Minister Benson's budget.

First item in the long list shows duty on a horse will decline in annual stages until it can enter free Jan. 1, 1972, compared with the present charge of $6.25.

Pate de foie gras—a goose-liver delicacy—or lark pates are to enter free immediately whereas duty now is 7½ per cent.

Protection against egg imports in various forms also is being progressively lowered in some situations—for example, after 1971 to seven cents a pound from 9.4 cents on whole and frozen eggs from most-favored-nation trading partners.

COFFEE DUTY

Maple sugar and syrup, subject now to 12-per-cent duty if shipped from a Commonwealth country or 14 per cent from a most-favored partner such as the United States, will enter free from either starting Jan. 1, 1972.

Duty on roasted or ground coffee, now two cents a pound from the Commonwealth and four cents from most-favored countries, becomes a straight two cents from both sources when the budget becomes law.

Some categories of mackerel, herring and salmon will enter free starting in 1972, after progressive tariff reductions from the present half-cent a pound.

Insurance Firms Lose Special Tax Concessions

OTTAWA (CP)—Special tax concessions that permit the life insurance industry in Canada to pay far lower taxes than other businesses should be ended, Finance Minister Benson said Tuesday night.

He proposed in his budget speech that the life insurance industry be taxed in general the same as any other industry. However, he specified a number of suggested rules to take into account the companies' responsibilities to policyholders.

He also proposed that policyholders who make a profit by cashing in or selling a policy be taxed on this additional income. It would apply only to income accruing to the policy after today.

SHAREHOLDERS

Benson noted that the life insurance industry now is taxed only on amounts set aside for shareholders during the year.

This was only a small fraction of the business income of shareholder-owned companies, and it allowed mutual companies and fraternal organizations to escape.

The proposed changes—and the industry is to be consulted in drawing up some of the regulations—would increase total revenues in the next fiscal year by about $35,000,000, including $10,000,000 for the provinces.

In 1967, the companies paid less than $3,000,000 in taxes.

PREMIUMS MAY RISE

Benson admitted that applying income tax rules to the industry may cause a "moderate increase" in premium rates of new policies and a "moderate reduction" in policy dividends to be paid in future on many outstanding participating policies.

"On balance, however, the gain in revenue to us and to the provinces and the gain in equity in treating different channels of savings more fairly would outweigh the disadvantages."

The changes could even help the industry, he suggested, by removing the uncertainties about its tax situation which has been hanging over its head for years.

"It could lead to new combinations of basic insurance protection and savings in various forms, perhaps making more effective use of the provisions for registered retirement savings plans."

These proposals mark the first implementation of recommendations in the 1967 report of the Carter royal commission on taxation.

Benson said a change is needed in handling the case of a policyholder who cashes in or sells his policy before he dies because this return can represent real investment income.

POLICY PROCEEDS

The amount which would be added to his taxable income would be the proceeds from the policy less what it cost the holder.

For policies already in existence, the taxpayer would be able to use as his cost to date the cash surrender value of his policy on its next anniversary.

That would ensure that the tax would apply only to investment income earned on the policy after today, the finance minister said.

SPECIAL RULES

He proposed special rules to cover bringing the industry under corporation tax regulations because of problems in measuring its income.

One would deal with deductions to be allowed the companies to provide for their policy reserves.

These reserves are made up of amounts set aside from premiums received from policyholders to build up funds to pay benefits.

Details on how these reserves are to be computed are to be set out in regulations drawn up with the help of the industry.

Major Changes Involve Estate And Gift Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Immediate sweeping reforms in estate and gift taxes were announced in the budget speech Tuesday night by Finance Minister Benson.

The change of greatest importance exempts completely property passing outright to a widow or widower upon the death of the spouse. This occurs with one of every four estates.

The new provision replaces the existing exemption of $80,000 when there is a surviving widow or a surviving infirm widower with a dependent child.

The major exemption and a series of others mean that fewer people will pay the two taxes. Revenue to the federal and provincial governments will remain about the same because higher rates will apply to property and gifts still ruled taxable.

For example, the new top rate of gift tax will be 75 per cent instead of 28 per cent.

One other important exemption will apply in certain cases where property is transferred at death in the form of a trust.

This would include a trust under which only the spouse has the right to use the property or the income from it. Such property has been subject to tax on the death of the person leaving the trust.

However, trust property exempted on the death of the first spouse will be included in the estate of the surviving spouse when he or she dies.

The changes apply in respect to deaths after midnight Tuesday.

BROADER MEANING

Under the new gift tax, gifts from a person to his spouse will be exempt, the meaning of "gift" will be broadened, rates will be increased, and a cumulative concept for additional gifts will be applied.

The changes in the estate and gift taxes are, in effect, a rejection of the Carter royal commission's contention that gifts and property transfers should be included in income like other items.

New estate tax exemptions will also apply to children, as follows:

- $10,000 for a child of the deceased person, regardless of the child's age.
- An additional $1,000 a year for each healthy child for each year until the child reaches 26. The maximum under this provision is $25,000 and amounts are reduced if the child earns more than $5,000 for each of three years.
- An additional $1,000 a year, with a $30,000 limit, for an infirm, wholly dependent child until he reaches 71.

Existing exemptions are $15,000 for an orphaned child and $10,000 for each child when there is a surviving widow or infirm widowed. There is no exemption for children when there is a surviving, healthy widower.

Because of the new exemptions, the general exemption applying where there is no surviving widow or infirm widower is reduced to $20,000 from $40,000.

The taxable value of an estate is affected immediately by any gifts made after tonight—one of the links that will bind estate and gift tax provisions more closely.

A transfer of property by a husband during his lifetime to a simple trust paying income to his wife will be exempt of gift tax.

However, the assets in the trust will be included in the wife's estate on her death. The same provisions apply to transfers from a wife to her husband.

The gift-tax rates of up to 75 per cent will be graduated to make gift taxes about the same as the estate taxes otherwise payable at death.

The changes repeal the present exemption of $4,000 or one-half of the amount of the donor's previous year's taxable income less the income tax thereon.

The old system was judged unfair because a single gift of, say $10,000 was subject to more tax than two gifts of $5,000 in successive years.

HOW IT AFFECTS YOU

OTTAWA (CP) — Following tables illustrate the effect on three classes of taxpayers of Finance Minister Benson's social development tax of two per cent on taxable income.

In each table, columns of figures show:

First, total income.

Second, present combined federal and provincial tax, including temporary surtax and old age security tax, in all provinces except Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The taxpayer is assumed to be taking the standard deduction of $100 for medical expenses and charitable donations.

Third, proposed surtax.

'SOAK THE RICH?' 'NOT YET,' HE SAYS

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson said Tuesday night after presenting his new budget to Parliament that he was prepared to "soak the rich" with his new 2 per cent social development tax.

But he added at a news conference that he put a $120 limit on what each taxpayer would pay because that has been the basic limit on similar taxes in the past.

Why did he not "soak the rich" by putting the limit at $360 or higher?

"That's okay by me," Mr. Benson said. "But $120 is the figure that has prevailed in similar taxes in the past. It started at $60 when the old-age security tax was first introduced, and that's now $240 a year."

Mr. Benson said there will be a major tax reform measure before Parliament next fall, to take effect in 1970.

"I wanted to do as much as I could now, without getting too far into the whole subject of tax reform."

'ALL OUR TAX JUST TO PAY INTEREST'

Premier Bennett today said it isn't just the federal budget that is unbalanced.

He cited the record of 12 federal deficits in 12 years and NDP financial critic Max Saltsman's argument against balancing next year's budget as proof that "these fuzzy-thinking leftists — the Liberals and socialist NDP — are unbalanced."

The deficits piled up during prosperous years mean that the first $1.3 billion collected in the new budget will go to paying interest charges on the national debt, he said.

"If these unbalanced leftists have their way much longer, pretty soon it will take all our taxes just to pay the debt interest."

'Status Quo' Maintained, Says Labor

Larry Ryan, Victoria Labor Council secretary, said "the disgraceful situation of poverty in Canada is allowed to persist" in the federal budget brought down Tuesday.

He said today there is little in the budget to justify Prime Minister Trudeau's "pre-election stance of a new, dynamic and more just society".

The best criteria for judging the budget could be found in the last Economic Council of Canada review.

The review suggested that government fiscal policies should embrace the principle of establishing "an acceptable minimum standard of living," for both familes and individuals, Mr. Ryan said.

"The budget does nothing on this count.

"In fact the priciple is set back, the status quo maintained," he said.

Finance Minister Benson "treads lightly" over the Carter commission taxation report, "backing away from the capital gains tax . . ."

SPECIAL TREATMENT

At the same time, the budget continues "to grant special tax treatment to mining and oil companies while soaking the little man in the high-sounding name of social development."

Mr. Ryan said that, "in the main, the budget perpetuates existing disparities."

In Vancouver, E. T. Staley, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said that income tax measures in the budget are geared to suit the rich and hit the poor.

He said the $120 ceiling on the social development tax "is utterly ridiculous."

"Instead of setting a ceiling of $120 as the upper limit," the government should have said that a person "with a taxable income over x number of dollars should pay that tax."

'OVERTAXED'

This would exempt a person making from $5,000 to $7,000 who, "in my opinion is already overtaxed on the basis of his earnings."

Mr. Staley was also critical of the provision to exclude medical bills paid under approved medical care plans as an exemption.

"I am certainly not happy with this because a person with medical bills has additional costs," especially persons who are ill for a long period.

"This is going to hit the wage earner and family man, especially in the lower income bracket which is still high enough to pay income tax."

First Move In Reform Of System

OTTAWA (CP)—The first elements of thorough-going reform in Canada's tax system arrived with the budget delivered Tuesday night by Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

Stepped-up taxation of insurance companies, banks and mortgage loan companies, changes in gift and estate taxes, and more complete reporting of interest and dividend payments all spell a different tax approach.

But as Mr. Benson said the various changes "stand on their own."

The reforms to be presented as a draft bill early next year will be inseparable.

They will deal primarily with corporation and personal income taxes and the way they will be "shared" by the federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Benson hinted at a post-budget news conference that some form of "single taxes" may wipe out tax-sharing as it now is known.

THEY TRIED

John Diefenbaker, the former Conservative prime minister, and Mitchell Sharp, Mr. Benson's predecessor in finance, both tried to reinterpret the tax-sharing concept in a way to suggest that the federal and provincial income taxes are separate levies.

Mr. Sharp said each level of government should be responsible for its income taxes and for adjusting them as necessary to meet expenditures.

The provinces have demanded that the federal government continue to make "tax room," reducing its corporate and personal income taxes to permit provincial increases without adding to total taxes levied.

This is the area of toughest political sledding for the government next year and Mr. Benson is not counting on getting his new system in effect before 1970.

'Ambitious, But Not Gregarious'

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar John Benson, 45, is a picture of unstudied calm at the centre of the Trudeau government.

In one step, in presenting his first federal budget, Mr. Benson is getting more public attention than at any time in his six years of political life. Yet he helped make the major decisions of the Pearson government, and his choice last spring as finance minister was predictable.

VOICED AMBITION

The story goes that in 1962 when he left his role as accountant and commerce professor at Queen's University to enter politics, Mr. Benson declared an ambition to become finance minister.

He says he was only joking, but he must have been at least half-serious.

He won the Kingston riding by 3,229 votes, spent a year in opposition, and after the 1963 election became parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Walter Gordon. He was the only secretary personally chosen by a minister rather than by Prime Minister Pearson.

In 1964 he was named revenue minister, and in 1968 added a second portfolio as president of the treasury board.

Relaxed and comfortable in all these jobs, he introduced new techniques of cost management and turned up two settlements in collective bargaining with federal employees.

Mr. Benson concedes he is ambitious—"I didn't intend to sit on the back bench"—but he is not gregarious. Other ministers typically emerge from federal-provincial conferences and hold court with reporters; Mr. Benson tends to slide shyly away.

In a smaller group, the finance minister is an engaging conversationalist, retains other people's first names well, and likes to be called Ben.

"I don't mind debating," he said in a pre-budget interview. "And I don't mind appearing publicly and saying things if I have something to say. But I don't like glad-handing.

"Actually, I like work."

That means operating from 8:30 a.m. until the Commons rises, which is after 10 p.m. three days a week.

MARRIED DUTCH GIRL

Weekends, Mr. Benson tries to get away to Kingston, 110 miles by road from Ottawa, to be with his wife, the former Marie Louise van Laar of Holland, whom he brought home as a war bride in 1946.

He spent three years as an artillery officer between 1941 and 1946 in Britain, France, Holland and Germany. They have three sons and a daughter.

Mr. Benson is heavy-set and mostly bald, an inveterate pipe-smoker who likes an occasional drink of rye. He has a knack for explaining complicated problems in simple terms, and makes a quick decision on a matter once economic and political considerations are spelled out.

Revised Tariff Rates

OTTAWA (CP) A revised system of levying duties on imported chemicals is part of a wide-range housekeeping job on Canada's tariffs presented Tuesday night in the budget.

Changes for chemicals have the effect of dropping the rate against some imports and wiping out the statutory free-entry category for some Commonwealth-preference items.

However, provision for lowering duties by government regulation is expected to leave most British and Commonwealth chemicals with a wide margin of preference.

TRADE-FREEING

The revision of tariffs results largely from trade-freeing agreements reached in May 1967, at the Kennedy Round of talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—named for the late U.S. president.

New measures introduced in the budget included the tariff schedules for chemicals and plastics.

For chemicals, the change abolishes the distinction between imports that match products made in Canada and those not duplicated by Canadian manufacturers.

CHEMICAL RATES

New general rates applied to chemicals are a maximum 10 per cent for Commonwealth-preference imports and 15 per cent for imports from trading partners designated most favored nations.

On paper, the changes constitute an increase to 10 per cent from free entry for some Commonwealth chemicals not duplicated in Canada and a reduction to 10 per cent from 15 per cent for Canadian-duplicated items from the Commonwealth.

For most-favored-nation imports, the maximum rate remains the same for chemicals not duplicated in Canada and the rate declines to 15 per cent from a range of 15-20 per cent for competing chemicals.

On plastics, Benson proposed higher rates through a wide range of products to allow for protection of new plastics manufactures in Canada.

DEFENCE COSTS SOARING HIGHER

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence spending shot up $114,000,000 in the last fiscal year to $1,751,000,000.

This is just $5,000,000 under the post-war high of 1956-57.

And no relief appears in sight despite original government arguments that unification of the armed forces would save $100,000,000 a year for five years in a row, or a total of $500,000,000.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson in his budget speech Tuesday night estimated defence spending in the current fiscal year at $1,746,000,000 or $8,000,000 under the 1967-68 figure.

Only a month ago, the government forecast defence expenditures in the current fiscal year at $1,714,000,000 or $32,000,000 below the budget figure.

Early next year, the government will present a 1969-70 defence budget which may be a peacetime record.

PROMISES PAY BOOST

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux has already said there will be a pay increase for the armed forces—now numbering about 100,000 personnel compared with 123,000 five years ago—on top of the 14-per-cent boost granted in the last two years.

Moreover, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and in particular two of its members, the United States and Britain, are putting pressure on Canada not to reduce its military strength, especially in Europe.

The major defence costs are for maintenance of the armed forces: Pay, accommodation, fuel and the like.

The amount for this purpose in the last fiscal year was $1,237,000,000 or $54,000,000 more than in 1966-67.

It had been argued that unification would reduce such costs. The money saved could be spent on weapons and equipment. The reverse has happened.

While housekeeping costs have increased, spending on equipment in the current fiscal year is estimated at $272,000,000 or $33,000,000 less than in 1967-68.

Plane Fault Delays Astronauts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 7 astronauts returned here today to begin reliving for experts their 11-day journey in space. Their arrival was delayed in in-flight problems with a conventional aircraft.

The plane carrying U.S. Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. developed a leak in its hydraulic system and had to return to the flight deck of the aircraft carrier Essex.

"Sorry about that, sir," a ship's officer told Schirra as the astronaut switched to another plane.

"That's all right," said the man who Tuesday finished flying 4,500,000 miles in space with two other astronauts. "I've got to get my flight time in somehow."

A second plane, carrying Schirra's fellow Apollo 7 crew members—Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham—circled overhead so that the arrival of the three at the Cape would coincide.

It was the first time the astronauts had set foot on land since they blasted off Oct. 11 from a Saturn 1-B launch pad here.

Someone Enjoys It . . . After You Die

OTTAWA (CP) — The battle to balance the federal budget once again is being waged in the little man's wallet.

More than half the revenue produced by new taxes announced Tuesday night will come from a personal income tax increase that will hit average brackets hardest.

For the man in the street, the only major change that entails a benefit requires him to die before someone can enjoy it.

It involves estate taxes, exempting from taxation as of today all amounts left outright by a man to his wife or vice versa—including pension and annuity benefits.

Mr. Benson made it clear however that any loss of taxes will be made up by raising rates on the rest of the estate.

Meanwhile, an additional tax of two per cent on taxable income will come into effect Jan. 1. Of the $345,000,000 Mr. Benson hopes to collect with new taxes in 1969-70, this one alone will provide an estimated $440,000,000.

It has a ceiling of $120 reached by married men at the $10,000 income level and bachelors at the $7,300 level. Anyone earning more in these categories will still pay $120.

It will cost a married man in the $5,000 bracket with two children 90 cents a week. Dubbed the Social Development Tax, it will reach into the nether income regions to hit bachelors earning $2,000 a year for an additional $19, childless couples with an income of $2,300 for an extra $8, and families of four with an income of $3,300 for $16.

Revenue ministers previously hadn't bothered with bank accounts paying interest of less than $100 a year but now the limit is being dropped to $10.

Steps are being taken to have amounts of more than $10 reported and listed as taxable income.

Future "investment gains" made by cashing in or selling insurance policies also will have to be put down as taxable income.

As provinces enter the federal medical care insurance program, payments for medical treatment will be excluded as exemptions for tax purposes.

Altitude-Born Novice Found Mexican Gold

This is the last of a series of four articles on the Olympic Games, written for the Daily Times by Roger Bannister, famous British athlete, who was the first runner to break the four-minute barrier for the mile.

By ROGER BANNISTER

MEXICO CITY — Distance events on the track at Mexico City last week were just as expected by most people, except members of the International Olympic Committee. More of a fiasco than a fiesta.

As athletes collapsed near the finishing line, white-coated medical attendants rushed to their aid with oxygen masks while television cameras hovered over the prostrate figures like vultures.

It was a farce of almost Wellesian proportions instead of sport. Ron Clarke, the greatest distance runner in the world and one of the bravest too, said after his collapse in the 10,000 metres: "This isn't the Olympics. It's a triangular match between Kenya, Ethiopia and Mexico."

In more than 20 years of watching athletics, I've only once seen a more harrowing sight, Jim Peters' collapse in the marathon at Vancouver. Last week Clarke battled for more than six miles not against his fellow competitors but against the altitude. That he and many others should have been put in this ridiculous position leaves me practically speechless with anger. For an important minority the Games have been an embittering and painful experience. I can speak for this minority because, but for an accident of birth and age, I might have run under these conditions myself.

Looking back, it is easy to see how it all happened. The Mexicans have many charming characteristics which, as their guest, I can appreciate. But in their enthusiasm to hold the Games here, they failed to tell the truth. I now realise that Mexicans not infrequently fail to tell the whole truth because sometimes, rather delightfully, they think the truth may hurt a little. The truth about Mexico's altitude hurt a lot. It hurt Clarke and 20 more runners in the first three days of the Games until I lost count of the number of collapses.

Doubtless the IOC halfheartedly queried the Mexicans on the suitability of the site, but they should have known that Mexican pride made all discussions of risks impossible. The Mexicans were then charged to proceed by the IOC and together any dissenting voices were suppressed by a misplaced sense of chivalry.

Analysing the results of the distance races, a farcical pattern is observed. First and most serious, a number of athletic careers have been shattered and several great athletes, after collapsing, like Britain's steeplechaser Maurice Herriott, are unlikely to run again. Second, the order of finishing, quite apart from the slow time of the races, so favored those born at altitude to make a mockery of fair sport. Incidentally, in the sprints we are now saddled with new world records that cannot for years be equalled at sea level.

The subtleties and idiosyncracies of adaption to altitude are very complex. The best summary is to say that to win you must be born at altitude and leave it at that. All short-term attempts at adjustment by sea-level athletes are of an unpredictable, precarious and inefficient kind. Last week we watched the tiny country, Kenya, flower as the greatest producer of distance runners in the world. As their rivals collapsed at the tape, the Kenyans just continued running up the ramp which led out of the stadium with an almost contemptuous ease. They seem able to suck oxygen into the muscle from the blood at a lower oxygen pressure.

They belong to the Kalengiau ethnic group, which includes the Masai, and were warrior tribesmen who later settled to cultivate land. In physique they have long legs in proportion to trunk length, producing great stride length and power in proportion to their weight.

Their chests, hearts and lungs are not strikingly larger. They run from childhood. Naftali Temu, winner of the 10,000 metres, regularly ran four miles home from school each day to avoid a drenching in the afternoon thunderstorm.

There have been lessons learned about the best way to run races at altitude. The early part of the race must be run slowly to avoid an early oxygen debt that can never be cleared. Ron Hill followed this advice in the 10,000 metres and ran bravely to achieve seventh place behind Ron Clarke.

The sea-level athlete cannot tolerate an increase in pace even later in the race. When, in the 19th lap, Hill went into the lead his legs and chest started to ache and he was forced to drop back. The Kenyans and Ethiopians then strode away and a last lap of 57 seconds shook off everybody except Gammoudi of Tunisia and Martinez of Mexico, both "altitude" runners. Clarke's collapse at the end of the 10,000 metres had all the features of circulatory failure.

Although he was unconscious for 10 minutes, his physical recovery was very rapid. His psychological recovery owes a lot to Franz Stampfl, who was his original coach. Stampfl told Clarke before he ran two days later in the 5,000 metres: "No one can predict what will happen in the next race, but you have been through the worst in the 10,000 metres. To stand a chance, you must accelerate three laps from home and keep it up."

Clarke did just this, knowing that if he left it to the last lap, the Kenyans would outsprint him. He reached the final and the same story as in the 10,000 metres was repeated. Four out of the first six runners were born at altitude. The winner, Mohamed Gammoudi, though a Tunisian, has been on "leave" from the Tunisian army for two years and has spent much of this time at altitude. In 1964, after winning a silver medal in the Tokyo 5,000 metres, he went to stay in Mexico City on the way home and he has visited Mexico City each year since then. He was at Lake Tahoe in America before coming to the Games. We know now from his performance, if anyone previously doubted it, that up to two years of altitude training improves performance at altitude and presumably also at sea level.

●

His victory over those born at altitude was, however, only achieved because of a tactical blunder by the Kenyans. Keino has run far faster over 5,000 metres at 7,000 feet in Kenya than Gammoudi's winning time in these Games. The Kenyans should have collaborated to share a fast pace in the early part of the race, aiming at a final time of about 13 minutes, 45 seconds.

Instead they meandered about at the back of the field like a pair of novices while the average speed at the first four kilometres was 2 minutes 50 seconds. Clarke as in the heat, tried to increase the pace three laps from home but a lap of 66 seconds exhausted his frail reserves.

The Kenyans still waited and when Gammoudi unleashed a sprint over a last lap of 55 seconds, which he has been practising at altitude for two years, neither of the Kenyans could match him.

With altitude and racialism here, a kind of Pandora's box has been opened and I feel great anxiety that what we knew as sport is in jeopardy. The steeplechase was almost monotonously the same story. This time the most serious collapse was Herriott, the British steeplechaser. In his heat, he was running about seven seconds a lap slower than in England.

Herriott had not recovered until two hours after the race when he said: "All I can remember of the last four laps is vaguely seeing some black spots on the hurdles." The next day he was still very weak and needed help in walking.

●

Herriott, the Tokyo silver medallist for the steeplechase, had waited four years for this mockery of a second chance. He will never run again. What an end to a career!

The winner of the event was a tall ungainly Kenyan, Biwott, who is thought to be 23, but has no record to prove it, and is tactically naive in the extreme. In the heat, he sprinted crazily for the first two laps and opened a 70-yard lead. In the final, he was sixth, 20 yards back, at the bell and then overtook the whole field including fellow Kenyan, Kogo. Biwott leaps the hurdles like a farmer jumping a gate and must have wasted several seconds worth of energy by running wide and striving for complete clearance of the water jump, as if he was frightened that he might get a black mark if he got his feet wet.

I am happy that Kenya should win so many medals because winning will be an immense spur for sport in Kenya. I simply want to make it clear that a novice without adequate training technique or judgment won an Olympic title because of the chance of his birthplace and I think this is utterly wrong.

U.S. Might Surrender Some of Gold Medals

By SHIRLEY POVICH
The Washington Post

MEXICO CITY—The United States is considering surrender of some of the gold medals its Olympic team won in the relay and sprint events here, with apology to foreign nations, The Washington Post has learned.

Members of the U.S. Olympic Committee are in the midst of a full-scale investigation of reports that certain black-power militants on the American track team accepted money subsidies from an equipment manufacturer.

Committee members are making no announcement, but it is known that they are studying evidence in the form of cheques cashed by some members of the U.S. team.

Acceptance of such subsidies is in violation of amateur rules and calls for suspension and the return of trophies.

STILL LOOKING

One member of the U.S. Olympic establishment who asked not to be identified told the Washington Post, "We have evidence of misconduct and are looking for more."

When asked if endorsed cheques figured in the probing, he said, "Oh, yes. We have them. This could be the worst thing ever to happen to a U.S. Olympic team."

Results of the investigation will be referred, he said, to the Amateur Athletic Union, the track team's governing body, which is expected to take proper action.

If the charges are confirmed in the eyes of the U.S. Olympic Committee, a whitewash by the AAU will not be accepted, it was said.

"We will make our own recommendations to the International Olympic Committee which would accept our forfeiture of the medals involved," the source said.

PRE-GAMES CONTROVERSY

An equipment controversy preceded the arrival of the U.S. Olympic team here and American track men were advised that the brush-type, 68-spike shoes with which they had been breaking sprint records on a Tartan track at Lake Tahoe, Calif., were unacceptable in the Olympic Games.

The U.S. team has twice been deprived of gold medals won in Olympic Games, but never by voluntary surrender of them.

In the 1948 Games in London, an American relay team which accepted gold medals for finishing first ahead of Great Britain, was disqualified the next day when a study of the films showed U.S. runners had violated the baton passing zone.

In the 1912 Games at Stockholm, decathlon winner Jim Thorpe was later deprived of his medals when it was learned he had accepted money for playing semi-professional baseball. An apology by the U.S. accompanied the action.

OLYMPIC RESULTS

SWIMMING

Men's 100-metre backstroke: 1. Roland Matthes, E. Germany, 58.7 secs. (Olympic record, previous record 1:01.9 by Matthes in heat); 2. Charles Hickcox, U.S.A., 1:00.2; 3. Ronald Mills, U.S.A., 1:00.5.

Women's 200-metre freestyle: 1. Debbie Meyer, U.S.A., 2:10.5 (Olympic record, previous record 2:13.1 by Miss Meyer in heat); 2. Jan Henne, U.S.A., 2:11.0; 3. Jane Barkman, U.S.A., 2:11.2.

Men's 200-metre breaststroke: 1. Felipe Munoz, Mexico, 2:28.7; 2. Vladimir Kosinsky, Russia, 2:29.2; 3. Brian Job, U.S.A., 2:29.9.

SHOOTING

Skeet: 1. Evgeny Petrov, Russia, 198 pts.; 2. Romano Garagnani, Italy, 198; 3. Konrad Wirnhier, W. Germany, 198 (medals determined in shootoff).

FENCING

Men's individual epee: 1. Gyozo Kulcsar, Hungary; 2. Grigory Kriss, Russia; 3. Gianluigi Saccaro, Italy.

Canuck Paddler Moves to Final

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Chris Hook of Dartmouth, N.S., paddled his way into an Olympic final with a strong third-place finish Tuesday in the Canadian singles heats.

Although given only an outside chance for a medal, Hook paddled a remarkably good race against top European canoeists and narrowly missed second place.

He was the only Canadian to advance directly to the finals as heats were run off in all seven kayak and canoe events. The others get a second chance in the repechages today.

Ivan Patzaichin of Romania won Hook's heat in four minutes 28.3 seconds. Ove Emanuelsson of Sweden preserved his lead over Hook to take second in 4:34.4.

The fastest three in each race moved ahead, while all others have to enter the repechages, or second-chance heats.

QUALIFIED FOR FINAL

Qualifiers for the Canadian singles final were Patzaichin, Emanuelsson, Hook, Detlef Lewe of West Germany, Tibor Tatai of Hungary and Jiri Cvertecka of Czechoslovakia.

Hook's time was 4:34.9.

The 21-year-old Dartmouth salesman, Canada's top canoeist for the last two years, had a comfortable margin over Russia's champion, Vitaly Galkov. The Russian was fourth and must try to fight his way back through the repechages.

Gerela Gains In Point Race

Kicking specialist Ted Gerela increased his Western Football Conference scoring lead to 13 points during the weekend as he booted two converts and two singles to help B.C. Lions edge Winnipeg 26-24.

Runner-up Larry Robinson of Calgary managed only one convert in a 24-13 loss to Edmonton.

Elaine Is Shooting For World Record In Tonight's Final

By BRUCE LEVETT

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The chips are down tonight for Elaine Tanner in the pressure-packed Olympics.

She has a little more than a minute to make and complete her play in a winner-take-all bid for fame.

The 17-year-old Vancouver-born swimmer, now living in Winnipeg, is the hottest woman backstroker in the Olympic pool.

She set a Games record for the second time within a week Tuesday in the women's 100-metre backstroke, then announced that tonight, her next time out, she will be after the world record.

Last week, Elaine lowered the Olympic backstroke mark of 1:07.7 for 100 metres to 1:07.6 in the opening leg of the 400-metre medley relay.

In two winning heat efforts Tuesday, she equalled the mark and lowered it again to 1:07.4.

The final goes tonight. The world record, held by South Africa's Karen Muir, is 1:06.4.

The Canadian team hasn't a medal to show for its 10 days of competition, but it got a couple of more points in swimming Tuesday and now has a total of 16.

Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., easily won his heat and qualified for today's 400-metre freestyle semi-finals. In women's diving Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., was in a good position for a medal off the high board.

Five gold medals were awarded Tuesday—three in swimming, one in shooting and one in fencing.

Debbie Meyer of the United States led an American sweep in the women's 200-metre freestyle in 2:10.5, the fifth U.S. sweep in the swims.

But Roland Matthes of East Germany, the world record-holder in the men's 100-metre backstroke, won his speciality in 58.7. Americans Charles Hickcox and Ronald Mills, were second and third respectively.

But the surprise of the swimming meet was Felipe Munoz, 17, who won Mexico's first-ever swimming gold medal in the men's 200-metre breaststroke in 2:28.7, edging Russian world record-holder Vladimir Kosinsky. Brian Job, 16, an American, was third.

Russian Winner in Skeet Shootoff

It was only the host country's third gold medal in Olympic history and the first in these Games for Latin America.

Jim Shaw of Toronto was fifth behind Mattes in the backstroke, clocking 1:01.4. Shaw, 18, was six-tenths of a second off the third-place clocking of bronze winner Mills.

SKEET VICTORY

In the medal standing, the U.S. leads Russia in total medals 71-42 and in gold 29-14. France follows with seven gold, East Germany with five and Australia, Britain, Hungary and Japan with four apiece.

The Russians got their lone gold of the day when Evgeny Petrov won the skeet prize in a shoot-off with Romano Garagnani of Italy and Konrad Wirnhier of West Germany.

All had 198 of 200 at the end of the regular competition, but the Russian was 25 of 25 in the shoot-off, with Garagnani second and Wirnhier third.

Don Sanderlin of Edmonton took 15th place in a field of 52 with a score of 191 and Harry Willsie of Westmount, Que., was 37th with 181.

UPSETS RUSSIAN CHAMP

Gyozo Kulcsar of Hungary upset Russia's defending champion, Grigory Kriss, to win the men's individual epee fencing gold. Gianluigi Saccaro of Italy was third.

The Russian basketballers, silver medal winners in the last four Olympics, lost to Yugoslavia 63-62.

The United States advanced to the final against Yugoslavia by beating Brazil 75-63 in the other semi-final.

The U.S. has won eight straight in the tournament including a preliminary 73-58 win over Yugoslavia.

In diving, Czechoslovakia's Milena Duchkova lead the tower qualifiers into today's final with 35.25 points for four compulsory dives.

Miss Boys, the Canadian specialist in the tower, easily qualified and was in fourth place with 33.20 points. Nancy Robertson, Vancouver, in ninth place, also reached the final.

But Canada's last chance for boxing medal evaporated when Donato Paduano of Montreal dropped a decision to Argentina's Mario Guilloti. Three Canadians were eliminated earlier.

Stamps Pulling For Stragglers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders are the targets for would-be giant-killers during the rest of the regular season in the Western Football Conference.

Holding down first place in the standings, the Riders play the clubs occupying the last three spots in the final games. And Calgary Stampeders are pulling for the underdogs from their second-place position just one point behind the leaders.

First to have a crack at the leaders will be Winnipeg Blue Bombers, cellar-dwellers in the league. They meet tonight in the only WFC game scheduled.

Following the Winnipeg contest, Saskatchewan is scheduled for meetings with Edmonton Eskimos and British Columbia Lions.

"We are ready for tonight's game," said Bomber general manager Earl Lunsford. "We want to cut down our mistakes . . . and play a real good game."

MISSING TWO STARS

The attempt will be made without the services of two strong links in the organization.

End Mitch Zalnasky is out for the season and the formidable linebacker, Phil Minnick, is out for at least one more game.

Winnipeg's most potent offence so far has come from the foot of Pierre Guindon who has kicked 13 field goals, 11 converts and four singles for a fifth-place tie in the WFC scoring race with Saskatchewan fullback George Reed.

Argo Lineman Earns Award As Top Rookie

HAMILTON (CP) — Larry Fairholm of Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonaut lineman Dave Knechtel Monday were named winners of two 1968 Canadian football awards.

Fairholm was chosen winner of the Eastern Conference sportsmanship award and Knechtel was named outstanding rookie.

Fairholm, a defensive back, won the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy as the EFC player who possesses the "highest qualities of courage, fair play and sportsmanship." The award commemorates Jeff Russel, a former Montreal player killed in a 1926 hydro accident.

Knechtel, a 230-pound defensive tackle and a native of Kitchener, came to Argonauts from Waterloo Lutheran University.

Buckaroos Earn Tie On Last-Period Rally

VANCOUVER (CP) — Portland Buckaroos struck for three goals in the third period to grab a 6-6 tie with Vancouver Canucks in a Western Hockey League game before 5,940 fans here Tuesday.

Portland's Mel Pearson banged in two goals, his second coming with 2:51 remaining, and Gerry Goyer had a single as Portland wiped out a 6-3 Vancouver advantage in the last eight minutes.

Norm Johnson, Andy Hebenton and Cliff Schmautz rounded out the Bucks' attack.

Bob Barlow, Tracy Pratt, John Gofton, Phil Maloney, Murray Hall and Don Johns were the Vancouver sharpshooters.

Vancouver jumped to a 3-2 lead after the first period and was up 5-3 after two periods. Johns extended Vancouver's lead to 6-3 at 8:12 of the final period.

Pearson scored his first goal less than a minute later on a deflection. Goyer narrowed the margin to a single goal at 16:03 on a 25-foot screen shot. Pearson's tying goal at 17:09 came after he took a setup pass from Larry Leach.

Second-place Portland now is three points behind San Diego with three wins, three ties and one loss. Vancouver is fourth with two wins, one tie and four losses.

RUSSIA COACH BLAMES . . . . . . INEXPERIENCE AND ALTITUDE

Most of the World Lives Downstairs

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Russia's veteran track and field coach, Gabriel Korobkov, blames altitude, the synthetic track and callow youth for the disappointing showing of his team in the Olympic Games.

"It is unfair to hold the Games at this altitude," said Korobkov, whose teams have battled the United States for athletic supremacy for more than a decade.

"Most of the world lives downstairs. They hold the Olympics upstairs. The Games are thrown out of balance."

The normally powerful Russians were something of a dud in the track and field competition in this city 7,400 feet above sea level. Their over-all performance was matched by tiny Kenya.

The Soviet women, who have dominated field events in the past, failed to win a single gold medal. The men won three golds, one silver and three bronze.

The United States, on the other hand, collected 12 golds in men's track and field, five silvers and seven bronzes, while the women won three golds and a silver.

The Kenyans, with only 35 track and field athletes, won three gold medals, four silvers and two bronzes.

Korobkov, a big, pleasant man who speaks English well, said the African nations are improving because of their new freedom and social structure.

The Soviet coach said the Kenyans' outstanding showing is due to the fact the athletes come from high altitudes.

"The Russians, for instance, always have been strong in distance events and those requiring stamina and strength. We naturally suffered here. It did not hurt the Americans so much. They are better in short speed races."

"You won 12 black medals — I mean gold-colored medals—and we won three white ones," he told an American reporter.

It was not a slip of the tongue but a wry reference to the superiority of American Negro athletes. "The American black men are the best runners in the world," Korobkov conceded. "It will take a long time to catch them."

Korobkov said the Russians began rebuilding their team after the Tokyo Olympics four years ago.

"We decided we had stayed with our old athletes too long. We brought a young, inexperienced team here. Our hop, step and jump champion, Viktor Saneyev, is only 22. We will be better at Munich in 1972."

Korobkov said the Americans had an advantage in running on the plastic all-weather track.

"We have no such tracks in the Soviet Union," he said. "Many of our athletes hurt their legs."

Howe's Big Pay Boost Left Seals in Shadows

GORDIE HOWE

By The Canadian Press

Just when Oakland Seals create some excitement, Gordie Howe comes along and yanks them right out of the spotlight.

The Seals were a resounding failure last season when they made their debut in the National Hockey League. They finished last in the Western Division, and fans at Oakland stayed away.

But the Seals have arrived. They defeated Minnesota North Stars 3-2 Tuesday night to move into first place in the Western Division with their second win in a row.

It was the only action scheduled in the NHL Tuesday night, and it looked as if the Seals had stolen the show. Then, the word came that Howe had signed a new two-year contract with Detroit Red Wings.

The new contract gives Howe, a headliner in the NHL for more than 20 years, an increase in salary of at least 75 per cent. The 40-year-old right winger had started this season on the second year of a two-year contract.

Scoring for Oakland were George Swarbrick, Gary Jarrett and Gerry Odrowski. Claude Larose and Danny Grant, a couple of Montreal Canadien rejects, picked up Minnesota goals.

SCORES HIS FIRST

Swarbrick's goal, his first of the season, came at 15:59 of the final period and was the winner before a crowd of 9,548 at Minneapolis.

North Stars goalie Gary Bauman replaced starter Cesare Maniago after the first period because Maniago had a case of "nerves", Minnesota manager-coach Wren Blair said.

The victory gave the division-leading Seals five points, one more than Minnesota and St. Louis Blues.

Four interlocking games are listed on tonight's program. Montreal visits Los Angeles Kings, St. Louis plays the Maple Leafs at Toronto, Oakland faces the Rangers in New York and Chicago Black Hawks clash with the Penguins at Pittsburgh.

INSURANCE OFFER

Howe had asked general manager Sid Abel of Detroit if his contract could be renegotiated because of the increased number of games in the NHL. The schedule jumped to 74 games from 70 last season and to 76 this year.

Howe also was offered a vice-presidency in Olympia Agencies Inc., by Red Wing president Bruce Norris. It is a corporate insurance company owned by Norris.

"The insurance arrangements have not been finalized but I am very interested as I do not know how many more years I will be able to play," Howe said in an interview Tuesday night.

'CHEAP' CROZIER TRIMS PRICE FOR YOUNG FANS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students aged 18 and under will be offered a $1 price reduction to eight Vancouver Canuck games, an official of the Western Hockey League club said Tuesday.

The offer followed a protest Thursday by elementary school students who said the $2.25 ticket prices were too steep.

The students picketed the Pacific Coliseum carrying signs that said Joe Crozier, Canuck general manager was "cheap" and that they were forced to pay "NHL prices for WHL hockey."

The club spokesman said a letter will be sent to all Greater Vancouver schools offering students $1.25 tickets provided they are accompanied to the game by teachers.

The offer will later be extended to boy scouts and girl guide groups in the area, he said.

Polson Pair Paces Esquimalt to Title

Lynn Polson fired two goals to pace Esquimalt to a 3-0 shutout over Mount View Tuesday that clinched the Inter-High School Girls' Field Hockey League championship for the winners.

Esquimalt closed its season on an unbeaten streak, collecting eight wins and two ties in the 10 games.

Stephanie Corby collected the other tally for the new champions, who had only three goals against while collecting their first championship.

Oak Bay, champion for the past four years, preserved its winning streak with a 1-0 win over Claremont on a goal by Lee Jones.

Mt. Douglas upset third-place Victoria High 2-0 on goals by Jean Robinson and Wendy Hales to leap ahead of Mount View and out of the cellar.

Gene, Don Draw In Main Event

Gene Kiniski fought Don Leo Jonathan to a draw in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena Tuesday night.

In other bouts, Dean Higuchi and Bobby Shane won their four-man tag team match with the disqualification of John Tolos and Tom Andrews; Dutch Savage drew John Kostas and Eric Froelich lost to Heidmann.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Repeat winner of weekly award in Bowler-of-the-Week contest is Coby Lobbezoo, who has again captured women's ten-pin honors in Times-sponsored competition. Coby topped division by cracking maples for 203-177-198—578 series in Early Niters League at Mayfair Lanes. Victory qualifies her for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs next May.

Farmers Tied for Lead As Colony Upsets Labs

Colony Inn has jumped back into the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League race by chopping off the victory streak of Labatts at two games.

Colony cagers turned the trick at Gordon Head Junior High School Tuesday night, getting their first triumph after two defeats by hustling to an 80-69 win over the Labs.

In the other league contest, Farmer Construction advanced to a first place tie with Labs through a 79-71 victory over Red Lion Inn.

After losing the services of high-scoring Ed Steele with a sprained ankle, the Colony crew was paced to its win by Gary Woodburn and Jim Cunningham, each with 18 points.

Dave Emery and Bill Wilson provided help for Colony's first win with 11 and 10 points while Labs gained 17 points from Jim Moody.

Pete Simmonds paved the way for Farmers with 32 points, 17 of which were scored after Lions had collected a 39-34 lead at the half.

Wayne Farmer and Fred Gobbels chipped in 17 points between them to assist the late Farmer rally.

Jack Newnham scored 18 points for the losers.

Farmer Construction (81)—Dennis Horn 4, Pete Simmonds 32, Dick Sparks, Rick Humber 3, George Bruce 11, Don Ferguson, Wayne Farmer 11, Fred Gobbels 12, Terry Scott, Al Timms, Ken Baker, Vic Wescott.

Victoria Girl Builds Career As Equestrian

By SUSAN RILEY

When people ask Judy Mangin what she does for a living she never knows what to say.

When she tells them she's a professional equestrian they are usually "taken aback."

The attractive, blonde, 31-year-old says she just smiles and explains—"I love horses."

She loves all 80 horses at Max Bonner's large stable in Battlecreek, Michigan. She trains them full-time and competes in horse shows all over Eastern Canada and the U.S.

Born and brought up in Victoria, she stopped here to visit her parents for a few days before getting back to her rigorous show schedule.

In the winter, Judy works with "all degrees of horses" at Max Bonner's stables. She trains them, breaks them and gives enthusiastic owners tips on handling their animals. Some of them are thoroughbreds, some are "just run-of-the-mill" horses.

But the important thing for Judy is that she is working full-time with horses.

She started riding at the Victoria Riding Academy 20 years ago as a child and decided to turn professional 14 years ago.

"I just had an idea if I wanted to do any riding, if I wanted to work with horses, this was the best way," she said.

NO REGRETS

She hasn't regretted it.

She hasn't competed in the Olympics nor has she considered joining the national equestrian team.

"When you're an amateur," she said, "you have to hold down another job too."

She wants to devote all her time to riding.

Judy spends all of her time riding other people's horses, but it doesn't bother her that she doesn't own one.

"I have enough horses to look after already." She feels the expense of owning and keeping a horse is too great.

"People who own horses have money," she said. "This—showing these horses—is just a different way of spending it."

Some, she said, don't ride the horses they own, they just keep them "because they love the sport so much. They're really the nicest people."

Unlike jockeys, who are often paid extra for outstanding performances, riders who jump or compete in shows don't usually get a cut of the winnings. Judy is paid on a straight salary basis. The glory, money and wreath goes to the horse, not the rider.

That's the way it should be, she says.

"Max (my boss) thinks of it as tipping," she explained. "The expense of showing a horse is so high that paying the rider is just like extra tipping."

Judy's reward is the trust of her employer. Only highly qualified riders—experts—are allowed to compete in the calibre of shows Judy is in.

In the summer, showing starts in earnest and that's when Judy starts putting in her 16-hour days.

"Before a show, we get up at 5:30 a.m. and start working with the horse. We may not get home until the show finishes at 2 a.m. the next day," she said.

Judy has competed in horse shows in California, Toronto and the eastern United States. She'll compete next in the Washington, D.C., International Jumping Show Dec. 26.

TIMING IMPORTANT

Show horses include hunters, jumpers and equitation horses. Hunters are judged on conformation. They are usually medium-sized jumping horses. They are also Judy's specialty, although she "sometimes" rides jumpers.

In jumping, control and timing are the most important factors.

Boyne Valley, owned by a Toronto man, and Pathway, a Canadian-bred horse, both hunters, are Judy's regular mounts.

Hard work and practice are important in competing, particularly professionally, but there is more to it than that.

"You have to have a natural instinct about horses," she said. "You have to be able to outguess them."

Not Friends Of Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Press erroneously reported Oct. 16 that two lawyers recently appointed to the Nova Scotia Supreme Court were old school chums of Justice Minister John Turner.

In fact, the Hansard record of the Commons debate on judges' appointments that day shows that H. Russell MacEwan, Conservative MP for Central Nova, said the two had been MacEwan, not Turner, classmates.

Mr. Turner said judges should be selected on merit and competence, and not on the basis of reward or favor.

ANTI-HOLDUP DEVICES TO BE USED BY BANK

MONTREAL (CP)—A Quebec-based charter bank plans to unveil anti-holdup measures to discourage bank bandits, it has been announced.

La Banque Provinciale du Canada plans to unveil the innovations in two weeks at a dozen branches considered to be most vulnerable to armed robbery.

The new safeguards include tellers' cages built of glass-like bullet-proof material.

Clients will deal with the teller through a concealed intercom system. Documents changing hands, such as cheques and cash, will be inserted into a tilt-type drawer operated automatically.

RCMP Nab Pair For Safe Job

NANAIMO—Nanaimo RCMP have charged two persons with the Sunday morning safe cracking at the Terminal Park Cunningham Drug Store.

Walter William Corlum, 48, and his wife Pauline Donna, 33, of Crofton, both pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering when they appeared in magistrate's court Tuesday.

Police said the safe crackers entered a laundromat next door to the drug store and using a sledge hammer smashed a hole in the wall dividing the two businesses.

They then knocked the safe's spindle off with the hammer and took $1,974 worth of stamps, about $200 worth of cigarettes and about $40 in silver.

The stamps were later recovered.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Gib Perry said that three of his constables worked without sleep for about 48 hours to solve the case.

Referring to the work done by Constables Pete Bulatovic, Pete Sabo and Ron Nicholas, he said their determination to solve the crime demonstrated the spirit that built the force.

First Nurses Train at Duncan

DUNCAN — Thirteen student practical nurses started an eight-month in service training course at the Cowichan District Hospital Tuesday.

The girls will work through a four-month period for junior qualifications and another four months for senior accreditation, a hospital official said.

At the end of the course they will take examinations for the provincial practical nursing licence.

All the girls are from Nanaimo Vocational School and have taken a four-month theory course. They are the first student nurses from the school to work at the hospital.

Critic Now Backing Recreation Law

NORTH COWICHAN — Most persistent critic of the porposed $850,000 recreation bylaw here, Frank Blanc, has changed his tune.

He has accepted the explanations of Mayor Donald Morton regarding a merging clause to be invoked in North Cowichan and put his support behind the bylaw.

Voting takes place Saturday in the south end of North Cowichan, the city of Duncan and the unorganized areas of Cowichan Bay, Cobble Hill and Glenora-Koksilah.

Mr. Blanc said Monday it was good to hear Mayor Morton's statement that the merging clause was to ensure that the people of the south end would share in the industrial assessment at Chemainus and Crofton.

TWO YEARS LATE?

Mr. Blanc said: "If Mayor Morton had made this statement two years ago he would have had a lot more support earlier for the recreation bylaw."

Mr. Blanc's earlier contention was that the merging bylaw would have the effect of making south end ratepayers contribute toward the cost of Fullers Lake Arena, Chemainus, which they voted aginst in composite bylaw form three years ago.

Ald. John Cannon of North Cowichan said today: "Now that Mr. Blanc understands that the merging clause will work to the advantage of the people in the south end of the community this should be accepted universally.

"There is evidence of growing public support for the bylaw and I'm confident of success."

If the bylaw is approved the $850,000 will provide a swimming pool of standard length for competition with a diving tank and training pool, and seating for 400 spectators.

AUDITORIUM

The community centre building, also to be built at Pioneer Park, will have 17,000 square feet of space comprising an auditorium suitable for theatrical productions, concerts and conventions.

There will be seating for 700 people and the main floor will be on a gentle slope toward the stage but can be lowered for dances, banquets and exhibitions.

The centre will also provide an elderly citizens' area, club and multiple use rooms, arts and crafts rooms, games room, kitchen, administrative offices, service and equipment rooms, and washroom facilities.

Alberni Hunter Mauled by Bear

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Michael Markusich, 37, of Port Alberni, was taken to hospital in this Peace River community Tuesday after being mauled by a grizzly bear.

The Vancouver Island man suffered a broken jaw, an eye injury and cuts. His condition was not immediately known.

The victim was found by oil company workers on a lonely road about 15 miles off the Alaska Highway near Mile 135, north of here. He was hunting moose at the time of the attack.

FINE FOLLOWS FATALITY

NANAIMO — Andrew Willett, 22, of Ladysmith, was fined $350 Tuesday and prohibited from driving for one year after being convicted in county court of dangerous driving.

Indecency Charge

DUNCAN — Local dentist and former Cowichan School Board chairman, Dr. Neil Dorning of Maple Bay Road, Duncan, has been charged with committing an act of gross indecency.

He was charged in court here Monday and released on bail of $5,000 and two other sureties of $5,000.

Dr. Dorning is due to appear in magistrate's court here Thursday.

He made no plea or declaration in his brief appearance Monday.

Students Meet Trustees

PORT ALBERNI — Members of the school board today met with a delegation of students from E. J. Dunn Junior High to discuss the lack of a gymnasium in the school.

The move followed a school boycott earlier this month by students to back the need for a gymnasium.

Board members said they appreciated the six-member delegation coming to them with the problem, and said they would try to explain the business of financing school facilities to the students.

In other board business, a resolution to allocate $15,000 for an area psychiatrist put forward by Mrs. Cecil McKinnon was tabled.

Most trustees feel there is a need for a psychiatrist, since present appointments with the only available psychiatrist—in Nanaimo—must often be postponed for months.

Debate on the issue came from some who feel it is not the responsibility of the board to provide such a service.

Sidney Air Cadets Tops in Province

The Sidney Air Cadet Squadron was named tops in the province at the annual meeting of the B.C. Air Cadet committees in Kamloops last weekend.

The D. R. MacLaren trophy and the A. D. Bell-Irving trophy was awarded to No. 682 Squadron of Richmond for being the most proficient of the 37 squadrons in B.C.

Vincent Forbes of Vancouver was re-elected chairman of the B.C. Air Cadet Committee, and S. T. Massop of Victoria was elected area vice-chairman.

Culture Smothered Indian Artist Says

By HUMPHRY DAVY

NANAIMO — A prominent native spokesman has charged that the Indian Affairs department wants Indians to forget their rich background.

George Clutesi, national famed Port Alberni author and artist, warned the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation here last weekend — the situation will foster inter-racial hate.

"In 1963, I went to Ottawa and applied to teach native culture to children at the Alberni residential school," he said.

"The senior officials were all smiles, patted me on the back, and agreed it would be a good thing."

But, he added, when he returned to Alberni, he was informed orally by a school teacher than his application had been turned down because it was against the department's policies to encourage native identity.

"They did not even have the courtesy to answer me by letter," he said. "I know why. They wanted nothing down in writing.

"It seems today if you are too Indian, too Norwegian, too English, they don't want you," he added. "No nations can survive without traditions and culture — Canada has none."

REAP HATE

"If senior governments persist in their policies of attempting to assimilate us, they will reap nothing but hate — hate like the Negro hate for the whites in the United States," he warned.

He said the Negro problem in the United States was largely due to past policies of not permitting the blacks to identify themselves as a people.

Indians were strongly opposed to any melting pot policy as adopted by the United States.

"It has failed in the United States and is one of the causes of the nation's instability," he said.

Mr. Clutesi said he has taught Indian children their ancient culture—their history — their dances and songs.

GEORGE CLUTESI
. . . voices of past

"It changed their outlook on life," he said. "Instead of feeling as if they came from nowhere or belonged to an inferior race, they realized they were people as good as anyone else."

He said pride of race and in their ancient heritage was the major factor in helping them to adjust in a competitive society.

It was apparent at the meeting that Indians felt that they would be able to retain their identity, but whether this would be accomplished at a cost of hate relations with the white society would depend on the policies of senior governments.

The Indian population was growing, they pointed out, and so was interest in Indian languages. Indian university students were also taking over the cause of preserving the heritage of their fathers.

That native culture survived to this day was a miracle, they agreed, as past government policies almost crushed the spirit of the native people of Canada.

'Be Frank' About Race Origin

Indian, Eskimo foster children or those of mixed blood should be told as early as possible their racial origin, David Stevenson, a University of Victoria anthropologist, said Monday.

He was speaking at the first of a series of meetings sponsored by the Greater Victoria School Board, The Foster Parents' Association and the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

They are being held to promote a better understanding between Indian, Eskimo and white communities.

"He has to grow up in a real world. If you don't tell him the punks will as soon as he gets to Grade 2," he said.

Mr. Stevenson who has lived and worked among the Eskimos in the Northwest Territories, has adopted two of their children, one who is 11 and the other two years old. Both are girls.

TEA LEAVES

He adopted one girl four years ago when he visited an Eskimo couple and found the child eating tea leaves. There was nothing else for her to eat.

"Her mother had lost a five-year-old child to dogs the year before," he said. "And she had given two other children away because they were starving."

Dr. Stevenson said the longer foster parents delayed telling a child his racial origin, the more difficult it became for him to adjust himself to a white society.

In answer to a question, he said, he did not believe racial prejudice could ever be wiped out, but it could be made more easy to live with.

Lake Cowichan Setting Pace For Schools

LAKE COWICHAN — This school district is to be the first on Vancouver Island to have a fully open-area school.

South Shore primary is expected to open for enrolment after the Christmas holiday.

The classrooms will not have walls or partitions.

Secretary-treasurer of Lake Cowichan school board, Ron Klmak, says: "The classes won't interfere with each other.

"As a matter of fact, the more people the more muffled the sounds are."

Construction of the $190,000 school started in August and Mr. Klmak reports progress is on schedule.

Nine classes will be accommodated in the open area but two rooms, one for kindergarten and the other for slow pupils, will be closed off.

There will be an administration office, health room and library situated in the middle of the open area.

AT CALGARY

Husky Tower Almost Rose Overnight

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A three-day visit in Calgary last weekend to conduct a workshop for a group of women's clubs netted me an extra bonus.

Forbes

It was a clear, bright Saturday with just a hint of frost. Looking out from the room in the Palliser Hotel where the workshop was held we could see the mountains off on the horizon.

By noon clouds were gathering. Shortly afterward they formed in a dark mass that dulled the sun over Calgary. The edge of this cloud formation had a distinct eliptical curve. Clear-cut and well-defined.

Now when we looked out from the hotel windows it was as if we peered from under the shadow of an arched bridge.

It was dull and murky above us. But out beyond the clouds we could look toward the horizon and still see the foothills and the taller mountains etched in bright sunshine.

"It's our Chinook Arch," a Calgary woman told me. "It means a change in the weather. Warmer perhaps. Even colder. We'll know before long."

I'm not a weather prophet. Nor am I particularly concerned as to whether the Chinook Arch is a bearer of high or low pressures.

I do know, however, that it is an awe-inspiring cloud formation. And the far-away picture it framed for me is something to remember.

* * *

I was in Calgary at the start of my cross-Canada travels last May. That's only a little over four months ago.

Yet, in the time between, something new has been added to the downtown scene. Something with tremendous impact and a bold beauty.

It's the sky-scraping Husky Tower.

Built jointly, I was told, by the CPR and oil interests that have the word "Husky" for a trade name, this tower is only a stone's throw from the Palliser Hotel.

Topside is a revolving restaurant, a cocktail lounge and an observation promenade. Capped, of course, by the inevitable illuminated needle.

The Husky Tower was opened in June. And according to Calgarians, once the skeleton was erected and the first cement poured, it went up almost overnight.

Seems that if it was to have the strength needed for this type of skyscraper, the cement mixture could not be allowed to dry until the tower was completed. So, crews worked around the clock, slurping the stuff higher and higher, until the desired height was reached.

One woman who lives in a high-rise within viewing distance of the tower told me that during this phase of construction her daughter phoned from Edmonton. She asked her mother if she could see the tower. The mother answered, "Not yet."

Within seconds, and while she was still talking, "the darn thing came into view beyond my window and it literally grew by inches while I watched."

* * *

Like the Empress Hotel here, CPR's Palliser has had a face-lift.

No more will cowboys in the city for the annual stampede be able to ride their horses directly from the street up the steps and through the main entrance into the lobby. (Believe me it has happened.)

Now, there is a revolving door at the entrance.

A promenade, lighted with deer-horn chandeliers, leads from just beyond the entrance to a dining room and coffee shop that makes the old set-up seem like a bad dream.

Warm, bright colors have been used in redecorating meeting halls and sleeping rooms. The lobby is resplendent in crimson red, golds and glittering crystal.

I remember seeing the lobby in 1958 minus most of its old furnishings and with trestle tables set up to serve a chuck-wagon breakfast to 400 women.

They were en route to a national convention at Edmonton with a 24-hour stopover in Calgary for the first day of the stampede.

I wonder if such breakfasts are served in that setting now?

Resignation Pulled

BEIRUT (WP) — Lebanese President Charles Helou who Saturday night submitted his resignation withdrew it Sunday, thereby averting for the time being at least what threatened to become the country's worst political crisis since 1958 when it was plunged into civil war.

Arthur Mayse

Be warned that one of these days you may happen on a neat little box in which are snuggled four cubes faced variously in red, green, white and blue. The assembly looks for all the world like an educational toy designed for the pre-kindergarten crowd.

That's what I thought when one of the young men who come and go around our place tumbled a set on the kitchen table.

"Insanity blocks," he told us with a disarming smile. Then he explained the gimmick. "What you have to do is arrange them so that no two colors match."

With practised fingers he placed the blocks in a row. "See?" he said. "The tops are all different, but I've got two green together on one side, two blues on the other and . . . let's see . . . three reds underneath."

He tried again.

"I haven't solved it myself yet," he admitted. "But my kid brother has, and he taught his home room teacher how to do it." He attempted a new combination. It didn't work. "Just in time, too. The poor guy was practically out of his mind."

Against such contingencies, the manufacturer guarantees to send the solution along for a quarter. It could be a wise investment!

As matters turned out, however, I was spared this ignominous fate.

After a few unsuccessful tries, I gathered up the insanity blocks, closed my eyes, shook them like dice, dropped them on the table, and poked them into line. Darn if they didn't come out right.

But try it again? Not on your life!

Out along Bench Road in the Duncan area lives Mrs. George Gaisford, a lady who for years entertained a wish.

Some day, she hoped, luck would grant her a glimpse of a cougar in its wild state.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Gaisford got her wish, in duplicate. Fortune favored her with not one of the normally shy wood cats, but two, and at range a mite too close for comfort.

Mrs. Gaisford, who with her husband is a member of Cowichan Fish and Game Association, was busy with some early-morning baking when the family duck flock set up a loud quacking in a field about 50 yards from the house.

Flour on her hands, she glanced through a kitchen window.

For a moment she thought the tawny-coated creature trying to get out of her garden through the fence that separated it from the field was merely a large dog. She slipped out by a side door, and eased over for a closer look.

There was her cougar, and a big one. It was intent on the half-dozen sheep feeding in mid-field.

Movement out near the barn caught her eye. A second cougar was stealing in on the sheep from that quarter. The sheep were plainly unaware of the threat.

Unflustered, Mrs. Gaisford advanced toward the pussy in her garden. When she was 14 yards from it — they measured the distance later — it occurred to her that she really should have a weapon.

While she was still wondering where they'd put the spading fork, the near cougar turned its head. It gave her a look of utter surprise. She clapped her hands loudly, and it lunged through the closed gate, breaking the catch, bending the hinges. The other cat fled too, and Mrs. Gaisford was left with a wrecked gate, some scraped-off cougar fur, and a memory to cherish.

As occasional playgoers, we have learned to be philosophical, and if Victoria Theatre Guild's currently running "Oh Dad, Poor Dad . . ." fell somewhat short of perfection, at least it was good to see what work and ingenuity has accomplished in the elderly Langham Court Theatre.

Out of the reconstruction has emerged a smart little playhouse with a better seating plan, more comfortable seats, improved lighting, and as a gift from a friend, air-conditioning.

To see a truly good Guild play there will be sheer pleasure!

Child, Boy 16, Both 'Serious'

A five-year-old child and a 17-year-old student are in serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital following separate traffic accidents Tuesday.

Lyall Atkinson, 5, of 3452 Bethune, suffered concussion and stomach injuries when he was in collision with a car while riding his tricycle.

Police identified the driver of the car as Miquel Moniz, 30, of 3730 Saanich Rd.

The accident happened at 8:07 p.m. in the 3400 block Bethune. Police said the youngster came into the path of the vehicle from behind a parked car.

A 17-year-old S. J. Willis student run over by a car just before 1 p.m. suffered chest injuries and multiple abrasions. Police have not released names of anyone involved in the accident.

Police said the boy, and another youth, age 16 were riding on the hood of a car southbound on Glasgow near the school. The car was driven by a 16-year-old youth.

SLIPPED OFF

Witnesses said the injured youth slipped from the hood and rolled in front of the car. The car passed over him.

The driver of a car which crashed over a concrete bridge on Interurban Road Tuesday evening was thrown clear and received only cuts and two broken teeth.

Police said the vehicle, driven south on the Trans-Canada Highway by William Semple, 3985 Century, struck the bridge, flipped over the railing and rolled down the bank 50 feet to Colquitz Creek. The car was demolished.

Business Community Optimistic

The local business community is "very optimistic" about future economic growth in Greater Victoria.

This view is presented in a Victoria Canada Manpower report, Economic and Labor Market Survey, period to the end of Sept. 30 1968.

Senior management officials interviewed by Manpower believe a much greater emphasis should be placed on creation of a year-round tourist industry and a convention centre should form the hub of this development.

"It is felt this will result in an increase in the number of people employed in the service industries as well as generally affecting the growth of many other businesses in the area," the report said.

FREIGHT RATES

"An opinion has also been expressed that Victoria could well become a major university centre and that if research facilities were developed in connection with such a centre, this area would attract many leaders in the field of science and the business world.

"A number of senior executives believe that we must work to overcome the disadvantage of freight rates between Victoria and the mainland which is proving a detriment to industries which might wish to locate here."

AMERICAN ESCAPES

Michael Patterson, a 19-year-old American draft dodger sentenced Thursday to 10 days in jail for vagrancy, escaped from Wilkinson Road prison just after 9 a.m. today.

Saanich police, their tracking dog, and prison officials were scouring the area at press time.

Shipyard Worker Dies in Fall

A 56-year-old Yarrows Ltd. pipefitter died after a fall of 15 feet late Tuesday.

Hervey Neff, 615 Kildew, suffered head injuries when he fell from a ladder in a chain locker while working on the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Camsell. The ship was in the shipyard for an overhaul and refit.

Officials said the accident happened about 4:15 p.m. and there were no witnesses. The area where he was working was in the forward section of the ship. He was found by another employee who had been waiting for him to return.

Details of how the accident happened have not been released but it is believed Mr. Neff may have suffered a heart attack, causing the fall.

He was taken to hospital by Esquimalt police where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

INQUEST

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he had ordered an autopsy at St. Joseph's Hospital. He said it is probable an inquest will take place sometime this week.

Mr. Neff had been fitting pipes on the deckhead of the vessel during the day and had been working with about eight other men. He had been employed by Yarrows since 1953.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Gladys Neff, and a daughter, Linda, 26. Funeral arrangements have yet to be announced.

Planners Ask Black To Reconsider Route

Elk Lake Stretch 'A Crying Shame'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Capital Region Planning Board will ask Highways Minister Wesley Black to take a second look at road widening along Elk Lake.

Board directors voted Tuesday to ask Mr. Black for a hearing following its written request last month. The board asked that the Patricia Bay Highway be relocated on the proposed freeway route on the ridge to the east rather than be widened to four lanes along the lake.

The reply from the highways minister simply acknowledged the letter and said the opinion was noted for consideration.

Victoria Ald. Ian Stewart said it will be a "crying shame" to widen the highway through this area because the road almost touches the lakeshore.

"I would just as soon see the (present) narrow highway at 35 miles an hour," he said. "If they can't afford to go over the top, that is understandable."

WARNING

Saanich Ald. Edward Lum said the Stroyan report on recreational possibilities at Elk-Beaver Lake, which is owned by the regional district, warned of the effects of road widening.

The report, made public Monday night, said it would be possible to surrender narrow strips of land between the south boundary and Eagle Park on Elk Lake, where the highway runs close to the beach.

But in the section north of Eagle Park the highways department should be urged to obtain land for widening from private owners on the east side of the highway, said the report.

LOSS OF TREES

Widening on the west side "could result in the loss of many of the trees bordering the lakeshore which comes quite close to the highway for the full distance from Eagle Park to Cordova Bay Road."

During Tuesday's meeting, board chairman Gordon Lee, the mayor of Central Saanich, said he has been given to understand by a highways department official that the freeway — when it is built in the future — will take the ridge route to the east of the present highway.

This was the recommendation in a three-year-old transportation study in Greater Victoria.

"This was definitely stated to me when department officials met our council regarding widening in Central Saanich," he said.

NOTHING FURTHER

Ald. Lum said Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis took a delegation to the hiwhways minister regarding the widening of the section along Elk Lake.

A plan was shown with the freeway stopping at the Beaver Lake entrance to the regional park, in the south.

"Nothing was shown further," he said.

Ald. Stewart commended the Saanich action and said each board member should suggest to his local mayor similar action to bring pressure on the highways department.

INCUMBENTS WILL STAND FOR OFFICE

All four Saanich aldermen whose terms end this December will be candidates for office.

A poll of the four showed Ald. Harold Todd, Ald. Edward Lum and Ald. Leslie Passmore definitely in the running. Ald. Alan Newberry said he expects to be a candidate.

No non-council citizens have indicated yet whether they will be candidates. There is no mayoralty contest this year but there will be a plebiscite (expression of opinion) on more frequent garbage collection.

School Thaw Opens Door For Tenders

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn today said approval of three local construction tenders is evidence of the thaw in the province's restrictions on school building.

The three projects, totalling $500,000, have been among 14 awaiting departmental approval for the last 14 months, Mr. Bunn said.

Approval to tender is a first stage toward meeting the area's building requirements, he said. The approval comes shortly after the B.C. trustees' convention in Vancouver where a motion censuring the government's construction policy was passed.

Mr. Bunn said the trustees at the convention represent a broad-based and important segment of voters.

"I think the trustees made a very good case."

The three new projects are:

- At Quadra Elementary, the equivalent of eight rooms, including kindergarten and library, estimated at $181,000.
- At Hillcrest Elementary kindergartens, a special classroom and library, estimated at $294,000.
- At Victor School, four rooms and washrooms, estimated at $98,000.

Construction of the three is expected to start within a month and completion is expected by September 1. Mr. Bunn said the approvals come at a time when local contractors need work and "I think the building industry of Greater Victoria will tender with very sharp pencils."

Baird Wants Ward Politics For District

By JIM HUME

Ald. Robert Baird of Victoria today called for the introduction of ward politics at the regional district level.

His plea was termed a backward step by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Less than a month ago Ald. Baird told members of city council he was disappointed in the structure of the regional district board and suggested that board members attended meetings only to pick up the $25 per meeting paid directors.

This morning he expanded on his original statement calling for total amalgamation of the regional district under one super-municipal government.

"My sincere plea is to place all things regional in nature in the hands of the regional district, to be governed by all councils and area members, then in due time unite or amalgamate the regional district with a gradual phasing out of unnecessary administrative and elected officials, the latter by poll in established metro wards to assure equity in voting and administration."

ABANDONED

"Most progressive communities have already abandoned the ward system of government," Mayor Stephen said, "At best it only perpetuates the parochialism it is supposed to stamp out.

"I suppose that if amalgamation were ever tried in this area it might be a good idea to have a ward system of elections for a short period of time, say four or five years, as a temporary palliative to local viewpoints.

"But I am convinced that such a system should only be very temporary. The best governing body is made up of the best men available wherever they may live.

'RISE ABOVE'

"The very phrase 'ward-heeler' is I think indicative of the ward system. I would hope that in this region we could rise above that form of government."

In criticizing the present structure of the regional district board Ald. Baird said "only a minority group from each council speaks for the grass roots electorate.

"The minority group on the regional board take their direction from the Municipal Act. But what escapes them is the fact that there is a majority group who wish to participate not delegate."

Mayor Stephen said the statement was not worthy of comment.

REGIONAL PROJECT

Ald. Baird added that he would like to see the proposed Victoria convention centre become a regional project.

He claimed that as the building would serve the entire area it should be paid for and operated by the region rather than by the city.

"The principle of a convention centre as a tie-in to the Empress is parochial thinking," he said.

"In the future when this district surely must be united, the centre of activity will be far remote from the harbor area."

Mayor Stephen's reaction was that again the statement was unworthy of comment.

HUNTER SHOOTS SURVEYOR

RCMP are investigating the fatal shooting Tuesday afternoon of a 38-year-old Ganges surveyor.

Peter Arnell, father of three children, was shot and killed while surveying in the Spanish Hills subdivision on Galiano Island.

He was apparently mistaken by a youngster, who was hunting, for a deer. The youngster's name was not disclosed by RCMP because he is a juvenile.

No decision had been made by noon today whether an inquest will be held.

Arnell, who is survived by his wife, was a partner in the firm of Wolfe - Milner & Arnell, of Ganges, surveyors.

$6 Million Ship Job Delayed

By PAUL MUSGROVE

Ottawa has shelved plans to build a $6 million replacement for the Coast Guard ship Estevan, it was learned today.

Construction of the new ship was eagerly awaited by the West Coast shipbuilding industry, now almost dormant.

Federal sources said the main reason for postponing construction was the recent wage hike in the West Coast industry.

They suggested there would have been a 14 per cent increase in costs before the keel of the proposed ship was laid.

The earlier decision to restrict tenders to B.C. shipbuilders has not been changed.

Announcement of a replacement for Estevan, a lighthouse tender, was made six days before the June 25 federal election. The International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, biggest of the shipyard unions in Victoria, called the announcement "just another campaign promise."

New techniques and different programming are expected to permit the Coast Guard to continue present operations with Estevan.

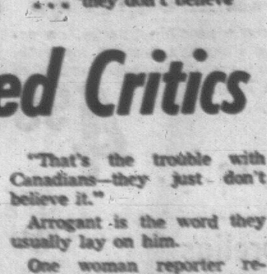
Ask The Times

Q. Which deep-sea freighter lines currently serve the west coast of B.C. and the U.S.?

—B.R.

A. According to the 1968 Canadian Almanac the Pacific seaboard is currently being served by 14 steamship lines. They are: East Asiatic, Grancolombiana, Furness, Grace, Hamberg American, Italian, Nedlloyd and Hoegh, Klaveness, "K" (Kawasaki Kisen Kaisha Ltd.), Mitsui OSK, Nedlloyd, Oceanic Steamship Co., States Marine, Pacific Australia Direct.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.



GORDON LIGHTFOOT
. . . 'they don't believe'

Heavy-Handed Critics Aren't Lightfoot's Bag

By JOHN SLINGER

As folk-pop singer-songwriter Gordon Lightfoot sees his career, it's not "up with the sun, down with the pancake."

Which is a pretty frank statement from your average 29-year-old Orillia, Ont., kid about to play the first of two sold-out, sold-right-on-out-there-man, concerts in Victoria.

And, with similar candidness, Mr. Lightfoot will explain that the reason it's not an up-with-the-sun-down-with-the-pancake career is because of his bag.

Take your average bag. If you're Picasso, your bag is painting. If you're, Pierre Trudeau, your bag is politics. If you're a railway porter, your bag is bags.

For Gordon Lightfoot, "my bag is writing my own songs—that's my bag—writing 'em and singing 'em."

My own bag is reporting. Think of that when you wrap up the garbage tonight—it might be your trash, but it's my bag.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Lightfoot has taken a bit of a shellacking in the press on his way from the little Ontario town where Stephen Leacock drew his Sunshine Sketches to the bright lights and triple-digit dollar bills of whatever it is that constitutes popular acclaim in Canada.

"That's the trouble with Canadians—they just don't believe it."

Arrogant is the word they usually lay on him.

One woman reporter recently called him, besides arrogant, irritating, exasperating, unco-operative and stubborn.

Also "warm, perceptive, amusing, attractive, disarming, and he's honest."

She did not say that he is stronger than dirt or able to leap tall buildings in a single bound.

The attempt in these interviews is to show that even though he wears a bandana around his neck, that even though he stands up there in front of people, for money, and sings songs, his own songs, that he's still like you and me. Down inside, anyway. Where it counts.

Mind, Harry Belafonte sings his songs, and Joan Baez and Peter Paul and Mary used to. Ian and Sylvia sing his songs, songs like Early Morning Rain, For Lovin' Me, Ribbon of Darkness.

★ ★ ★

An his album Lightfoot, In Canada sold more than 100,000 copies.

Honestly, ladies and gentlemen, Gordon Lightfoot is not like you and me. For one thing, he keeps his cowboy hat on when he eats supper.

It will be difficult to forget those first words he spoke as I entered his hotel suite, sat down and prepared to interview him.

"Did you bring your pad?" he asked.

As he sat there in his black T-shirt, brown bellbottoms and cowboy boots stringing and tuning his guitar, I sat across from him, smoking pencil after pencil and taking notes with my cigarette.

"Am I a preacher?" he asked.

"A preacher I'm not," he answered, adding "that's my answer when they ask me do I have a message."

He said his business is entertaining, "it's been my business since I left high school when I was 17."

If people choose to get something more than entertainment out of a song like Black Day In July about the flaming riots in Detroit ("Motor City's burning . . .") then "that's all the better."

Gordon Lightfoot is doing what he wants to do, and "No, I don't analyse it—I just go full speed ahead."

★ ★ ★

His philosophy is to give his audience the straight stuff, both on his recordings and in his concerts.

"I believe in value given and value received.

"I do the very best I can to live up to what's happening.

"I never slough it off and I never do a bad show—if I can help it. Put that down—'if I can help it'."

Penny, Daughter Search for Yarn

By PENNY SAVER

I don't know it yet, but my elder daughter is knitting me a suit for Christmas. She will in fact be knitting all her gifts this year and by the time she is finished she should be as nimble-fingered a knitter as any. I know about my gift in advance, (I promised to forget) because she wanted some advice on buying wool, as if she thought I would be that much help! All I did was steer her to shops I know and give some advice on color; the salesgirls did all the rest. They proved wonderfully patient with her indecisions and made a lot of helpful suggestions, for instance about having a couple of balls of wool in the correct dye-lot put away, just in case. When she ran short of ready funds just as she found the exact yarn for a certain project, my instinctive reach for my cheque book proved a wasted motion. Realizing her plight the salesgirl offered to put aside the yarn she needed for two months to let her gather the necessary money. "We do this for customers all the time," she told us.

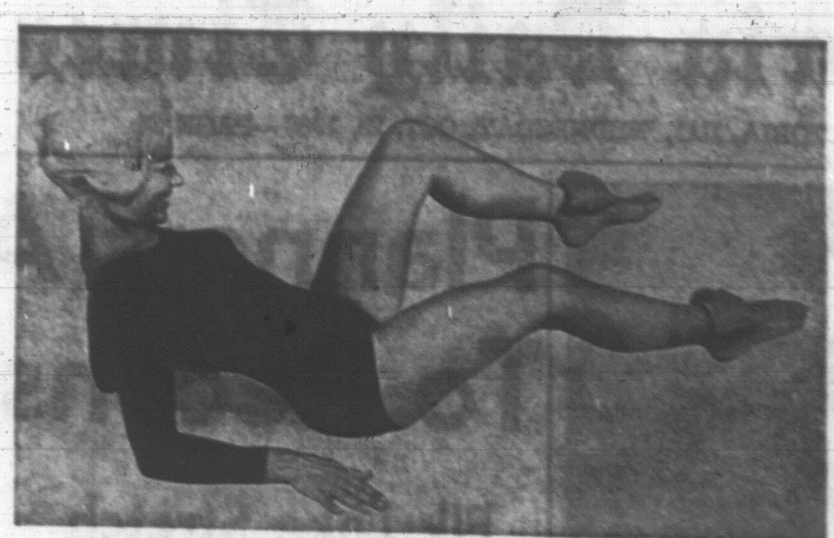
One yarn that was chosen again and again was a French synthetic. This yarn is about the weight of double knitting yarn (by English and Canadian standards) so can be substituted into other patterns after a bit of testing. Leaflets of patterns designed to be made in this yarn are also available. The colors are fantastic — there are greens, greys, blues, reds, purples and rusts to suit any color scheme, and most of them have that soft "heathered" look. What both my daughter and I like best, however, was that garments made of this wool are machine-washable. Our salesgirl also told us that it was economical to use. The wool costs $1.15 a ball, yet she said she had heard of someone making a size 40 cardigan for $6.90!

Thick and Thin Wool Wildly Modern

France produced another wool that caught our interest. This is a wild, modern wool that goes from very bulky to thin as can be. When it is made up of course it gives a nubbly effect that is quite exciting. The strands are pure wool with a loosely-spun wool twisted with a tight, strong thread-like strand to give it strength (or so I would suppose) and keep it together. A two-ounce ball is $1.29. In the way of color, the manufacturer showed a streak of genius. Two or three colors are blended together. Sometimes the colors are very close, as with the navy and black combination. Pastel pink and grey was one of my favorites. Others were more adventurous. Pink and orange were twisted with a thin strand of green, or pink and blue with black; gold and a greenish gold were mixed with rust or green and yellow with black. There was also classic black and white.

For herself, my daughter is planning an evening shell. Naturally she chose one of the sparkly metallic yarns. The yarn she chose is 72 per cent wool and the rest is a metallic thread. It is equivalent to a four-ply wool. This wool is $1.10 an ounce. She had a hard time choosing the color she wanted. The midnight blue with blue metallic flashes was so sophisticated that it was only her gay nature that made her decide on green with green. Other colors include black with gold, red or green, purple, white with gold and many colors such as pink and pastel blue with gold or silver metallic touches.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where we shopped for these yarns.



Exercising with small weights can make effects of exercises appear quicker. Sit on the floor, leg straight. Bend your elbows and lean on your forearms. In this position, do the bicycle ride, extending each leg full length and pointing your toes. Place a small weight bag on each ankle before starting to "pedal".

DEAR ABBY . . .

Wildcat Wife vs. Humble Husband

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My son is 6 feet 2 inches, and weighs 220 pounds. He's married to a 95-pound, five-foot wildcat who has sent him to the hospital twice since they've been married, and it hasn't been a year yet.

The first time, she laid his head open with a coffee pot and the doc took 22 stitches in his skull.

The next time she hit him with a bridge lamp and broke his nose.

The big dummy refuses to bring charges against her. He won't leave her, and he won't raise a hand against her. He says he "loves" her. Is he crazy or is she?

How can I get him to either defend himself or lock up this maniac. I'm afraid she'll kill him.

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: They could both be a little "crazy," but if your son sticks around and takes this kind of punishment hands down, he's crazier than she is.

DEAR ABBY: When two couples go out to dinner together is it considered "cheap" to ask for separate checks?

Nick and I have gone out with another couple and unless separate checks are asked for in advance, we split the check in half, which is very unfair because (1) I don't drink (2) we never order the most expensive dinner on the menu like the other couple (3) our share of the tip shouldn't be divided 50-50 either, because we didn't spend as much.

Nick and I talk about this after we get home, but we feel sheepish and never do anything about it. Do you think we should?

"SHEEPISH"

DEAR SHEEPISH: Yes. And if you don't, you are not only sheepish — you're foolish.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sick of reading about dirty old men. How about dirty old women?

I am a bachelor, 65 years of age, and I can tell you that a man who isn't in a wheel chair isn't safe alone anymore.

I went on a cruise for relaxation and the women nearly ran me crazy. I had 60-year-old women propositioning me for early dates, late dates, and the late late dates. I got all sort of gifts, and one old dame even offered me MONEY! Not only that, but a 24-year-old kid passed me a note, "What are you saving it for Dad? The prom?" I even had them trying to break into my room at night.

Maybe I'm old fashioned, but I still like to do the asking, but nowadays you don't get the chance. They ask you first.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

Women usually notice a lump in their breasts by accident. It may have been there for crucial months. Since early discovery is so essential to cure, self examination is extremely impotrant. The best time to do this is once a month just after each menstrual period. Here are the directions from the American Cancer Society.

1. Sit or stand in front of your mirror, with your arms relaxed at your sides, and examine your breasts carefully for any changes in size and shape. Look for any puckering or dimpling of the skin, and for any discharge from the nipples.

2. Raise both your arms over your head, and look for exactly the same things. See if there's been any change since you last examined your breasts.

3. Lie down on your bed, put a pillow or a bath towel under your left shoulder, and your left hand under your head. (From this Step through Step 8, you should feel for a lump or thickening.) With the fingers of your right hand held together flat, press gently but firmly with small circular motions to feel the inner, upper quarter of your left breast, starting at your breastbone and going outward toward the nipple line. Also feel the area around the nipple.

4. With the same gentle pressure, feel the lower inner part of your breast. Incidentally, in this area you will feel a ridge of firm tissue or flesh. Don't be alarmed. This is perfectly normal.

5. Now bring your left arm down to your side, and still using the flat part of your fingers, feel under your armpit.

6. Use the same gentle pressure to feel the upper, outer quarter of your breast from the nipple line to where your arm is resting.

7. And finally, feel the lower outer section of your breast, going from the outer part to the nipple.

8. Repeat the entire procedure, as described, on the right breast.

Your own doctor may want you to use a slightly different method of examination. Ask him to teach you that method. No matter how you do it, do it at least once a month.

Always Look Ageless

To get an ageless look, you must first make all the little age lines in your facial skin so inconspicuous they won't be seen by people at greeting distance from you. Or, better yet, get rid of them altogether. Ask your favorite cosmetician for a bottle of 2nd Debut, the lotion that women everywhere are calling their secret face lift. This lotion contains CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) that expands underneath lines to push them upward so they level with the skin's surface and thereby become invisible. This smoothed-out appearance of the skin gives the face an ageless look that favors its wearer with an almost unlimited variety in her choice of clothes.

More Time to Read Mrs. Cadieux' Wish

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — Delicate, precise in her speech and extremely poised — these are some of the qualities that stand out in Mrs. Leo Cadieux, wife of the defence minister.

Slender and dark-haired, Mrs. Cadieux is an introspective person who likes plenty of time to think and read quietly.

MRS. LEO CADIEUX

Interviewed in the serene setting of the Cadieux apartment which was brightened by vases of delicate white flowers, colorful dried grasses and gladioli, Monique Cadieux began thoughtfully, speaking in French.

"I am a very calm type of person, I think," she said. "I haven't got more than about five close friends.

"We get together sometimes but I am very fond of tranquillity and reflection. My husband is the same."

Their four-year-old son, Fabrice, goes to kindergarten, but she still spends much of her time with him.

"He can easily talk with an adult and when he started kindergarten at 3½, he could read. I think he is interested in learning English already."

Mrs. Cadieux was born and raised in the small town of Mont Laurier, Que. After attending normal school she taught primary grades.

She then decided to take a nursing course at the Hotel Dieu in Montreal and did private-duty nursing for four years after graduation.

"In 1961 I met my husband, a widower, and we were married. I was 26 years old and he was twice that."

Although she sews, knits and is learning English, one of Mrs. Cadieux' favorite pastimes is reading. She shies away from contemporary writers, preferring such authors as Marcel Proust and the great French 17th century dramatists.

"I'm very much interested in archeological findings and everything connected with ancient civilizations, especially Rome and Greece."

The interview became a discussion of history and literature, with Mrs. Cadieux stating her thoughts easily and decisively.

"Sometimes," she said eventually, "I say to my husband: 'I don't seem to be like other women.'

"'That's just why I married you,' he replies."

More thoughtfulness . . .

"Life is so short. With a book it's pleasant and enriched. When you spend a day with a book, you never have any regrets."

WILL SARIS REPLACE MINIS?

MONTREAL (UPI) — A Pakistan textile industry delegation today started a campaign to try to get Canadian women to wear saris.

The campaign was kicked off by a dozen models who staged an all-Pakistan fashion show for noontime crowds in the Air Canada lobby of the Place Ville Marie office building-shopping complex in midtown Montreal.

A spokesman said the show was "an invitation to Canadian women to wear suitable Pakistan dresses in Canada."

Plan Luncheon — The Native Daughters of British Columbia, Post No. 3, made arrangements for a luncheon to be held Saturday, November 16 when they met recently at the Inn on Cook Street. The luncheon, honoring Douglas Day, will be held in the Inn from 11:30 to 1 p.m. There will also be home cooking and novelty stalls. Reports were read from various committees including one by Miss Jean Lorimer on the recent meeting of the Historical Society, held in Newcombe Hall of the Provincial Museum. Miss Winnifred Greig was elected an honorary member of the Post. Chief Factor, Mrs. M. Scogstad presided. Following the meeting refreshments were served and a social hour held.

TRY THIS

By PAULINE GRAVES

A Table That Divides and Serves

Anytime that you can plan for furniture or a room to function in more than one way, you are making the most of every inch in your home. And in today's economy of high costs, that double use saves you extra expenditures for added furniture or rooms.

Such a use is found in this table that serves both kitchen and family room, and separates these two areas as well.

A table divider is not uncommon, but usually the length of the table performs the division. However, in this instance there just was not enough room. Instead, the table is perpendicular to the kitchen's end wall, and juts into the family room. To make the table an architectural feature, one end rests on a low partition, an extension of the wall, while legs support the other end.

The advantage of the arrangement is that chairs can be placed on both sides of the table without crowding either room, yet the table is accessible to the kitchen as a counter from the open end. Or if the entire surface is needed for working, the chairs move easily into the family room.

Although all of the kitchen stresses light colors, white walls and counter tops and a white wash over the ash cabinets, the table adds color with a dark green laminated plastic top which identifies it with the family room.

Faculty Runs For Fitness

TORONTO (CP) — The 20 laps around the gymnasium take the women 12 minutes, so they're not likely to set any track records.

But then Mary Lyons, co-ordinator of women's athletics at York University who is conducting the exercises for the women faculty members, is after something more valuable.

"The main thing is that it's a conditioning program, not a weight-losing program, to promote better all-round health," she said in an interview.

The noon-time sprints began shortly after the school year opened.

Already the program has been beneficial. She says the women "find they don't get tired as easily, they sleep better and they're more alert."

The 12-minute run is preceded by 15 minutes of calisthenics.

The men faculty members have a fitness program too, but the women say they hear a lot of puffing coming from the men's gymnasium.

Community Arts Council Plans Membership Party at Theatre

A backstage tour of the Newcombe Auditorium in the provincial museum will precede a membership party to be held in the theatre lobby by the Community Arts Council Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Another special event will be presentation of life memberships on the council to Mrs. Gertrude Stocker and John Graeme. The memberships will be presented by council president Clyde Savage.

Guests at the party will include members and friends of the 29 groups represented on the council. Hosts are groups who have received grants from the council.

Entertainment will be provided by The Victoria Choral Society and the Victoria Operatic Society, and there will be an exhibit of paintings by art students who have received council scholarships.

As well as providing a chance for the present members of the groups to meet, the council also hopes to encourage new members to join. Mrs. Robert Price is membership chairman, and it has been pointed out that new members need not belong to any of the member groups.

Tom Sherwood, 383-5921, executive secretary of the council will be available to give further information.

Call of the Yukon Lures Prospector to First Love

By HUMPHREY DAVY

LEE
. . . $1,000,000 claim

In the early spring of 1920, two young men left Whitehorse for Dawson city in the Yukon in a boat they had slapped together at a cost of $20.

One of the men looked like he was wearing a suit of shining armor as they started their hazardous 350-mile journey down the great Yukon river. His clothes, his boots and his hair were frozen stiff.

He had fallen through the ice three times while crossing frozen La Berge Lake, near Whitehorse with a dog team. They had to cross the lake in order to launch their boat. It was the only easy access to the river.

A long pole which he carried in his hand had saved his life. It stopped him from going under the ice and helped him to crawl back to safety.

Sixteen days later he arrived in Dawson city, with a total of $15 in his pocket.

ENDS LAST TERM

The young man who narrowly escaped drowning was Central Saanich Mayor R. Gordon Lee, who completes his last term of office in December.

He is stepping out of municipal politics — a decision he made earlier this year.

It's time for someone else to take over," he told aldermen who urged him to stay on for another year. "I'm not as alert as I was 10 years ago. I'm 69. That's the reason I'm pulling out."

But his explanation for retiring from municipal life has never made sense to members of council and his many friends. He doesn't yet look like a man who is feeling the strain of municipal business or lacking in energy.

Perhaps the real reason isn't age, but as Kipling says in his poem.

"Try as he will, no man breaks wholly loose

"From his first love, no matter who she be.

"Oh, was there ever sailor free to choose,

"That didn't settle somewhere near the sea?"

He is actually returning to his first love — the Yukon— where he worked 35 years as a prospector, miner, accountant, government inspector and store keeper.

Starting next spring he plans to operate and develop a silver mine he owns in the territory.

"It's a new venture and I'm looking forward to it," he said, in discussing his plans.

But the reeve will be returning to a land far different today than it was 45 years ago.

It was in 1920 that the mayor left England for the Yukon after serving in the First World War with the Royal Navy aboard battleships and submarines.

There were no roads then. A man travelled by boat, trail or horse if he could afford the latter. Most of the inhabitants in the territory were miners who had taken part in the famous Klondyke gold rush of '98.

PICK AND SHOVEL

He prospected for gold and silver and for a time worked in a mine with pick and shovel as a "mucher." Later he served for 21 years as accountant for the Treadwell Co., which operates a silver mine at Keno Hill.

His other occupations included immigration inspector and excise examiner at Whitehorse and operator of small department store for 12 years.

Today he is regarded as one of Canada's leading authorities on the Yukon.

It was while he was prospecting 40 years ago that he staked a mining claim, working it year after year. Two years ago he was successful in locating rich veins of silver.

$1,000,000 CLAIM

"I have in sight $1,000,000 in silver-lead-cadium ore," he said. "I'm optimistic that I'll find more."

If the mayor has made his mark in the Yukon, he has been equally as successful as a civic administrator.

According to a senior official of the department of municipal affairs, Central Saanich under his leadership has become one of the most efficiently operated municipalities in B.C.

His services on an inter-municipal level have also been appreciated.

For the past three years he has been chairman of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health and for the last two years head of the Capital Region Board.

REWARDING WORK

"I've enjoyed the work," he said. It's a job that doesn't pay, but it's rewarding. That is the only thing that counts.

But why start a new venture at 69 — why not leave someone else to run the mine?" he was asked.

"I've had one ambition all my life — to run and operate a mine of my own," he confessed. "I know mines, I've worked in them."

Kipling was right after all.

"Men must keep touch with things they used to use

"To earn their living, even when they are free:

"And some come back upon the least excuse—

"Same as the sailor settled near the sea."

Lack of Money Kills Citizenship Council

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Citizenship Council has died a hard death as delegates to its annual meeting spoke strongly both for and against its dissolution.

The national organization to promote good Canadian citizenship included as members national and local organizations and individual people.

Before delegates at the final session of a two-day meeting decided by a vote of 45 to 22 to disband the council, several urged that it be continued, at least until some new organization could be formed to meet the needs of a changing society.

Lack of funds forced the demise.

Arthur Stinson of Ottawa, former executive director for the council, said the organization's high point had been reached in the 1940s.

Then its resources had dwindled, and about 1960 it became "almost bankrupt."

Since that time, dedicated people had tried to keep the council alive and interest new people in it. But they had had great difficulty.

Following the vote, the delegates empowered the council's present board of directors to bring business matters to an orderly end. The council has some commitments until the end of the year.

Zone Hearing

A public hearing will be held Monday in the Saanich council chamber into two rezoning applications.

The applications seek an apartment on the east side of the 800-block Seymour and general commercial zoning at the rear of 3388 Douglas.

RICH GREEK PUT ON YEARS

LONDON (CP) — The real age of Aristotle Onassis seems to be 62, not 69 as shown on his Argentine passport.

The mystery surrounding the age of the Greek shipping magnate who married Jacqueline Kennedy Sunday is explained by author Willi Frischauer in his recent biography, Onassis.

When the young Onassis left his home city of Smyrna—now Izmir in Turkey—to seek his fortune in the Argentine, he added the extra years to his age, reasoning that the more mature he was, the more likely Argentine authorities would be to let him settle in

Biafran City Becomes Ghost Town

By JACK BEST

ONITSHA (CP) — "I miss my family so much I can't sleep at night."

Sitting outside the small house which he shares with many other people, Chief Francis Iwenofu Omodi Daike told of grief that has turned his old age into an eternity of torment and loneliness.

Chief Francis is one of nearly 3,000 persons who inhabit a refugee camp here, practically the only ones left of a population of 160,000 that inhabited Onitsha before the civil war broke out in Nigeria.

The rest fled with the retreating Biafran army when federal troops reoccupied this area last March, or disappeared into surrounding bush and are still there.

Onitsha, on the east bank of the Niger River 280 miles east of Lagos, now is a ghost town.

The population of the refugee camps given as 3,000 though competent observers say it is much less than that.

SPEAK IBO LANGUAGE

The inhabitants are what are called Onitsha Ibos. Although they speak the Ibo tongue they are actually of the Ebo tribe, and some from an area 80 miles west of here.

The breakaway state of Biafra is run by Ibos.

Everyone at the camp seems to have spent some time in the bush after federal forces arrived, finally coming out in response to federal coaxing or through sheer inability to survive.

Chief Francis, 84, is typical of a large number in camp whose entire families have disappeared without a trace.

"I have no idea where my wife and children are," he says. "They are all scattered."

Asked how many children he has, he replied: "About 18." His 16 grandchildren also are gone.

Another resident is a woman of about 60 who has two daughters and one son. Two daughters are here but the son is missing as are her nine grandchildren.

Asked whether she ever cries over the missing ones, she replies: "I am tired of crying."

As to the conduct of federal soldiers she says: "They don't beat us and they look after us well."

The camp has a primary and secondary school with an enrolment of 232 children. It has 16 teachers, one librarian and 14 small rooms. One teacher and the headmaster receive small honorariums, in one case the equivalent of $24 and in the other $80 monthly. Other teachers are strictly volunteer.

Councils Given More Time

Municipal councils on southern Vancouver Island will be asked to decide by the middle of next month whether they favor a merger of the Capital Region Planning Board with the multi-purpose Capital Regional District.

Only two municipalities have arrived at decisions — both Esquimalt and Central Saanich approve regional planning becoming a function of the regional district.

The Capital Region Planning Board, at its meeting Tuesday, voted to ask councils to submit their decisions prior to the next board meeting Nov. 19.

The board had recommended one month ago that local councils make up their minds by Tuesday's meeting.

Five municipalities have yet to make decisions — Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, North Saanich and Sidney.

The board was told Victoria will consider the matter in private Thursday. Saanich will hold a special council meeting. Sidney and North Saanich have discussed it behind closed doors without a decision. Oak Bay was reported "up in the air" by Mayor Fred Hawes.

Board chairman Gordon Lee, the mayor of Central Saanich, said it is desirable to have all the decisions so the regional district itself can consider the question at its December meeting.

OPPOSITION PRESSES POSTAL BILL STUDY

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons resumed debate Tuesday on a measure to raise Canada's postal rates and Opposition members pressed their demand that the bill be studied by a committee of the House before passage.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the bill should be sent to a committee and proposed amendments to the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act, "a subject of greater priority", called for Commons study.

He said Postmaster-General Eric Kierans is city oriented and had "lost contact with the vital needs of the rural community".

Hovercraft Bid Stalled?

Oak Bay Alderman Frances Elford said today that so far as she is concerned, no approval — "tentative or otherwise" — has been given for a hovercraft terminal in the municipality.

Council members are "still deliberating" on Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. request for a six-month trial for the first daily hovercraft service in North America.

She said she believes the meeting with company representatives Monday was nothing more than a hearing.

At the meeting, Ald. Scott Wallace asked whether council could give "temporary approval in principle provided we reserve the right to terminate any proposal forthwith when we have heard the machine tested."

If such an agreement could be reached, council could get the "whole matter settled on a temporary basis."

Pacific Hovercraft director Byng Heeney told council he was prepared to recommend the agreement to his fellow directors and, if it is approved, put it in writing to council.

Ald. J. D. Watts said that if that is done, council could deal with the matter at the next meeting or possibly at a special meeting or at a special meeting.

Ald. Elford said today that the motion to that effect was never properly seconded and that no approval in principle has been given.

Park Land Leasing Scored

Leasing park land or facilities to individuals or groups, whether commercial or non-commercial, "is not good business."

This is one of the opinions of Philip Stroyan in his report on recreational possibilities for Elk-Beaver Lake in Saanich.

The report was commissioned earlier this year by Saanich council which, at its Monday night meeting, decided to refer it to parks and recreation committee.

Mr. Stroyan said he based his opinion on a number of years experience in the Vancouver parks system.

The same result as leasing can be obtained, in most cases, by giving permission to use rather than by giving a lease, he said.

If a club has to erect a building, the mortgager may require a long-term lease which would alienate public property.

'OUT OF HAND'

Assignment of subletting of leases encourages the lessee to feel he has the right to sell the goodwill of the business as well as his interest in the actual assets, "and the whole transaction can get completely out of hand."

Probably the best-known lease is held by Wooded Wonderland. This lease expires early next year.

The report describes the exhibit as "exceptionally well put together and is maintained in a very satisfactory manner and there is no suggestion here that it should not be continued."

But the lessee has applied to renew the present lease for five years, and the report recommended against this and replacing the lease with an operating agreement on a year-to-year basis and a stipulation that this cannot be assigned or sub-let.

The report also recommended that the present rent of $1,000 a year be replaced by payment of a percentage of gross receipts using numbered tickets supplied by Saanich and audited regularly.

No percentage figure was mentioned, but it was suggested that financial statements of the present operation over past years be studied.

The report recommended non-renewal of leases held by the Victoria City Rowing Club (replacing this by year-to-year permission), and that the Cerebral Palsy Association lease on 300 feet of beach adjoining Hamsterley Park not be renewed.

The report said the leased area, fenced and locked, should be made available for public use with Hamsterley Park and beach crowded to capacity on busy days.

SERIES of seminars on ways to bring about "open government" has been launched by communications expert Marshall McLuhan with Liberal cabinet ministers and party officials. In the opening session, McLuhan talked with Prime Minister Trudeau and other Grit leaders "about the whole question of how to improve the relations and communications between government and the people."

Saturday Night Publisher To Speak Here

Arnold Edinborough, owner and publisher of Saturday Night magazine, will speak to the Canadian Clubs of Victoria Oct. 28 and 29, it was announced Tuesday.

Mr. Edinborough, 46, has written political commentary in the magazine and recently gave up his duties as editor to devote full attention to Saturday Night Publications Ltd.

He will speak to the Women's Canadian Club at 2:30 p.m., Oct. 28, in the Empress Hotel. His address to the men's club will be at a Holyrood House luncheon the following day.

Charles Lynch, Ottawa bureau chief for the Southams News Service, will speak to the Canadian Clubs Nov. 25 and 26.

The women's meeting will be Nov. 25 at 2:30 p.m. in the Empress Hotel and the men's luncheon Nov. 26 at Holyrood House, not Nov. 27 as reported Monday.

Heads Lutherans

NEW YORK (AP) — Rev. Robert J. Marshall has been installed as president of the 3,000,000-member Lutheran Church in America. Marshall, 50, succeeds Rev. Franklin Clark Fry, who died June 6.

120 ARRESTED AS STUDENTS STAGE SIT-IN

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Campus police arrested 120 persons who staged a sit-in at the University of California's administration building Tuesday in an effort to obtain academic credit for an experimental course on racism in the United States.

Buses arriving from the Alameda County sheriff's office to transport those arrested to the Santa Rita detention centre drew a crowd of about 3,000 outside the building.

That next raise could buy color TV, or a boat. Big deal. Why not buy a difference in the way you live.

One more material possession — or an exciting wide-open kind of life that a new address can bring. A nicer neighborhood, schools, friends. More space. And for only ten, twenty, fifty dollars a month. A small amount of money for all the dividends.

Stop and think about four to a bathroom. The cramped quarters where the tools are kept. A den too small for the stereo and books and easy chair . . . and all the et cetera a family can't live without. That's a part of your life today.

But your tomorrows can be better. It all has to do with where you live. A home determines your wife's attitudes, reflects a man's career, shapes a child's future.

Where you live, how well you live will affect your children, their children and their children's children. A new home can make the great big difference between mere existence and existence with meaning. No other single move you make could make such a difference.

Yippie Leader Urges Freedom From Cop Within

By ALAN WHITE

Jerry Rubin walked out to the microphone with a girl in each arm, his short, stocky frame draped with a Viet Cong flag.

He wore a flowered shirt, and a matching headband bound his long hair back.

His dress was the costume of his Youth International Party, organized loosely in New York a year ago and popularly known as the Yippies.

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons stood in front of the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria to hear Mr. Rubin speak.

"I don't believe too much in speeches," the bearded 30-year-old said as he took the microphone in one hand. "Actually, the most important thing about a speech is the crowd you get coming together.

'POWER OF NUMBERS'

"The only way America controls its people is by separating them. We're going to change the country by making them feel the power of numbers."

Mr. Rubin spoke quietly, trying to put his point across. Most of the crowd was composed of students, with a large group from off-campus who were eager to hear him.

The Yippie leader has become widely known for his activities against the Vietnam war and during the Democratic Party convention in Chicago.

He was invited by the Uvic student political forum while on a trip to the three British Columbia universities.

"The Yippies are a religious movement," Mr. Rubin said. "I consdier myself a priest."

'RIGID PERSONALITIES'

Part of the aim of the movement was to break away from repressions and rigid personalities, "part of the police state.

"All of us are policemen—we control ourselves. And that's our hangup," he said. "We've got to get the policeman out of ourselves. Completely. Then we've got to get rid of the professional cop."

The self must be free, Mr. Rubin said. Man's body is his "credit card" and everything should be free to him. Everything man gets should be based on need—any other system is exploitation.

"The Rockefeller myth is dead . . . no one can be a Rockefeller now. When people ask what I do (for work), I say I do nothing. This is good.

STEALING MORAL

"Stealing is moral—the whole system is based on theft. We've got to free ourselves," Mr. Rubin said.

But two groups of people are going to change America—the blacks who have been "beaten and emptied" and those from the white middle class who have "broken out" to freedom.

With this revolution of the younger generation "young whites are becoming the new niggers," he said. "And the United States is fighting a war of genocide against its own youth.

The purpose of the war in Vietnam is to get rid of America's youth, he said.

LOUD CATCALLS

At this point a block of students in the crowd jeered and shouted loud catcalls at the speaker.

Now the Yippie movement is trying to free people's bodies from control by the political system by trying to reach them through a "guerrilla theatre."

University is "no longer a place to go to study but a place you go to demonstrate."

Now dissenters are trying to transform what a city means, to make it a place where people can meet and live in the streets.

JUST EXCUSE

If the Yippies and their followers manage in their goal of closing down every university in America, they will stop the Vietnam war.

During a later question period he said the war was just an "excuse" to get the dissent started. The real aim of the Yippie movement was to break up the existing society and re-form it.

During the question period, students resorted to laughter and shouting to drown Mr. Rubin out.

But in a later session inside the building, he answered questions from a group of about 40 persons, predominantly long-haired, who wanted to talk to him.

Bill Submitted For Riot Control

CHICAGO (AP) — Overtime owed Chicago's police and firemen for work during the Democratic national convention in August totalled $2,235,130, bills submitted to the city comptroller's office showed Tuesday.

Police officers are due a total of $1,833,631 for their extra hours during the week and firemen will get $401,499.

To Direct Campaign

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rod McIsaac, 41, of Winnipeg was named Tuesday to direct the Liberal party's campaign in the next provincial general election. He was campaign chairman for the party in the June 25 federal election when five Liberals were elected to Parliament.

New Coalition Gov't Prospect for Italy

ROME (AP) — Final passage of the Italian government's economic "superbill" Tuesday night increased chances that the Socialist party congress opening today will vote to return to the government.

The Socialists, Italy's third-largest party, are to decide whether to rejoin the Christian Democrats and the Republicans in a new coalition government, and on what terms.

All three parties favored the economic legislation, which provides tax benefits for new industry and for developments in the impoverished south, and grants more than $1,000,000,000 for projects to spur the economy.

The Communists and their allies opposed the measure, but it passed in the chamber Oct. 16 and in the Senate Tuesday night.

The debate in the 950-delegate Socialist congress was expected to be bitter on the question of resurrecting the centre-left coalition that collapsed after the party suffered a sharp rebuff in the national elections last May.

The Socialists were the only alliance partner to suffer losses in that election. They backed out of the coalition in an attempt to force the Christian Democrats into sponsoring reform legislation which could attract votes away from the Communists.

As delegates gathered today for the party congress, not one faction had a majority. But it appeared likely they would agree, perhaps reluctantly, to try the centre-left formula again.

GROUSE SYMBOLIC OF CANADA?

TORONTO (CP) — A new set of symbols was suggested for Canada Tuesday by Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun.

He told a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club of Toronto that, because of one of the common denominators among Canadians is their ability to complain, Canada's national bird could be the grouse, its national tree the weeping willow and its national dish vichysoisse, "because we're cold, half French and difficult to stir."

Schools Seek Conciliator

The Greater Victoria school board has requested a government conciliator to deal with a 10-per-cent salary increase proposed by teachers who say the rise is necessary to maintain local education standards.

In a joint statement Tuesday, the teachers say only approximately 60 per cent of Victoria teachers have university degrees.

An increase in basic salary scale of 10.17 per cent is proposed "to attract and maintain higher qualification standards here."

NO COUNTER-OFFER

The statement followed the fourth teachers-board bargaining meeting in three weeks. The current salary agreement expires Dec. 31.

No counter-offer has been made by the board, represented in negotiations by lawyer E. E. Pearlman. Burke Cahill, a Mt. Douglas high school teacher, heads the 1,280-member teachers association bargaining committee.

If the government conciliator is unable to make a settlement by Nov. 14, the government will impose binding arbitration.

The statement says the proposed increase "would result in an increase in the annual payroll of $1,059,450, which is equal to 3.49 mills on the 1968 school district assessed values."

It notes that 10 years ago Victoria teachers received salaries "slightly higher" than Vancouver teachers. Salaries here now are "slightly lower."

These salary negotiations are considered important by both sides since legislation last winter eliminated the old salary grant schedule and set up a new teacher certification system.

PRIEST LED 2 LIVES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest who authorities say led a double life as a wealthy electronics executive pleaded guilty Tuesday to two counts of failing to file personal income taxes in 1963 and 1965.

Rev. Robert Daniel Nikliborc, president and financial director of Boys Town of the Desert at Banning, Calif., will be sentenced November 18. Both counts are misdemeanors and carry a maximum penalty of a year in prison and a $20,000 fine.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank many friends, neighbours, and relations for their sincere sympathy and kindness shown us in the death of a dear husband and father. We wish to thank the Rev. G. Smith of Trinity Presbyterian Church for his kind words, Mr. Robert Moore for his kindness and help and to those who donated to the heart fund.—Mary Dale and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAY—E. In ever loving memory of my dearly beloved wife "Cissie," who passed away 38 years ago today.

I do not know why you have gone,
or why I am left alone?
I tried so hard to keep you here,
my love, my very own.
I see your face, your loving eyes,
They seem to say, do not worry
dear.
You are so near to me.
—Your ever-loving husband, Bob.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's hand has been developed from another Card School question. They ask, "What do you respond with the South hand?"

Lots of players will reply one spade. If asked why, they say, "To keep the bidding low."

They would succeed in that purpose admirably. North would rebid either one no-trump or two hearts; South would bid three clubs; North would have no idea that South held more clubs than spades and the bidding would die at three no-trump. South would make at least 10 tricks but there would be no slam bonus awarded.

Opening lead—♥ K

The bidding in the box shows what would probably happen after South makes the correct response of two clubs. He would get to six clubs and would make it with careful play and without taking any finesses.

There are several ways to make the contract but the most elegant and the surest is for South to win the opening heart lead and plan to ruff out two spades.

Since there will be entry problems to his own hand, he should play one high trump and cash dummy's ace and king of diamonds for tricks two, three and four. If someone ruffs the second diamond, South decides it is not his day and pays off. Then he cashes his ace and king of spades. Spades go twice and his worries are over. He ruffs a spade in dummy, a diamond in his hand, his last spade in dummy and claims his contract. He will have to lose a heart but you can afford to lose one trick when you have contracted for 12.

Getting back to the bidding, you should learn to bid as normally as possible with big hands. South holds a sound opening bid and should start proceedings by bidding his longest suit.

Overlapping In Planning, Hellyer Says

TORONTO (CP) — New cities should be built on undeveloped land near established cities and designed around existing transportation systems, Transport Minister Hellyer said Tuesday.

He told the Canadian Conference on Housing that such projects would cut housing costs and remove red tape now delaying building developments.

"There are too many agencies and there is too much overlapping in town planning," he said.

Downtown redevelopment was not the answer to housing problems. It was impossible to jam all the people living in the suburbs into the business core every day.

Donald Deacon, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for York Centre, said a provincial subsidy to municipalities would encourage them to approve low-cost housing.

He said municipalities refuse to approve low-cost housing they can't afford to service.

Earlier, Roland Cote, executive director of the Quebec Federation of Housing Co-operatives, said that co-operatives free housing from the speculation market, "since the member of the co-operative has to pay only for what the service of his apartment costs."

He said mortgage loans should be made available in relation to the proportion of the family budget normally reserved for housing, the general economic picture and the cost of living increase rates.

Seven Feared Drowned

CALCUTTA (Reuters)—Seven persons were feared drowned when a tidal wave shattered a 30-foot jetty while a crowd was watching a religious ceremony Tuesday night. The crowd was watching the immersion of a statue of the goddess Kali in the sacred Ganges River during festival ceremonies.

Public Housing Project Praised

MONTREAL (CP) — After running into an almost steady stream of criticism from citizens opposed to urban renewal, a federal housing inquiry wound up its two-day tour of Montreal late Tuesday listening to people who said slum clearance had made their lives "worth living again."

The seven-man housing inquiry currently is touring urban centres in search of information on the state of housing across Canada.

Led by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, the study group began its investigation two months ago. The group already has visited Ottawa, Sudbury, Charlottetown, Toronto and goes to Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon and Thompson, Manitoba at the end of the month.

Monday the inquiry listened to 16 briefs, one-quarter of which were critical of current urban renewal techniques.

Representatives of four local citizens action groups said they would like to see more restoration of old buildings and less demolition. All were against expropriation of land and buildings.

There was more of the same Tuesday as the inquiry toured Montreal's former slum area—Little Burgundy in west-central Montreal.

A dozen citizens of the area complained about the expropriation of their homes for subsidized public housing.

But at the Jeanne Mance Habitations, Montreal's first public housing project, citizens were beaming with pride at the success of their housing scheme.

"Thank you, gentlemen, thank you," one elderly woman kept repeating to inquiry members who had asked whether conditions had improved following renewal.

Some who had lived in the area, east of downtown, said living conditions in the area prior to redevelopment were "inhuman."

"We we always sick," said one woman.

Jean-Rene Gagne said he would find it "impossible" to live elsewhere. The project "made life worth living again" for him and his family.

About 1,100 families live in the Jeanne Mance project, a group of five 12-storey buildings where rents average about $50 per month and are subject to increase as family income grows.

Fines Upheld

EDMONTON (CP) — Judge S. S. Lieberman has upheld a lower court's fine imposed on two Bonnyvale men for killing an elk calf and for hunting from an airplane. Magistrate E. Wade had fined Roy Velere, 38, and Bernard Ouiet, 52, $250 apiece on each count April 11 at Lac La Biche.

FOUR DIE, 16 HURT IN BLAZES

CHICAGO (AP) — Four persons were killed and 16 were injured, four critically, when fire swept two floors of an apartment-hotel on Chicago's North Side Tuesday night.

Michael Mahoney, first deputy fire marshal, quoted Kathy Abercrombie, a resident of the hotel, as saying she fell asleep while smoking and awakened to find her second-floor room ablaze.

Longest School Bus Now Serves Duncan

DUNCAN — A bus capable of carrying 85 elementary school children has been delivered to Cowichan School District.

It will be the longest school bus in service in the province.

The 37-foot-long bus cost $17,000 and was built by the Bluebird Company of Brantford, Ontario.

Cowichan school board has a fleet of 11 buses which daily transport 2,500 students and cover 175,000 miles a year.

CREATING a series of fantastic properties demanded in the Victoria Theatre Guild production of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet", has absorbed many hours for Mrs. Margaret Anderson, right, and her assistant, Mrs. Louise Raymond. Mrs. Anderson's Exeter Road home has become a workshop where Venus fly-traps and Pirhana fish, among other things, are manufactured. The plants that move and fight with their owner required considerable ingenuity but so did fabrication of the cat skeleton Mrs. Anderson is holding. The play is running nightly at Langham Court Theatre, ending Saturday. Box office is at Eaton's.

DARK OF THE SUN
Simba Rebellion
Capitol Theatre

As an African adventure story, Dark of the Sun is a fair exercise in demolition warfare; as a history of the Simba rebellion of 1964 it is wildly inaccurate.

The Congolese national army, which it depicts as heroic, was undisciplined and corrupt, according to the record.

The Simba rebels, portrayed in the film as raping terrorists, were relatively well disciplined, forbidden to steal from the whites or even lay hands on a white woman.

The film story tells of Captain Rod Taylor, a tough mercenary, and Sergeant Jim Brown, a native of the African Congo, returning to his homeland from the United States after the outbreak of hostilities.

They are told to go into the interior to rescue a number of white inhabitants threatened by the rebels. They are also required to rescue some $50,000,000 in diamonds.

Capt. Taylor is offered a big premium if he can get the diamonds back within three days, and is given carte blanche in the way of men and supplies.

* * *

He is reluctant to take along Peter Carsten, an ex-Nazi officer but Sgt. Brown persuades him they will need Carsten's knowledge and experience.

They assemble a train, staff it with soldiers and leave. After an encounter with a strafing plane, they reach their destination only to find that the diamonds are concealed in a vault with a time lock.

By various strategies, Capt. Taylor secures the diamonds and gets them to the train, but the rebels attack and the train is derailed; so Taylor and Sgt. Brown take to the woods.

The African scenery is magnificent and there is plenty of action, suspense and terror to back up the story.

But, in their quest of diamonds, the cinematic mercenaries headed in the wrong direction. The Congo's chief source of diamonds is South Kasai province, which the real-life Simba rebels never attacked.

Theatre School Scholarships Awarded Youth

Bastion Theatre school director Jack Trueman has announced the winners of two scholarships awarded by Bastion Actors' Committee for the 1968-69 theatre school session.

One of the scholarships goes to Heather Regehr, 17, of 933 Falaise Crescent.

A former Bastion Theatre School student recently returned after two years in the interior, she was selected best actress in both the East and West Kootenay High School Drama Festivals and best actress in the B.C. High School finals in Vancouver. She also won the award in the West Kootenay Adult Drama Festival.

Douglas Browning, 13, 1080 Tulip Avenue, was awarded the second scholarship. He appeared as a page in Bastion's production of Camelot last Christmas.

5-Day Publication For Quebec Paper

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—The Record announces that starting this week it switches to five days a week publication from six, ending its Saturday edition.

The English-language newspaper, with a daily circulation of about 9,000, says the change is necessary because of "spiralling costs of materials and services," including a threatened increase in postage rates."

Jobless Trucker Hits $10,000 Jackpot

EDMONTON (CP) — An unexpected $10,000 came just at the right time for George Toule, a city truck driver who struck it rich at a service club bingo game Monday night. He was laid off Tuesday.

"It couldn't have come at a better time," said Toule, who drove a truck for Con-Force Construction, the company that laid him off when striking construction workers began picketing the project he was working on.

Married and the father of five children, Toule said he was giving half the $10,000 to his mother-in-law, Nellie Burgess, who was playing in the game with him.

HOME GARDEN

Planning for Spring

By HILDA BEASTALL

Making a plan in October for a vegetable garden to be sown and planted next spring may seem just another way to use up a few hours' time. When putting in a new garden with the more permanent things like rhubarb, currants and berries, duration of sunshine in any given spot is important.

Hilda

Just now, with summer months freshly in our minds, it should be easy to draw a rough plan of the vegetable and fruit garden.

On it, mark the position of any permanent tree or building casting shadow within the boundaries. Berries will do well in occasional shade, while rhubarb requires day-long sun to be perfect.

Most vegetables grown from seed each year need full sunshine during their season, though lettuce will do well with afternoon shade.

Corn, tomatoes, sweet peppers and squash need full sun though squash will grow in the shadow of corn.

Rows running north and south give best results in this latitude.

Root crops, like carrots, potatoes, beets, parsnips and turnips gain better flavor when grown in full sunshine, while peas and beans are successful with either morning or afternoon sun.

This means, during summer, sunlight for approximately six or seven hours. In this connection, figure that morning hours are cooler than afternoon hours.

In winter months the sun travels a low path on the southern sector of the sky, giving us very different shadows in our gardens than those during the main vegetable growing season between April and September.

This indicates the wisdom of plan-making now while memories of summer sun are still warm in our minds.

YOUR HEALTH

Muscular Dystrophy Explained

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

What is muscular dystrophy? Dys means disordered or bad or painful and trophy refers to development—hence a child with a muscular dystrophy has muscles that did not develop normally, and remained weak and perhaps poorly developed. Actually, there are a number of these diseases, and often it takes an expert with special techniques to tell them apart; also to tell muscular disease from nerve disease. In some cases there is a progressive wasting of the muscles.

Alvarez

In most cases the disease is inherited and runs through a family. Research is being done in an effort to find what in these cases is chemically wrong with the weak or shrunken muscles. When this is learned, the giving of some chemical may work a cure.

In the United States, there are probably 200,000 persons disabled by muscular dystrophy. Males are affected by muscular dystrophy from five to six times as often as females.

A child may become clumsy, then weak, and finally helpless. Often the disease is recognizable by the way way a child, when he wants to get up, has to roll onto his stomach, then get on all fours, and then climb up his legs with his hands until he stands.

* * *

In some cases, because the muscle tissue is replaced by fat, the calves of the legs get big. The child's arms may hang limply, and most of his affected muscles will be very thin. Such children seldom live to adulthood.

The disease can strike at people of all ages. Sometimes the facial muscles are the first to get weak. Many such patients are in wheelchairs. Fortunately, there is seldom any pain with the children's disease. It is not catching. Fortunately, the muscles of the hands are usually the last to be affected.

Sometimes the diagnosis is difficult and can be made only by an able neurologist. It is helpful to know that other members of the family have the disease. Sometimes a biopsy is made—by which is meant that under local anesthesia a little piece of muscle is cut out, sectioned and stained and examined under a microscope. Another test is made in which the electrical currents in the muscle are studied. Sometimes a bit of muscle is grown in a test tube and much is learned in that way.

There are several types of muscular dystrophies: 1. In childhood, there is the pseudo-hypertrophic. Pseudo means false, hyper means too much, and trophic means developing—hence in these cases some muscles look enlarged, when actually they are very thin, but filled with fat.

2. The juvenile types: The muscles of the shoulder or pelvic "girdle" (affecting the use of the arms or legs) are too thin and weak.

3. There is a type in which there is weakening of muscles in the face, shoulder and shoulder-blade.

These types are not always clear-cut and easily distinguishable.

Unfortunately, no cure has yet been found. Some patients are helped by braces. A physiotherapist can help if only by keeping some little-used joints from "freezing" (with the ends of the bones stuck together), thereby making movement even more difficult. A corset is needed in some cases. Often the patient needs a wheelchair and an electric or mechanized lift to get him out of bed and onto his wheelchair.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

'Melt Spoons Into Bullets' Was Slogan

By BOB BOWMAN

When Hitler was arming Germany for the Second World War he told people who were complaining about food shortages that he was giving them "guns instead of butter." The idea wasn't original. Back in 1837, when French-speaking firebrands Papineau and Nelson were inciting the people of Quebec to revolt against Britain, one of their slogans was "The time has come to melt our spoons into bullets."

It is believed that the phrase was used first at a meeting at St. Charles, on October 23, 1837. Papineau and Nelson had drawn a crowd of about 6,000 habitants and spoke to them from an outdoor platform. Speakers had good voices in those days and didn't need electric amplifiers. Papineau was one of the best orators in Canadian history and the phrase "He speaks like a Papineau" is still heard in Quebec.

However, on this occasion Papineau's speaking was so effective that he scared himself. The meeting passed 30 resolutions, each of which was saluted by guns firing blank cartridges. As the fumes began to swirl around the platform Papineau began to modify the tone and terms of his demands.

Nevertheless, the St. Charles meeting marked the beginning of a rebellion that lasted two years and led to the deaths of many innocent people. A similar movement (to get responsible government) was developing in Upper Canada, led by William Lyon Mackenzie, but it was defeated in December without much loss of life or damage to property.

Other events on October 23:

1670—Jean Talon became Intendant for second time.

1786—New Brunswick government moved from Saint John to St. Anne's Point, now Fredericton.

1847— Telegraph service opened between Montreal and Albany, N.Y.

1873— Second session of Second Parliament opened during which Sir John A. Macdonald was forced to resign as Prime Minister owing to bribery charges.

1883—Marquis of Lorne became Governor-General.

1924—Plebiscite in Ontario supported prohibition but with reduced majority.

1935— Liberals under Mackenzie King formed government after defeat of Conservatives under R. B. Bennett.

1952—Canadian troops took part in battle of Little Gibraltar Hill in Korea.

1958—Explosion in Springhill, N.S., coal mine killed 78 miners.

Radiation Fades

HONOLULU (AP) — Atom bomb-scarred Bikini atoll can be fit for humans again by next July if the United States Congress grants $1,000,000 in restoration funds, says William B. Norwood, high commissioner for the trust territory of the Pacific. The Bikini natives were evacuated in 1946 for U.S. atom tests. A group returned recently to survey damage. U.S. experts said radiation danger was over.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Donna Lanbehn, age 12, of Gary, Indiana, for her question:

What are atolls?

Atolls are children of the sea, of its restless floor and the busy creatures that swarm in its waters. They are islands of a special sort and long before our ancestors voyaged around the world, the people of the Pacific had named them "atolus." We changed their word to "atolls."

Most of the world's atolls are tiny islands strewn about in the vast Pacific Ocean. Early explorers found many of them by chance. Most of them are much too small to merit a place on the ordinary map. Thousands of them have been found and nobody knows how many more have never been seen by man. After all, the vast Pacific covers almost one third of our planet and many atolls are just big enough to grow a couple of palm trees. Others are 10 to 20 miles wide and some are even bigger, but few atolls ever get to be very big islands.

The building of an atoll begins on the bed of the ocean, perhaps two or three miles below the surface waves. It begins when the crust of the earth gets upset. Maybe a submarine volcano erupts or a new mountain begins to hump up its spine. In any case, the bump on the seabed grows higher and higher through the ages. At last it grows almost as high as the surface. Then the story changes. The top of the hump is attacked by tides and pounding waves. The peak of a young mountain is washed away. Cindery debris from the cone of a volcano is swished down after each new eruption. In any case the pounding sea stops the jump from growing tall enough to rise above the waves and become an island of dry land.

Plants Take Root

The sea appears to win this part of the struggle to create dry land, but the battle is not over. The hump, now settled just below the tossing waves has friends and helpful allies. The warm waters are populated with assorted corals. And these small, soft-bodied creatures build themselves durable homes, preferably in the sunny surface waters. The submerged mountain is just right for them. One of them attaches itself and builds a tiny house of hard coral rock. It multiplies and its children settle down and add their sturdy houses to the first one. Other corals arrive and succeeding generations add their homes. They settle high on the sloping sides of the hump and soon the hump is crowned with a ring of rocky coral formations.

The waves do not bash down the sturdy coral and soon these hard formations poke above the surface. Since the formations are around the edge of the hump, they usually create a ring of dry land with a shallow lagoon of sea water in the middle. This is the atoll. Sometimes there is a break in the coral circle and the atoll is crescent-shaped. Winds and waters carry seeds from afar. Some take root on the coral atoll and deck it with tropical greenery. Birds may visit and sometimes the atoll is found by a shipwrecked sailor.

As a rule, where we find one atoll there are others not far away. This is because upheavals in the submarine floor of the sea usually extend over large areas. A mountain peak may be part of a range. A volcano may be one of a chain of fiery sisters.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to David Aul, age 13, of Conyers, Georgia, for his question:

Do all the planets revolve in the same direction?

The nine planets and also most other members of the Solar System are traveling around in the same direction. The circling system is somewhat like a saucer and to evaluate its motions we should try to visualize it from outside. We may consider the top side of the saucer to be our north direction—that is towards the earth's north polar axis. The bottom side then would be toward our South Pole. These markers have little or nothing to do with the vast reaches of the universe, but we need basic markers of some sort from which to figure the direction of motions.

Using our earthly north direction, let's zoom far out into space toward Polaris. From this imaginary point we can look down on the top of the Solar System. We can watch the nine planets revolving around the sun at different speeds, but all in the same direction. They revolve as the earth does, toward the east in a counterclockwise direction. The sun also rotates around its axis in the same direction and when viewed from the right position, so do all the planets. Most of the moons also orbit their planets in the same direction, though a few lunar oddballs are known to orbit backwards, toward our west direction.

'Loaded Against Little Man'—B.C. Leaders

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and T. C. Douglas, seatless federal NDP leader, all agreed today that the federal budget is unfairly stacked against the "little man".

Each said the budget mocked Prime Minister Trudeau's "just society" election campaign slogan.

They also suggested the "social development" label was merely a gimmick to prevent the provinces from sharing the revenue increase and to make up for last year's defeat of Mitchell Sharp's original surtax proposal.

B.C.'s new Liberal Leader Pat McGeer declined comment on the budget but explained it was because of his policy to avoid "useless off-the-cuff comments" on events worthy of serious study first.

Premier Bennett, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, scored the 2 per cent tax on two grounds.

He said Finance Minister Benson "is endeavoring to avoid" sharing any part of the $440 million the tax will produce next year by not identifying it as an increase in the personal and corporation income taxes which are shared under the federal-provincial tax rental agreements.

In B.C.'s case, he said, the provincial government stands to lose a 28-per-cent cut of the tax collected from its citizens.

(No firm estimates are available but the figures suggest some $50 million or more of the new tax revenue will come from B.C. citizens.

(About $14 million of this would be diverted to the province if the tax-rental arrangements applied. That would produce almost a 10-per-cent increase next year — aside from normal growth increment — in the provincial treasury's estimate that $154 million will come to it during the current fiscal year from personal income tax sharing.)

Bennett Soft-Pedals Criticism

But Mr. Bennett soft-pedalled his criticism of the "social development" label because he said the levy was a bad tax anyway by falling heavily only on ordinary Canadians.

"It just hits the poor people and then — with the $120 limit — it cuts off at the higher income levels," he said.

He also criticized the failure of the government to add the tax to corporation incomes "so that the companies don't have to share (the load) with the low income people and workers with families.

"If this is the just society, the people obviously are very quickly going to have enough of the just Liberal policies," the premier said.

Mr. Bennett also dismissed as political propaganda Mr. Benson's appeal to provincial governments to slow-down the cost increases of jointly-shared programs.

(Federal payments to B.C. for shared-cost programs jumped $10 million to an estimate of $115 million for the current fiscal year but this is expected to be exceeded in actual experi-

Most Canadian Businessmen Not Impressed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With few exceptions, business and political leaders across Canada sharply criticized Finance Minister Benson's budget tabled in the House of Commons Tuesday night.

"Not at all impressed," was Alberta Treasurer Anders Aalborg's reaction to the budget.

"It gives no signs of coping with the financial problems of the country," and stepped-up corporate taxes will only increase costs and "in a short time will be reflected in higher prices."

STEUART IS PLEASED

However, Saskatchewan Treasurer D. G. Steuart said he was pleased that the income tax was not hit harder.

He said the decision to tax life insurance companies, hitherto almost exempt from federal taxation, was a "move in the right direction."

Finance Minister Gurney Evans of Manitoba said the increase in personal income tax leaves that much less for the provinces and municipalities.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said the federal government ignored the needs of provinces and municipalities for financial relief.

He also said the budget, preceding the federal-provincial meeting on finances Nov. 4 and 5 in Ottawa, has largely nullified efforts to find new approaches on solving national fiscal problems.

Gross national product expected to increase by about eight per cent in 1968 and by between seven and eight per cent in 1969.

Anti-Inflation Move in Budget

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

OTTAWA (CP)—A new two-per-cent levy on taxable personal income shapes as a key weapon in a tough anti-inflationary bid outlined by Finance Minister Edgar Benson Tuesday night in his first budget speech.

The tax, effective next January 1, carries a maximum limit of $120 a year for any taxpayer.

Mr. Benson forecast a token surplus of $5,000,000 in the next fiscal year starting April 1, but Opposition members promptly attacked the budget as shocking, idiotic and vicious.

Checking Prices, Living Costs

The finance minister stressed the anti-inflationary aspects of his proposed measures.

"In the broad field of economic policy the most urgent need now is to check further the continuing increase in prices and living costs," he said.

"There appears to have been some easing of inflationary pressure in recent months. But there is little evidence that the damaging upward spiral of prices and costs has been effectively broken."

Mr. Benson said: "In spite of its timing I think it will be obvious to all, that this is no 'baby budget'. It is a new budget, by a new government, but it is not an easy budget. It is one which, I believe, will ensure that we have a sound economic and financial base from which to move forward through a new period of balanced expansion and social progress."

The minister again promised that the federal government will tighten its own belt by clamping down still harder on proposed expenditures and continuing the freeze on the size of its staff.

In addition to the two-per-cent personal tax increase in this anti-inflation campaign, he announced plans to have corporations speed payment of their taxes and to collect an estimated $85,000,000 in new revenues from the hitherto little-touched life insurance industry.

In a different vein, he sought to eliminate what he called a deeply felt grievance by exempting from taxation all amounts left to a spouse. He also plans to end taxation of gifts between husband and wife.

In all, the proposed tax changes will add $55,000,000 to government coffers in the current fiscal year ending March 31, but that will soar to $845,000,000 in the following 12 months, Mr. Benson predicted.

Defict to Total $675 Million

But, despite the higher revenues this year, the expected deficit will total $675,000,000 on spending of $10,780,000,000 against revenues of $10,105,000,000. This compares with the peacetime record deficit of $792,000,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Next year's anticipated small surplus would come from revenues of $11,675,000,000 and expenditures of $11,670,000,000.

News of the deficit forecast this year brought low whistles from opposition benches as the 45-year-old Kingston, Ont., chartered accountant — wearing a yellow rose in his lapel — read through his 11,800-word speech.

Sharpest opposition attacks, however, were reserved for his proposed tax increases.

Conservative Leader Robert L. Stanfield said outside the House they will put a heavy burden on the people, coming on top of the tax surcharge imposed last winter.

Max Saltsman, financial critic for the NDP, said Mr. Benson's bid for a balanced budget next year is almost certain to bring on a recession.

Mr. Benson made it clear in his budget speech and at a later news conference that the changes in estate and gift taxes and the move on life insurance companies are the beginnings of a major tax-reform program.

He told the news conference he hopes to have a thorough program of reform ready by next spring, but he does not anticipate having a rebuilt tax system operating before 1970.

The proposed two-per-cent personal tax increase, dubbed a social development tax, will bring in about $440,000,000 next year — more than half the anticipated additional revenues, Mr. Benson said.

Under the new rate, a married man with two children and earning $5,000 a year will pay $0

Peace Envoys Trade Charges

PARIS (AP) — American and North Vietnamese peace envoys traded charges today of aggression in Vietnam without providing any detectable sign that they might be nearing agreement on terms for halting the bombing of North Vietnam.

There had been speculation that Hanoi might reply in this 27th session of the conference to Washington overtures about ending the aerial attacks.

Ambassadors W. Averell Harriman and Xuan Thuy clashed in the 2½-hour meeting over who is entitled to speak for the South Vietnamese people.

Harriman reaffirmed American backing for the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu while Thuy once again demanded U.S. recognition of, and negotiations with, the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

There was no immediate information to indicate whether the two envoys used their 35-minute tea break for a private exchange on the status of current moves for a bombing halt.

A spokesman for the Hanoi delegation said after the meeting:

"There is nothing new today."

Harriman startled reporters on emerging from the old Majestic Hotel conference and

Sit-Down Removed From Sharp's Office

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons guards began dragging 27 demonstrators, among them two nuns, a minister and two priests, from External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's Parliament Hill office about three hours after they began a sit-in today.

The demonstrators crammed the office unexpectedly, refused a request by Mr. Sharp to go away, and said they planned to stay for three days as a spur for Canadian action at the United Nations to end the Nigerian civil war.

The protesters first were told that if they left the office to go to a washroom they could not return. Then reporters and photographers were ordered from the office by Commons guards, who began hauling the demonstrators off.

It took the guards only a few minutes to clear the minister's office of the protesters.

By PETER NEWMAN

Newman

OTTAWA — Given the choice of trying to damp down inflation or attempting to combat unemployment, the Trudeau government has opted for a fight against higher prices.

It's a risky enterprise because the budget tabled last night by Finance Minister E. J. Benson clearly documents the fact that Canada's finances are now out of control.

Not since the Second World War when unforeseen defence expenditures turned federal budgeting into a guesswork holding operation, have the national accounts been in such a mess.

Benson's gamble of trying to battle inflation instead of unemployment is based on figures produced by the Economic Council of Canada which show that when unemployment gets down to 3 per cent (the level which economists, though not the unemployed, term as "acceptable") prices rise 5 per cent to 6 per cent. This kind of inflation, according to Benson's theory, would eventually produce far more serious unemployment.

So he intends to run the Canadian economy with an unemployment level of about 5 per cent (near the current rate of 4.8 per cent) and hopes that price increases can be kept down at the 2 per cent to 3 per cent level.

The whole thrust of this budget is to somehow manage the country's economic prosperity without allowing the mild prosperity we have to spiral out of control.

Normally, this would call for a balanced budget, or even a small surplus.

But Ottawa is committed to so many expenditures already that the economy will have to absorb a $675 million deficit this year before the budget (hopefully) moves into a balanced position in 1969-70.

By announcing such a huge deficit in a budget intended to be anti-inflationary, Benson has turned Keynsian economics upside down.

He has returned budget making, at least temporarily, to the old-fashioned idea that governments tax to raise money. (According to the elegant theories of Lord Keynes budgets are meant to be instruments for modifying the boom-bust psychology.) But Benson needs the money for monetary as well as psychological reasons.

The untidy state of our national finances is all the more surprising because the economy is basically healthy.

On Tuesday, just before the budget was tabled, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin announced that Canada was well on the way to its first billion-dollar trade surplus.

But the extravagant spending of the Diefenbaker and Pearson governments, particularly the shared-cost programs with the provinces, have placed the federal treasury in temporary jeopardy. The 4½ per cent error in estimating this year's federal expenditures doesn't inspire much confidence in the finance department's ability to produce the promised surplus next year.

What this budget sets out to prove is that the short-term management of the economy is possible only if the shared-cost federal-provincial programs are brought under strict control.

This will require some adroit manoeuvring from a prime minister who claims to be a constitutional purist.

He cannot direct how the provinces should manage the Ottawa money spent in their jurisdictions.

But there's no doubt at all that the Trudeau government intends to be very tough in its dealings with the premiers. Instead of placing a straight 2 per cent surcharge on personal income taxes, Benson chose to impose a 2 per cent social development tax.

The only difference is that the provinces don't get a share of this new levy, as they would have if it had gone into ordinary revenues.

What the first Benson budget reveals about its author is that he's totally in accord with the Trudeau approach: fiscal responsibility to the point of dullness and government through a strictly applied series of priorities.

There is little likelihood of any major confrontation between this minister of finance and the prime minister.

They even seem to agree about economic nationalism, which was such a big issue when Walter Gordon and Lester Pearson used to spar around Ottawa: neither Benson nor Trudeau believe in it, and there's no mention of any nationalistic legislation anywhere in this budget.

Only slightly less discarded is the Carter Royal Commission on taxation. A few of its measures were included in last night's budget, but its overall philosophy has been jettisoned in favor of the finance department's own attitude to taxation reform.

This is a pity because a fully implemented Carter-style approach might have given us the most advanced taxing system in the world.

Benson's first budget was probably the best that could have been written in the circumstances.

But unless the circumstances are radically altered during the next year, Ottawa could be in really serious trouble.

As it is, the federal treasury now collects roughly $21 millions per working day from Canadian taxpayers, which is almost exactly what it cost to run the government for a whole year at the time of Confederation.

Insurance Stocks Tumble

Most sections of the Toronto stock market showed little reaction to the budget in trading today, although life insurance issues dipped sharply in response to the proposal to subject them to income tax.

The market closed higher.

Investors holding life insurance and oil portfolios showed "some concern" over the tax proposals, Montreal brokers reported.

The New York market was closed today in another of the one-day-a-week holidays.

AT TORONTO Imperial Life fell 8 to 167, Great West Life 5¼ to 71, Empire Life 1¾ to 20.4 and Life Investors 1½ to 8⅝. The latter is a fund which invests in insurance companies.

Among other declines, Versatile Manufacturing lost 2⅝ to 14, Scottish and York 1½ to 19⅞, Calgary Power 1¼ to 25 and Toronto-Dominion Bank ⅛ to 20.

In the list of heavy traders, Great Northern Capital was up 2⅞ to 13 and Algoma Central ⅛ to 11.

Leigh Instruments gained 1⅝ to 44 on word that the company has agreed to buy Epsylon Industries Ltd., which makes magnetic and flight data recorder systems in Britain.

Livingston rose ½ to 29. The controlling shareholders have agreed to sell 75 per cent of their interest to Allpak Products Ltd. of Toronto for $30 a share.

Allpak said it will extend an offer to other shareholders to buy 75 per cent of their stock at the same price.

AT MONTREAL all sectors posted small losses in brisk trading today.

Calgary Power dropped 1¼ to 25¼, Union Carbide 1¼ to 29⅝, Corby A 1 to 35 and St. Lawrence Cement A 1 to 25. Consumer Glass added 1¼ to 21½.

Southam climbed 1⅞ to 54 on announcement of plans to acquire the Montreal Gazette.

Hudson's Bay highlighted the mines sector at 72, up 1½ and Cominco ⅜ to 32⅝.

In oils, Imperial lost 1½ to 73⅝, Texaco ¼ to 33⅝, Home B ⅛ to 30⅝ and Shell ⅛ to 32¼.

AT LONDON the market advanced today but was unable to hold its gain and leading stocks drifted back.

Engineerings made the best showing, especially ship-building shares, helped by more substantial building orders.

Bowaters and Reeds were dull.

Gilts maintained a quietly firm undertone. Golds and oils eased.

Dollar stocks were marked down as a result of Wall Street easing Tuesday.

Among Canadians, Canadian Husky, Cominco, Noranda, Pacific Pete and Imperial Oil all lost ground.

AT VANCOUVER Omega Mines, a graduate of the over-the-counter market, was listed today and gained to $8.05.

Unlisted Tuesday it was in the $7.50-$7.75 range. On the listed board today the price fluctuated from a low of $7.35 to a high of $8.10 on a turnover of 85,100 shares.

Meanwhile, the market continued a brisk 1,800,000 share pace before noon.

Gains and losses were fairly evenly divided in the mining section but losses were noticeable in the industrials and oils.

Gaining were Ace, Bethex, Copper Ridge, Lornex and Western Mines. Losses went to Coast Silver, Dynasty, Interprovincial, Silver Arrow and Territorial Uranium.

Copper Ridge was the heaviest trader at 213,800 shares, gaining .09 to .97.

Block Bros lost .50 at $18 and E.D.P. was down .12 at $23.37. Western Heritage gained .50 to $5.75.

In the oils, Bata, Stampede and Sunlite all suffered losses.

Foreign Car Sales Hike Predicted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sales of foreign cars in Canada will continue to increase in 1969, the 27th annual convention of the Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations was told Tuesday.

Bill Dalglish of London, Ont., moderator of a panel discussion on imported cars, said there is a variety of reasons for foreign car popularity in Canada.

One of the main reasons, he said, is the rising cost of car operation. Another is psychological — the decline of the auto as a status symbol with the increase in popularity of color television, high-powered boats and summer homes.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was dull today through to the close on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

This offers in flax and rye resulted in fractional gains in a local and commission house trade. Oats and barley prices were firm to fractionally higher in oats, also a result of thin offers taken by domestic shippers.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged except for No. 1 and No. 2 Durum, up one cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures advanced three cents on the Board of Trade today under the strongest buying activity in the pit in many months.

Other grain and soybean futures were influenced to a degree by the advance of corn prices and closed on strong tones in every contract. Trade was active.

The strongest factor in the advance of corn prices was widespread precipitation over the U.S. corn belt which has delayed harvesting. As a result, hedge selling was very limited and buying active.

U.K. Revises Canadian Import Figures

LONDON (CP) — The British board of trade has conceded that the value of imports from Canada is rising, not falling.

In a preliminary statement on September's trade, issued a week ago the board said that while imports from the United States had increased during the last four months, "there was a marked fall in imports from Canada."

This puzzled Canadian authorities here who later learned from their own figures supplied in Ottawa that, in fact, Canadian exports to Britain showed a big jump in September over the same month a year ago.

When confronted with this, a board official said the preliminary monthly report is usually followed by a more detailed statement, which would not be due until Friday.

He agreed to dig into the pre-publication figures after arguing that while the Canadian exports may have shown a jump, some of the goods may not have entered Britain until October and these would be shown as October imports.

But the figures he finally produced showed that imports from Canada, adjusted for seasonal variations, rose to £42,000,000 (about $109,200,000) in September, up about 10 per cent over the same month last year. Imports for the first nine months of the year totalled £390,000,000 (about $1,014,000,000), a rise of about 15 per cent.

Japan Firm Will Assist Coal Project

TOKYO (Reuters) — Mitsui Coal Mining Co. of Japan says it is negotiating with the Kaiser Coal Co. Ltd. of Canada for the joint development of coking coal fields in Alberta. This will be the first Japanese project to develop overseas coal fields jointly with foreign interests.

The coal is known as "Banner brand," currently being imported to Japan at the rate of about 400,000 tons a year.

Mitsui declined to reveal details of its plan, but Tokyo trade journals reported that the Canadian firm plans to cut steep coal seams using Mitsui's hydraulic mining technique.

The reports said Mitsui hopes to start a trial development early next year to test the Japanese technique.

The Japanese firm also hopes to negotiate details with Kaiser to establish a joint venture in Canada, the reports said.

Mitsui hopes to have other Japanese companies join the project to help raise funds and facilitate sales of coking coal, the reports said.

Ottawa Plea To All Provinces—Hold Down Shared Costs

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Tuesday he will ask the provinces for help to hold down the hard-to-control costs of federal-provincial joint programs when he meets provincial treasurers and finance ministers early next month.

He said federal and provincial health ministers would also attend the meeting and discuss means of streamlining and making more efficient the health services available through the use of modern systems analysis and operational research.

Noting that spending by all governments had risen from $8.7 billion to $21.2 billion in the 10 years ffrom 1957 to 1967, Mr. Benson called control of public spending a central problem today.

Such shared-cost measures as aid to post-secondary education, hospital insurance and welfare payments under the Canada Assistance Plan, he said, had been among the hardest to control.

He defended medicare as a "matter of high priority" but said that it would cost the federal government $335 million in the coming fiscal year if all provinces joined the plan as he hoped they would.

As an example of the "phenomenal" increase in the cost of joint programs, Mr. Benson cited federal government aid to post-secondary education.

In the 1965-66 fiscal year, he said, it had cost Ottawa about $40 million, including Quebec's share which was taken in the form of a tax abatement.

"This year the equivalent fiscal transfer and cash payments to the provinces are estamated at about $500 million, more than 12 times what they were three years ago."

The cost of the hospital insurance program was increasing at a rate of more than 15 per cent a year, Mr. Benson said, but Canada Assistance Plan payments, although large, did not carry the same rapid built-in cost increases.

Mr. Benson said Ottawa was ready to discuss questions related to medicare at the coming meeting with the provinces.

But he made it clear that the government remains committed to the program.

He said that because medical fees had been substantially increased in recent years, "the new medicare programs should not run into cost increases as large as those of hospital insurance, for example."

Mr. Benson said only a fraction of the cost of medicare would represent a new demand on the economy.

"New government expenditures for medical care will be mainly replacing payments by individuals for the same purpose or payments made through existing private or public plans," he explained.

No Simple Solution To Fight Inflation

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Benson warned Tuesday a "great danger" exists that continued prosperity in 1969 could bring pressures that will set off a new round of price and cost increases. Firm policies to resist inflation are required.

•

"The most urgent need now is to check further the continuing increase in prices and living costs," said the minister in his budget speech.

There appeared to have been some easing of inflationary pressures in recent months, but there was little evidence that the damaging upward spiral of prices and costs had been effectively broken.

He cautioned everyone not to delude themselves into thinking the choice is between either policies of fiscal ease to counter unemployment or policies of fiscal restraint to fight inflation.

It was not that simple, he said.

"In our present circumstances, unchecked inflation would precipitate the kind of economic disruption in which unemployment would surely increase and we would end up with more of both evils," he said.

•

Achieving greater price stability required action on many fronts.

"Our fiscal policy must avoid excess demand on production and markets and keep producers constantly aware of the need to compete vigorously and to prevent cost increases. We need to exercise a wider responsibility to promote competition and minimize restraints on trade," Mr. Benson said.

He called on management to do all it can to improve efficiency and productivity.

"Workers and governments must co-operate to ensure better training and mobility of the labor force. Business and governments must anticipate bottlenecks and shortages and plan production and demands to minimize them in every way possible," he said.

•

Over the long term the provinces must plan and provide better education.

"Finally, we must, I feel, do all we can to persuade those who enjoy strong market power to exercise it with due restraint, taking the public interest fully into account. This will require the use of public education, special inquiries into inflationary situations and the mobilizing of public opinion against practices and actions which endanger the maintenance of price stability."

•

Mr. Benson said Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Ronald Basford will say more of plans and measures to combat inflationary cost increases when he takes part in the budget debate.

The finance minister emphasized that the rapid rise in the price level on the scale experienced in recent years has many "serious and damaging effects."

FIRST: It is most unfair to those — mainly the older people and the poor — who do not possess the bargaining power necessary to protect themselves against the increase in the cost of living.

•

SECOND: Rapid price increases undermine the whole basis of our economic structure and competitive market system. A flexible price system cannot operate properly to allocate resources for maximum production and income unless the price level as a whole is reasonably stable, he said.

THIRD: Serious inflation erodes gradually but also surely the competitive position of producers, both in other countries with whom Canada must trade and in our own markets at home.

•

FOURTH: It makes people and the institutions through whom they invest their money, increasingly reluctant to lend money except at high interest rates and in decreasing amounts. Yet the growth and development of our economy requires the large scale investment of savings in the form of mortgages and bonds fixed in terms of money.

These securities are the only means open to home-owners, school boards, municipalities and governments to borrow funds needed for housing and for all public purposes essential in a modern society. Unlike large corporations, none of these borrowers can sell equity shares, but their increasing role in the capital markets means that even a moderate degree of inflation poses a larger problem than ever before, said Mr. Benson.

•

In deciding on an over-all fiscal stragegy for 1968 and 1969 the government must take into account both the financial prospects and the broad economic situation. The government, after doing just that, has reached the conclusion that it must raise substantially more revenues in order to bring the budget into balance in 1969-70, he said.

'Just Plain Damn Dirty Tactics . . .'

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Benson has used "just plain damn dirty tactics" by calling the two-per-cent increase in income taxes a Social Development Tax, the executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council said today.

"It is most unfair and most inaccurate because the budget does not say there is any social welfare program or development program to go with such a tax," said Reuben Baetz.

He said the title is part of a campaign by the federal government to discredit social welfare programs and to condition the public against the financing of any further social welfare programs.

Insurance Firms Lose Special Tax Concessions

OTTAWA (CP)—Special tax concessions that permit the life insurance industry in Canada to pay far lower taxes than other businesses should be ended, Finance Minister Benson said Tuesday night.

He proposed in his budget speech that the life insurance industry be taxed in general the same as any other industry. However, he specified a number of suggested rules to take into account the companies' responsibilities to policyholders.

He also proposed that policyholders who make a profit by cashing in or selling a policy be taxed on this additional income. It would apply only to income accruing to the policy after today.

SHAREHOLDERS

Benson noted that the life insurance industry now is taxed only on amounts set aside for shareholders during the year.

This was only a small fraction of the business income of shareholder-owned companies, and it allowed mutual companies and fraternal organizations to escape.

The proposed changes—and the industry is to be consulted in drawing up some of the regulations—would increase total revenues in the next fiscal year by about $85,000,000, including $10,000,000 for the provinces.

In 1967, the companies paid less than $3,000,000 in taxes.

PREMIUMS MAY RISE

Benson admitted that applying income tax rules to the industry may cause a "moderate increase" in premium rates of new policies and a "moderate reduction" in policy dividends to be paid in future on many outstanding participating policies.

"On balance, however, the gain in revenue to us and to the provinces and the gain in equity in treating different channels of savings more fairly would outweigh the disadvantages."

The changes could even help the industry, he suggested, by removing the uncertainties about its tax situation which has been hanging over its head for years.

"It could lead to new combinations of basic insurance protection and savings in various forms, perhaps making more effective use of the provisions for registered retirement savings plans."

These proposals mark the first implementation of recommendations in the 1967 report of the Carter royal commission on taxation.

Benson said a change is needed in handling the case of a policyholder who cashes in or sells his policy before he dies because this return can represent real investment income.

POLICY PROCEEDS

The amount which would be added to his taxable income would be the proceeds from the policy less what it cost the holder.

For policies already in existence, the taxpayer would be able to use as his cost to date the cash surrender value of his policy on its next anniversary.

That would ensure that the tax would apply only to investment income earned on the policy after today, the finance minister said.

SPECIAL RULES

He proposed special rules to cover bringing the industry under corporation tax regulations because of problems in measuring its income.

One would deal with deductions to be allowed the companies to provide for their policy reserves.

These reserves are made up of amounts set aside from premiums received from policyholders to build up funds to pay benefits.

Details on how these reserves are to be computed are to be set out in regulations drawn up with the help of the industry.

WHEN YOU PAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective dates of budget tax changes announced Tuesday night:

Budget Described As a 'Bitter Pill'

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Real Caouette has likened the federal budget's effect on the little people to "the torture of boiling frogs in a pot."

Seen through New Democratic eyes it is "Benson's boomerang."

The Conservatives view it as savagery, a major misfortune and, at best, a bitter pill.

Burden

In short, Finance Minister Benson's maiden effort failed to touch the minds and hearts of the collective opposition.

Undoubtedly Mr. Caouette produced the most intriguing analogy.

He thought the complex document was devious in that the little people would see the two per cent "social development tax" as their major burden.

Not so, he contended. Instead the entire package of budget proposals aimed at other segments of the economy would eventually filter down to burden the shoulders of the ordinary chap.

"The government is proceeding as one who wants to kill a frog in boiling water," the Creditiste leader said.

"You don't just drop it in boiling water—that would be too cruel," he explained.

Far Cry

"Instead, you put the frog in fresh water in a pot and then bring it quietly to a boil."

That, in his view, is what the government is planning for the ordinary person.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield termed the budget a major misfortune.

"It is a very far cry from the assurances given in Parliament last winter and through the election campaign that the budget would be balanced," the Tory leader said.

He noted that even with increased taxation the deficit could not be kept below $800 million.

"And I haven't any confidence in next year's spending estimates in view of the lack of accuracy this year," Mr. Stanfield said.

He said the two per cent social development tax on basic income would place a substantial burden on all people.

But the fact that it has a ceiling of $120 will mean that people with low and moderate incomes will pay a larger proportion than the wealthy, Mr. Stanfield said.

Old Direction

"It is certainly very different from what we were led to expect from a government that was supposed to take off in a new direction—it's the same old direction," he said.

New Democrat financial spokesman Max Saltsman said the budget was a display of a "fine medieval mind."

"It is really a pre-Keynsian, chamber of commerce approach which pays no attention to modern economics by which budgets could be used as an instrument of growth," Mr. Saltsman said.

"There is no evidence that Mr. Benson will be successful in fighting inflation, but he is asking us to pay an enormous cost for this little experiment in balancing the budget," he added.

Departures

The two per cent increase was a far departure from any concept of the just society, he said.

Mr. Saltsman said this year's deficit is not large enough and an NDP government would run deficits both this year and next.

"This will be known as Benson's boomerang," he concluded.

Conservative financial critic Marcel Lambert traced the disaster of the budget back to former Finance Minister Walter Gordon's "60 days of decision" when the Liberals regained power in 1963.

'Savage'

"What we saw tonight was a savage budget and there must be a horrendous deficit when it has to be made up in a period of 18 months," he said.

He noted that the Liberals had been boasting of a balanced budget for some time because they had terrific computers to ensure the accuracy of their estimates.

"Apparently the computers were out to lunch, or the people who were manning those computers were out to lunch," Mr. Lambert said.

"After all no computer is any better than the brains and the hands setting up the program."

He concluded that the just society had flown out the window.

Duty Lower On Horses, Liver, Eggs

OTTAWA (CP) — Customs duties on horses and pate de foie gras are moving down.

So are tariffs on eggs, maple syrup, coffee, some fish and cooking gas under revised tariff schedules presented to the Commons Tuesday night as part of Finance Minister Benson's budget.

First item in the long list shows duty on a horse will decline in annual stages until it can enter free Jan. 1, 1972, compared with the present charge of $6.25.

Pate de foie gras—a goose-liver delicacy—or lark pates are to enter free immediately whereas duty now is 7½ per cent.

Protection against egg imports in various forms also is being progressively lowered in some situations—for example, after 1971 to seven cents a pound from 9.4 cents on whole and frozen eggs from most-favored-nation trading partners.

COFFEE DUTY

Maple sugar and syrup, subject now to 12-per-cent duty if shipped from a Commonwealth country or 14 per cent from a most-favored partner such as the United States, will enter free from either starting Jan. 1, 1972.

Duty on roasted or ground coffee, now two cents a pound from the Commonwealth and four cents from most-favored countries, becomes a straight two cents from both sources when the budget becomes law.

Some categories of mackerel, herring and salmon will enter free starting in 1972, after progressive tariff reductions from the present half-cent a pound.

Major Changes Involve Estate And Gift Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Immediate sweeping reforms in estate and gift taxes were announced in the budget speech Tuesday night by Finance Minister Benson.

The change of greatest importance exempts completely property passing outright to a widow or widower upon the death of the spouse. This occurs with one of every four estates.

The new provision replaces the existing exemption of $60,000 when there is a surviving widow or a surviving infirm widower with a dependent child.

The major exemption and a series of others mean that fewer people will pay the two taxes. Revenue to the federal and provincial governments will remain about the same because higher rates will apply to property and gifts still ruled taxable.

For example, the new top rate of gift tax will be 75 per cent instead of 28 per cent.

One other important exemption will apply in certain cases where property is transferred at death in the form of a trust.

This would include a trust under which only the spouse has the right to use the property or the income from it. Such property has been subject to tax on the death of the person leaving the trust.

However, trust property exempted on the death of the first spouse will be included in the estate of the surviving spouse when he or she dies.

The changes apply in respect to deaths after midnight Tuesday.

BROADER MEANING

Under the new gift tax, gifts from a person to his spouse will be exempt, the meaning of "gift" will be broadened, rates will be increased, and a cumulative concept for additional gifts will be applied.

The changes in the estate and gift taxes are, in effect, a rejection of the Carter royal commission's contention that gifts and property transfers should be included in income like other items.

New estate tax exemptions will also apply to children, as follows:

- $20,000 for a child of the deceased person, regardless of the child's age.
- An additional $1,000 a year for each healthy child for each year until the child reaches 26. The maximum under this provision is $25,000 and amounts are reduced if the child earns more than $5,000 for each of three years.
- An additional $1,000 a year, with a $30,000 limit, for an infirm, wholly dependent child until he reaches 71.

Existing exemptions are $15,000 for an orphaned child and $10,000 for each child when there is a surviving widow or infirm widower. There is no exemption for children when there is a surviving, healthy widower.

Because of the new exemptions, the general exemption applying where there is no surviving widow or infirm widower is reduced to $20,000 from $40,000.

The taxable value of an estate is affected immediately by any gifts made after tonight—one of the links that will bind estate and gift tax provisions more closely.

A transfer of property by a husband during his lifetime to a simple trust paying income to his wife will be exempt of gift tax.

However, the assets in the trust will be included in the wife's estate on her death. The same provisions apply to transfers from a wife to her husband.

The gift-tax rates of up to 75 per cent will be graduated to make gift taxes about the same as the estate taxes otherwise payable at death.

The changes repeal the present exemption of $4,000 or one-half of the amount of the donor's previous year's taxable income less the income tax thereon.

The old system was judged unfair because a single gift of, say $10,000 was subject to more tax than two gifts of $5,000 in successive years.

•

HOW IT AFFECTS YOU

OTTAWA (CP) — Following tables illustrate the effect on three classes of taxpayers of Finance Minister Benson's social development tax of two per cent on taxable income.

In each table, columns of figures show:

First, total income.

Second, present combined federal and provincial tax, including temporary surtax and old age security tax, in all provinces except Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The taxpayer is assumed to be taking the standard deduction of $100 for medical expenses and charitable donations.

Third, proposed surtax.

'SOAK THE RICH?' 'NOT YET,' HE SAYS

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson said Tuesday night after presenting his new budget to Parliament that he was prepared to "soak the rich" with his new 2 per cent social development tax.

But he added at a news conference that he put a $120 limit on what each taxpayer would pay because that has been the basic limit on similar taxes in the past.

Why did he not "soak the rich" by putting the limit at $360 or higher?

"That's okay by me," Mr. Benson said. "But $120 is the figure that has prevailed in similar taxes in the past. It started at $60 when the old-age security tax was first introduced, and that's now $240 a year."

Mr. Benson said there will be a major tax reform measure before Parliament next fall, to take effect in 1970.

"I wanted to do as much as I could now, without getting too far into the whole subject of tax reform."

Overlapping In Planning, Hellyer Says

TORONTO (CP) — New cities should be built on undeveloped land near established cities and designed around existing transportation systems, Transport Minister Hellyer said Tuesday.

He told the Canadian Conference on Housing that such projects would cut housing costs and remove red tape now delaying building developments.

"There are too many agencies and there is too much overlapping in town planning," he said.

Downtown redevelopment was not the answer to housing problems. It was impossible to jam all the people living in the suburbs into the business core every day.

Donald Deacon, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for York Centre, said a provincial subsidy to municipalities would encourage them to approve low-cost housing.

He said municipalities refuse to approve low-cost housing they can't afford to service.

Earlier, Roland Cote, executive director of the Quebec Federation of Housing Co-operatives, said that co-operatives free housing from the speculation market, "since the member of the co-operative has to pay only for what the service of his apartment costs."

He said mortgage loans should be made available in relation to the proportion of the family budget normally reserved for housing, the general economic picture and the cost of living increase rates.

Public Housing Project Praised

MONTREAL (CP) — After running into an almost steady stream of criticism from citizens opposed to urban renewal, a federal housing inquiry wound up its two-day tour of Montreal late Tuesday listening to people who said slum clearance had made their lives "worth living again."

The seven-man housing inquiry currently is touring urban centres in search of information on the state of housing across Canada.

Led by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, the study group began its investigation two months ago. The group already has visited Ottawa, Sudbury, Charlottetown, Toronto and goes to Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon and Thompson, Manitoba at the end of the month.

Monday the inquiry listened to 16 briefs, one-quarter of which were critical of current urban renewal techniques.

Representatives of four local citizens action groups said they would like to see more restoration of old buildings and less demolition. All were against expropriation of land and buildings.

There was more of the same Tuesday as the inquiry toured Montreal's former slum area—Little Burgundy in west-central Montreal.

A dozen citizens of the area complained about the expropriation of their homes for subsidized public housing.

But at the Jeanne Mance Habitations, Montreal's first public housing project, citizens were beaming with pride at the success of their housing scheme.

"Thank you, gentlemen, thank you," one elderly woman kept repeating to inquiry members who had asked whether conditions had improved following renewal.

Some who had lived in the area, east of downtown, said living conditions in the area prior to redevelopment were "inhuman."

"We we always sick," said one woman.

Jean-Rene Gagne said he would find it "impossible" to live elsewhere. The project "made life worth living again" for him and his family.

About 1,100 families live in the Jeanne Mance project, a group of five 12-storey buildings where rents average about $50 per month and are subject to increase as family income grows.

Fines Upheld

EDMONTON (CP) — Judge S. S. Lieberman has upheld a lower court's fine imposed on two Bonnyvale men for killing an elk calf and for hunting from an airplane. Magistrate E. Wade had fined Roy Velere, 38, and Bernard Oulet, 52, $250 apiece on each count April 11 at Lac La Biche.

FOUR DIE, 16 HURT IN BLAZES

CHICAGO (AP) — Four persons were killed and 16 were injured, four critically, when fire swept two floors of an apartment-hotel on Chicago's North Side Tuesday night.

Michael Mahoney, first deputy fire marshal, quoted Kathy Abercrombie, a resident of the hotel, as saying she fell asleep while smoking and awakened to find her second-floor room ablaze.

Longest School Bus Now Serves Duncan

DUNCAN — A bus capable of carrying 85 elementary school children has been delivered to Cowichan School District.

It will be the longest school bus in service in the province.

The 37-foot-long bus cost $17,000 and was built by the Bluebird Company of Brantford, Ontario.

Cowichan school board has a fleet of 11 buses which daily transport 2,500 students and over 175,000 miles a year.

Bicultural Commission Springs Leak

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Louis Gagnon, co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, said Tuesday leaks of parts of a forthcoming report by the commission were due to "disloyalty" on the part of "one or more employees of the commission."

Mr. Gagnon said in an interview an excerpt from the third part of the commission's report—due for publication next year—which appeared in La Presse Tuesday was authentic although this was "a draft which could be extensively modified."

The excerpt, dealing with "economical aspects of the two cultures," stated that French-Canadians were virtually excluded from the upper echelons of big business.

One of its main conclusions was that French-Canadian industry does not measure up to other industry in terms of productivity, markets and wages.

Mr. Gagnon said the newspaper had done its job by publishing the material but added that all writings, drafts and studies of the commission "are the property of the Canadian government and are protected by a copyright."

He added that commission employees who, at any stage of their work, come in contact with documents belonging to the commission should not divulge their contents as they owe their employer "a minimum of loyalty."

The leak would have been made by a person or persons employed by the commission for translation, editing or drafting of its report.

School Security

SEATTLE (AP) — A security communications system linking 30 schools has been installed to help school officials summon aid in emergencies. Charles O'Toole, chief security officer of the school district, said schools scattered over the city, chosen for a history of problems, "to some degree by the racial aspect," and other considerations were connected.

Seven Feared Drowned

CALCUTTA (Reuters)—Seven persons were feared drowned when a tidal wave shattered a 30-foot jetty while a crowd was watching a religious ceremony Tuesday night. The crowd was watching the immersion of a statue of the goddess Kali in the sacred Ganges River during festival ceremonies.

RCMP Nab Pair For Safe Job

NANAIMO—Nanaimo RCMP have charged two persons with the Sunday morning safe cracking at the Terminal Park Cunningham Drug Store.

Walter William Corkum, 48, and his wife Pauline Donna, 33, of Crofton, both pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering when they appeared in magistrate's court Tuesday.

Police said the safe crackers entered a laundromat next door to the drug store and using a sledge hammer smashed a hole in the wall dividing the two businesses.

They then knocked the safe's spindle off with the hammer and took $1,974 worth of stamps, about $200 worth of cigarettes and about $40 in silver.

The stamps were later recovered.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Gib Perry said that three of his constables worked without sleep for about 48 hours to solve the case.

Referring to the work done by Constables Pete Balatovic, Pete Sabo and Ron Nicholas, he said their determination to solve the crime demonstrated the spirit that built the force.

FINE FOLLOWS FATALITY

NANAIMO — Andrew Willott, 22, of Ladysmith, was fined $350 Tuesday and prohibited from driving for one year after being convicted in county court of dangerous driving.

A car driven by Willott left the road Feb. 22, killing passenger Kenneth Judson, 17.

Indecency Charged

DUNCAN — Local dentist and former Cowichan School Board chairman, Dr. Neil Dorning of Maple Bay Road, Duncan, has been charged with committing an act of gross indecency.

He was charged in court here Monday and released on bail of $5,000 and two other sureties of $5,000.

Dr. Dorning is due to appear in magistrate's court here Thursday.

He made no plea or declaration in his brief appearance Monday.

Critic Now Backing Recreation Law

NORTH COWICHAN — Most persistent critic of the porposed $850,000 recreation bylaw here, Frank Blanc, has changed his tune.

He has accepted the explanations of Mayor Donald Morton regarding a merging clause to be invoked in North Cowichan and put his support behind the bylaw.

Voting takes place Saturday in the south end of North Cowichan, the city of Duncan and the unorganized areas of Cowichan Bay, Cobble Hill and Glenora-Koksilah.

Mr. Blanc said Monday it was good to hear Mayor Morton's statement that the merging clause was to ensure that the people of the south end would share in the industrial assessment at Chemainus and Crofton.

TWO YEARS LATE?

Mr. Blanc said: "If Mayor Morton had made this statement two years ago he would have had a lot more support earlier for the recreation bylaw."

Mr. Blanc's earlier contention was that the merging bylaw would have the effect of making south end ratepayers contribute toward the cost of Fullers Lake Arena, Chemainus, which they voted aginst in composite bylaw form three years ago.

Ald. John Cannon of North Cowichan said today: "Now that Mr. Blanc understands that the merging clause will work to the advantage of the people in the south end of the community this should be accepted universally.

"There is evidence of growing public support for the bylaw and I'm confident of success."

If the bylaw is approved the $850,000 will provide a swimming pool of standard length for competition with a diving tank and training pool, and seating for 400 spectators.

AUDITORIUM

The community centre building, also to be built at Pioneer Park, will have 17,000 square feet of space comprising an auditorium suitable for theatrical productions, concerts and conventions.

There will be seating for 700 people and the main floor will be on a gentle slope toward the stage but can be lowered for dances, banquets and exhibitions.

The centre will also provide an elderly citizens' area, club and multiple use rooms, arts and crafts rooms, games room, kitchen, administrative offices, service and equipment rooms, and washroom facilities.

Students Meet Trustees

PORT ALBERNI — Members of the school board today met with a delegation of students from E. J. Dunn Junior High to discuss the lack of a gymnasium in the school.

The move followed a school boycott earlier this month by students to back the need for a gymnasium.

Board members said they appreciated the six-member delegation coming to them with the problem, and said they would try to explain the business of financing school facilities to the students.

In other board business, a reolution to allocate $15,000 for an area psychiatrist put forward by Mrs. Cecil McKinnon was tabled.

Most trustees feel there is a need for a psychiatrist, since present appointments with the only available psychiatrist—in Nanaimo—must often be postponed for months.

Debate on the issue came from some who feel it is not the responsibility of the board to provide such a service.

First Nurses Train at Duncan

DUNCAN — Thirteen student practical nurses started an eight-month in service training course at the Cowichan District Hospital Tuesday.

The girls will work through a four-month period for junior qualifications and another four months for senior accreditation, a hospital official said.

At the end of the course they will take examinations for the provincial practical nursing licence.

All the girls are from Nanaimo Vocational School and have taken a four-month theory course. They are the first student nurses from the school to work at the hospital.

Alberni Hunter Mauled by Bear

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Michael Markusich, 37, of Port Alberni, was taken to hospital in this Peace River community Tuesday after being mauled by a grizzly bear.

The Vancouver Island man suffered a broken jaw, an eye injury and cuts. His condition was not immediately known.

The victim was found by oil company workers on a lonely road about 15 miles off the Alaska Highway near Mile 135, north of here. He was hunting moose at the time of the attack.

Sidney Air Cadets Tops in Province

The Sidney Air Cadet Squadron was named tops in the province at the annual meeting of the B.C. Air Cadet committees in Kamloops last weekend.

The D. R. MacLaren trophy and the A. D. Bell-Irving trophy was awarded to No. 692 Squadron of Richmond for being the most proficient of the 37 squadrons in B.C.

Vincent Forbes of Vancouver was re-elected chairman of the B.C. Air Cadet Committee, and S. T. Mossop of Victoria was elected area vice-chairman.

Culture Smothered Indian Artist Says

By HUMPHRY DAVY

NANAIMO — A prominent native spokesman has charged that the Indian Affairs department wants Indians to forget their rich background.

George Clutesi, national famed Port Alberni author and artist, warned the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation here last weekend — the situation will foster interracial hate.

"In 1963, I went to Ottawa and applied to teach native culture to children at the Alberni residential school," he said.

"The senior officials were all smiles, patted me on the back, and agreed it would be a good thing."

But, he added, when he returned to Alberni, he was informed orally by a school teacher than his application had been turned down because it was against the department's policies to encourage native identity.

"They did not even have the courtesy to answer me by letter," he said. "I know why. They wanted nothing down in writing.

"It seems today if you are too Indian, too Norwegian, too English, they don't want you," he added. "No nations can survive without traditions and culture — Canada has none."

REAP HATE

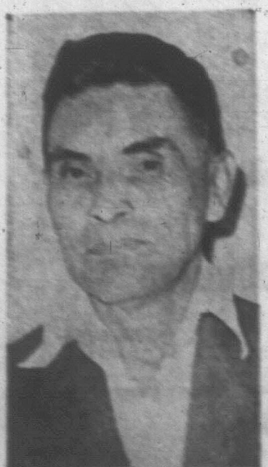
"If senior governments persist in their policies of attempting to assimilate us, they will reap nothing but hate — hate like the Negro hate for the whites in the United States," he warned.

He said the Negro problem in the United States was largely due to past policies of not permitting the blacks to identify themselves as a people.

Indians were strongly opposed to any melting pot policy as adopted by the United States.

"It has failed in the United States and is one of the causes of the nation's instability," he said.

Mr. Clutesi said he has taught Indian children their ancient culture—their history — their dances and songs.



GEORGE CLUTESI
. . . voices of past

"It changed their outlook on life," he said. "Instead of feeling as if they came from nowhere or belonged to an inferior race, they realized they were people as good as anyone else."

He said pride of race and in their ancient heritage was the major factor in helping them to adjust in a competitive society.

It was apparent at the meeting that Indians felt that they would be able to retain their identity, but whether this would be accomplished at a cost of hate relations with the white society would depend on the policies of senior governments.

The Indian population was growing, they pointed out, and so was interest in Indian languages. Indian university students were also taking over the cause of preserving the heritage of their fathers.

That native culture survived to this day was a miracle, they agreed, as past government policies almost crushed the spirit of the native people of Canada.

Lake Cowichan Setting Pace For Schools

LAKE COWICHAN — This school district is to be the first on Vancouver Island to have a fully open-area school.

South Shore primary is expected to open for enrolment after the Christmas holiday.

The classrooms will not have walls or partitions.

Secretary-treasurer of Lake Cowichan school board, Ron Kimak, says: "The classes won't interfere with each other.

"As a matter of fact, the more people the more muffled the sounds are."

Construction of the $190,000 school started in August and Mr. Kimak reports progress is on schedule.

Nine classes will be accommodated in the open area but two rooms, one for kindergarten and the other for slow pupils, will be closed off.

There will be an administration office, health room and library situated in the middle of the open area.

'Be Frank' About Race Origin

Indian, Eskimo foster children or those of mixed blood should be told as early as possible their racial origin, David Stevenson, a University of Victoria anthropologist, said Monday.

He was speaking at the first of a series of meetings sponsored by the Greater Victoria School Board, The Foster Parents' Association and the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

They are being held to promote a better understanding between Indian, Eskimo and white communities.

"He has to grow up in a real world. If you don't tell him the punks will as soon as he gets to Grade 2," he said.

Mr. Stevenson who has lived and worked among the Eskimos in the Northwest Territories, has adopted two of their children, one who is 11 and the other two years old. Both are girls.

TEA LEAVES

He adopted one girl four years ago when he visited an Eskimo couple and found the child eating tea leaves. There was nothing else for her to eat.

"Her mother had lost a five-year-old child to dogs the year before," he said. "And she had given two other children away because they were starving."

Dr. Stevenson said the longer foster parents delayed telling a child its racial origin, the more difficult it became for him to adjust himself to a white society.

In answer to a question, he said, he did not believe racial prejudice could ever be wiped out, but it could be made more easy to live with.

Arthur Mayse

Be warned that one of these days you may happen on a neat little box in which are snuggled four cubes faced variously in red, green, white and blue. The assembly looks for all the world like an educational toy designed for the pre-kindergarten crowd.

That's what I thought when one of the young men who come and go around our place tumbled a set on the kitchen table.

"Insanity blocks," he told us with a disarming smile. Then he explained the gimmick. "What you have to do is arrange them so that no two colors match."

With practised fingers he placed the blocks in a row. "See?" he said. "The tops are all different, but I've got two green together on one side, two blues on the other and . . . let's see . . . three reds underneath."

He tried again.

"I haven't solved it myself yet," he admitted. "But my kid brother has, and he taught his home room teacher how to do it." He attempted a new combination. It didn't work. "Just in time, too. The poor guy was practically out of his mind."

Against such contingencies, the manufacturer guarantees to send the solution along for a quarter. It could be a wise investment!

As matters turned out, however, I was spared this ignominous fate.

After a few unsuccessful tries, I gathered up the insanity blocks, closed my eyes, shook them like dice, dropped them on the table, and poked them into line. Darn if they didn't come out right.

But try it again? Not on your life!

Out along Bench Road in the Duncan area lives Mrs. George Gaisford, a lady who for years entertained a wish.

Some day, she hoped, luck would grant her a glimpse of a cougar in its wild state.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Gaisford got her wish, in duplicate. Fortune favored her with not one of the normally shy wood cats, but two, and at range a mite too close for comfort.

Mrs. Gaisford, who with her husband is a member of Cowichan Fish and Game Association, was busy with some early-morning baking when the family duck flock set up a loud quacking in a field about 50 yards from the house.

Flour on her hands, she glanced through a kitchen window.

For a moment she thought the tawny-coated creature trying to get out of her garden through the fence that separated it from the field was merely a large dog. She slipped out by a side door, and eased over for a closer look.

There was her cougar, and a big one. It was intent on the half-dozen sheep feeding in mid-field.

Movement out near the barn caught her eye. A second cougar was stealing in on the sheep from that quarter. The sheep were plainly unaware of the threat.

Unflustered, Mrs. Gaisford advanced toward the pussy in her garden. When she was 14 yards from it — they measured the distance later — it occurred to her that she really should have a weapon.

While she was still wondering where they'd put the spading fork, the near cougar turned its head. It gave her a look of utter surprise. She clapped her hands loudly, and it lunged through the closed gate, breaking the catch, bending the hinges. The other cat fled too, and Mrs. Gaisford was left with a wrecked gate, some scraped-off cougar fur, and a memory to cherish.

As occasional playgoers, we have learned to be philosophical, and if Victoria Theatre Guild's currently running "Oh Dad, Poor Dad . . ." fell somewhat short of perfection, at least it was good to see what work and ingenuity has accomplished in the elderly Langham Court Theatre.

Out of the reconstruction has emerged a smart little playhouse with a better seating plan, more comfortable seats, improved lighting, and as a gift from a friend, air-conditioning.

To see a truly good Guild play there will be sheer pleasure!

Child, Boy 17, Both 'Serious'

A five-year-old child and a 17-year-old student are in serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital following separate traffic accidents Tuesday.

Lyall Atkinson, 5, of 3452 Bethune, suffered concussion and stomach injuries when he was in collision with a car while riding his tricycle.

Police identified the driver of the car as Miquel Moniz, 30, of 3730 Saanich Rd.

The accident happened at 8:07 p.m. in the 3400 block Bethune. Police said the youngster came into the path of the vehicle from behind a parked car.

A 17-year-old S. J. Willis student run over by a car just before 1 p.m. suffered chest injuries and multiple abrasions. Police have not released names of anyone involved in the accident.

Police said the boy, and another youth, age 16 were riding on the hood of a car southbound on Glasgow near the school. The car was driven by a 16-year-old youth.

SLIPPED OFF

Witnesses said the injured youth slipped from the hood and rolled in front of the car. The car passed over him.

The driver of a car which crashed over a concrete bridge on Interurban Road Tuesday evening was thrown clear and received only cuts and two broken teeth.

Police said the vehicle, driven south on the Trans-Canada Highway by William Semple, 3985 Century, struck the bridge, flipped over the railing and rolled down the bank 50 feet to Colquitz Creek. The car was demolished.

Business Community Optimistic

The local business community is "very optimistic" about future economic growth in Greater Victoria.

This view is presented in a Victoria Canada Manpower report, Economic and Labor Market Survey, period to the end of Sept. 30 1968.

Senior management officials interviewed by Manpower believe a much greater emphasis should be placed on creation of a year-round tourist industry and a convention centre should form the hub of this development.

"It is felt this will result in an increase in the number of people employed in the service industries as well as generally affecting the growth of many other businesses in the area," the report said.

FREIGHT RATES

"An opinion has also been expressed that Victoria could well become a major university centre and that if research facilities were developed in connection with such a centre, this area would attract many leaders in the field of science and the business world.

"A number of senior executives believe that we must work to overcome the disadvantage of freight rates between Victoria and the mainland which is proving a detriment to industries which might wish to locate here."

AMERICAN ESCAPES

Michael Patterson, a 19-year-old American draft dodger sentenced Thursday to 10 days in jail for vagrancy, escaped from Wilkinson Road prison just after 9 a.m. today.

Saanich police, their tracking dog, and prison officials were scouring the area at press time.

Shipyard Worker Dies in Fall

A 56-year-old Yarrows Ltd. pipefitter died after a fall of 15 feet late Tuesday.

Hervey Neff, 615 Kildew, suffered head injuries when he fell from a ladder in a chain locker while working on the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Camsell. The ship was in the shipyard for an overhaul and refit.

Officials said the accident happened about 4:15 p.m. and there were no witnesses. The area where he was working was in the forward section of the ship. He was found by another employee who had been waiting for him to return.

Details of how the accident happened have not been released but it is believed Mr. Neff may have suffered a heart attack, causing the fall.

He was taken to hospital by Esquimalt police where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

INQUEST

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he had ordered an autopsy at St. Joseph's Hospital. He said it is probable an inquest will take place sometime this week.

Mr. Neff had been fitting pipes on the deckhead of the vessel during the day and had been working with about eight other men. He had been employed by Yarrows since 1953.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Gladys Neff, and a daughter, Linda, 26. Funeral arrangements have yet to be announced.

Planners Ask Black To Reconsider Route

Elk Lake Stretch 'A Crying Shame'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Capital Region Planning Board will ask Highways Minister Wesley Black to take a second look at road widening along Elk Lake.

Board directors voted Tuesday to ask Mr. Black for a hearing following its written request last month. The board asked that the Patricia Bay Highway be relocated on the proposed freeway route on the ridge to the east rather than be widened to four lanes along the lake.

The reply from the highways minister simply acknowledged the letter and said the opinion was noted for consideration.

Victoria Ald. Ian Stewart said it will be a "crying shame" to widen the highway through this area because the road almost touches the lakeshore.

"I would just as soon see the (present) narrow highway at 35 miles an hour," he said. "If they can't afford to go over the top, that is understandable."

WARNING

Saanich Ald. Edward Lum said the Stroyan report on recreational possibilities at Elk-Beaver Lake, which is owned by the regional district, warned of the effects of road widening.

The report, made public Monday night, said it would be possible to surrender narrow strips of land between the south boundary and Eagle Park on Elk Lake, where the highway runs close to the beach.

But in the section north of Eagle Park the highways department should be urged to obtain land for widening from private owners on the east side of the highway, said the report.

LOSS OF TREES

Widening on the west side "could result in the loss of many of the trees bordering the lakeshore which comes quite close to the highway for the full distance from Eagle Park to Cordova Bay Road."

During Tuesday's meeting, board chairman Gordon Lee, the mayor of Central Saanich, said he has been given to understand by a highways department official that the freeway — when it is built in the future — will take the ridge route to the east of the present highway.

This was the recommendation in a three-year-old transportation study in Greater Victoria.

"This was definitely stated to me when department officials met our council regarding widening in Central Saanich," he said.

NOTHING FURTHER

Ald. Lum said Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis took a delegation to the hiwhways minister regarding the widening of the section along Elk Lake.

A plan was shown with the freeway stopping at the Beaver Lake entrance to the regional park, in the south.

"Nothing was shown further," he said.

Ald. Stewart commended the Saanich action and said each board member should suggest to his local mayor similar action to bring pressure on the highways department.

INCUMBENTS WILL STAND FOR OFFICE

All four Saanich aldermen whose terms end this December will be candidates for office.

A poll of the four showed Ald. Harold Todd, Ald. Edward Lum and Ald. Leslie Passmore definitely in the running. Ald. Alan Newberry said he expects to be a candidate.

No non-council citizens have indicated yet whether they will be candidates. There is no mayoralty contest this year but there will be a plebiscite (expression of opinion) on more frequent garbage collection.

School Thaw Opens Door For Tenders

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn today said approval of three local construction tenders is evidence of the thaw in the province's restrictions on school building.

The three projects, totalling $500,000, have been among 14 awaiting departmental approval for the last 14 months, Mr. Bunn said.

Approval to tender is a first stage toward meeting the area's building requirements, he said. The approval comes shortly after the B.C. trustees' convention in Vancouver where a motion censuring the government's construction policy was passed.

Mr. Bunn said the trustees at the convention represent a broad-based and important segment of voters.

"I think the trustees made a very good case."

The three new projects are:

- At Quadra Elementary, the equivalent of eight rooms, including kindergarten and library, estimated at $181,000.
- At Hillcrest Elementary kindergartens, a special classroom and library, estimated at $294,000.
- At Victor School, four rooms and washrooms, estimated at $98,000.

Construction of the three is expected to start within a month and completion is expected by September 1. Mr. Bunn said the approvals come at a time when local contractors need work and "I think the building industry of Greater Victoria will tender with very sharp pencils."

Baird Wants Ward Politics For District

By JIM HUME

Ald. Robert Baird of Victoria today called for the introduction of ward politics at the regional district level.

His plea was termed a backward step by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Less than a month ago Ald. Baird told members of city council he was disappointed in the structure of the regional district board and suggested that board members attended meetings only to pick up the $25 per meeting paid directors.

This morning he expanded on his original statement calling for total amalgamation of the regional district under one super-municipal government.

"My sincere plea is to place all things regional in nature in the hands of the regional district, to be governed by all councils and area members, then in due time unite or amalgamate the regional district with a gradual phasing out of unnecessary administrative and elected officials, the latter by poll in established metro wards to assure equity in voting and administration."

ABANDONED

"Most progressive communities have already abandoned the ward system of government," Mayor Stephen said. "At best it only perpetuates the parochialism it is supposed to stamp out.

"I suppose that if amalgamation were ever tried in this area it might be a good idea to have a ward system of elections for a short period of time, say four or five years, as a temporary palliative to local viewpoints.

"But I am convinced that such a system should only be very temporary. The best governing body is made up of the best men available wherever they may live.

'RISE ABOVE'

"The very phrase 'ward-heeler' is I think indicative of the ward system. I would hope that in this region we could rise above that form of government."

In criticizing the present structure of the regional district board Ald. Baird said "only a minority group from each council speaks for the grass roots electorate.

"The minority group on the regional board take their direction from the Municipal Act. But what escapes them is the fact that there is a majority group who wish to participate not delegate."

Mayor Stephen said the statement was not worthy of comment.

REGIONAL PROJECT

Ald. Baird added that he would like to see the proposed Victoria convention centre become a regional project.

He claimed that as the building would serve the entire area it should be paid for and operated by the region rather than by the city.

"The principle of a convention centre as a tie-in to the Empress is parochial thinking," he said.

"In the future when this district surely must be united, the centre of activity will be far remote from the harbor area."

Mayor Stephen's reaction was that again the statement was unworthy of comment.

HUNTER SHOOTS SURVEYOR

RCMP are investigating the fatal shooting Tuesday afternoon of a 38-year-old Ganges surveyor.

Peter Arnell, father of three children, was shot and killed while surveying in the Spanish Hills subdivision on Galiano Island.

He was apparently mistaken by a youngster, who was hunting, for a deer. The youngster's name was not disclosed by RCMP because he is a juvenile.

No decision had been made by noon today whether an inquest will be held.

Arnell, who is survived by his wife, was a partner in the firm of Wolfe-Milner & Arnell, of Ganges, surveyors.

$6 Million Ship Job Delayed

By PAUL MUSGROVE

Ottawa has shelved plans to build a $6 million replacement for the Coast Guard ship Estevan, it was learned today.

Construction of the new ship was eagerly awaited by the West Coast shipbuilding industry, now almost dormant.

Federal sources said the main reason for postponing construction was the recent wage hike in the West Coast industry.

They suggested there would have been a 24 per cent increase in costs before the keel of the proposed ship was laid.

The earlier decision to restrict tenders to B.C. shipbuilders has not been changed.

Announcement of a replacement for Estevan, a lighthouse tender, was made six days before the June 25 federal election. The International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, biggest of the shipyard unions in Victoria, called the announcement "just another campaign promise."

New techniques and different programming are expected to permit the Coast Guard to continue present operations with Estevan.

Ask The Times

Q. Which deep-sea freighter lines currently serve the west coast of B.C. and the U.S.?
—B.R.

A. According to the 1968 Canadian Almanac the Pacific seaboard is currently being served by 14 steamship lines. They are: East Asiatic, Grancolombiana, Furness, Grace, Hamburg American, Italian, Nedlloyd and Hoegh, Klaveness, "K" (Kawasaki Kisen Kaisha Ltd.), Mitsui OSK, Nedlloyd, Oceanic Steamship Co., States Marine, Pacific Australia Direct.

Heavy-Handed Critics Aren't Lightfoot's Bag

By JOHN SLINGER

As folk-pop singer-songwriter Gordon Lightfoot sees his career, it's not "up with the sun, down with the pancake."

Which is a pretty frank statement from your average 29-year-old Orillia, Ont., kid about to play the first of two sold-out, sold-right-on-out-there-man, concerts in Victoria.

And, with similar candidness, Mr. Lightfoot will explain that the reason it's not an up-with-the-sun-down-with-the-pancake career is because of his bag.

Take your average bag. If you're Picasso, your bag is painting. If you're Pierre Trudeau, your bag is politics.

If you're a railway porter, your bag is bags.

For Gordon Lightfoot, "my bag is writing my own songs—that's my bag—writing 'em and singing 'em."

My own bag is reporting. Think of that when you wrap up the garbage tonight—it might be your trash, but it's my bag.

* * *

Mr. Lightfoot has taken a bit of a shellacking in the press on his way from little Ontario town where Stephen Leacock drew his Sunshine Sketches to the bright lights and triple-digit dollar bills of whatever it is that constitutes popular acclaim in Canada.

"That's the trouble with Canadians—they just don't believe it."

Arrogant is the word they usually lay on him.

One woman reporter recently called him, besides arrogant, irritating, exasperating, unco-operative and stubborn.

Also "warm, perceptive, amusing, attractive, disarming, and he's honest."

She did not say that he is stronger than dirt or able to leap tall buildings in a single bound.

The attempt in these interviews is to show that even though he wears a bandana around his neck, that even though he stands up there in front of people, for money, and sings songs, his own songs, that he's still like you and me. Down inside, anyway. Where it counts.

Mind, Harry Belafonte sings folk songs. And Joan Baez and Peter Paul and Mary used to. Ian and Sylvia sing his songs, songs like Early Morning Rain, For Lovin' Me, Ribbon of Darkness.

As his album Lightfoot, in Canada sold more than 100,000 copies.

Honestly, ladies and gentlemen, Gordon Lightfoot is not like you and me. For one thing, he keeps his cowboy hat on when he eats supper.

It will be difficult to forget those first words he spoke as I entered his hotel suite, sat down and prepared to interview him.

"Did you bring your pad?" he asked.

As he sat there in his black T-shirt, brown bellbottoms and cowboy boots stringing and tuning his guitar, I sat across from him, smoking, pad after pencil and taking notes with my cigarette.

"Am I a preacher?" he asked.

"A preacher I'm not," he answered, adding "that's my answer when they ask me do I have a message."

He said his business is entertaining. "It's been my business since I left high school when I was 17."

If people choose to get something more than entertainment out of a song like Black Day In July about the rioting riots in Detroit ("Motor City's burning . . .") then "that's all the better."

Gordon Lightfoot is doing what he wants to do, and "No, I don't analyze it—I just go full speed ahead."

His philosophy is to give his audience the straight stuff, both on his recordings and in his concerts.

"I believe in value given and value received.

"I do the very best I can to live up to what's happening.

"I never slough it off and I never do a bad show—if I can help it. Put that down—if I can help it."

U.K. Revises Canadian Import Figures

LONDON (CP) — The British board of trade has conceded that the value of imports from Canada is rising, not falling.

In a preliminary statement on September's trade, issued a week ago the board said that while imports from the United States had increased during the last four months, "there was a marked fall in imports from Canada."

This puzzled Canadian authorities here who later learned from their own figures supplied in Ottawa that, in fact, Canadian exports to Britain showed a big jump in September over the same month a year ago.

When confronted with this, a board official said the preliminary monthly report is usually followed by a more detailed statement, which would not be due until Friday.

He agreed to dig into the prepublication figures after arguing that while the Canadian exports may have shown a jump, some of the goods may not have entered Britain until October and these would be shown as October imports.

But the figures he finally produced showed that imports from Canada, adjusted for seasonal variations, rose to £42,000,000 (about $109,200,000) in September, up about 10 per cent over the same month last year. Imports for the first nine months of the year totalled £390,000,000 (about $1,014,000,000), a rise of about 15 per cent.

Loach Heads Exporters

MONTEBELLO Que. (CP) — G. O. Loach, vice-president of Union Carbide Canada Ltd. of Toronto, has been elected chairman of the Canadian Export Association at the organization's 21st annual meeting.

He succeeds Robinson Ord of Sydney, N.S., president of the Cape Breton Development Corp.

Col. G. A. E. Couture, president of St. Lawrence Manufacturing Co. Ltd. of Quebec City, and C. N. Simpson, president of Acres Ltd. of Toronto, were named vice-chairmen.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Insurance Stocks Tumble

Most sections of the Toronto stock market showed little reaction to the budget in trading today, although life insurance issues dipped sharply in response to the proposal to subject them to income tax.

The market closed higher.

Investors holding life insurance and oil portfolios showed "some concern" over the tax proposals, Montreal brokers reported.

The New York market was closed today in another of the one-day-a-week holidays.

AT TORONTO—In industrials, Great Northern Capital gained 2⅝ to 13¾, Leigh Instruments 2⅝ to 45, Noranda 1¼ to 58½ and Consolidated Textile 1⅞ to 15⅜. Great West Life dropped 5⅜ to 70¼ and Empire Life 2 to 20½.

Hudson's Bay Mining rose 1⅝ to 72½, Bethlehem Copper ½ to 14¼ and United Keno Hill 40 cents to $7.00. Leitch lost ⅜ to 11½ and Bankeno 30 cents to $4.85.

Numac fell 40 cents to $7.45 and Central-Del Rio ⅜ to 16½. Chieftain Development was up 75 cents to $9.75.

AT MONTREAL all sectors posted small losses in brisk trading today.

Calgary Power dropped 1¼ to 25¼, Union Carbide 1⅛ to 20⅜, Corby A 1 to 35 and St. Lawrence Cement A 1 to 25. Consumer Glass added 1¼ to 21½.

Southam climbed 1⅜ to 54 on announcement of plans to acquire the Montreal Gazette.

Hudson's Bay highlighted the mines sector at 72, up 1½ and Cominco ⅜ to 32⅝.

In oils, Imperial lost 1½ to 78½, Texaco ¼ to 33¼, Home B ⅛ to 30⅜ and Shell ⅛ to 32½.

AT LONDON the market advanced today but was unable to hold its gain and leading stocks drifted back.

Engineerings made the best showing, especially ship-building shares, helped by more substantial building orders.

Bowaters and Reeds were dull.

Gilts maintained a quietly firm undertone. Golds and oils eased.

Dollar stocks were marked down as a result of Wall Street easing Tuesday.

Among Canadians, Canadian Husky, Cominco, Noranda, Pacific Pete and Imperial Oil all lost ground.

AT VANCOUVER Omega Mines, a graduate of the over-the-counter market, was listed today and gained to $8.05.

Unlisted Tuesday it was in the $7.50-$7.75 range. On the listed board today the price fluctuated from a low of $7.35 to a high of $8.10 on a turnover of 85,100 shares.

Meanwhile, the market continued a brisk 1,800,000 share pace before noon.

Gains and losses were fairly evenly divided in the mining section but losses were noticeable in the industrials and oils.

Gaining were Ace, Bethex, Copper Ridge, Lornex and Western Mines. Losses went to Coast Silver, Dynasty, Interprovincial, Silver Arrow and Territorial Uranium.

Copper Ridge was the heaviest trader at 213,800 shares, gaining .09 to .97.

Block Bros lost .50 at $18 and E.D.P. was down .12 at $23.37. Western Heritage gained .50 to $5.75.

In the oils, Bata, Stampede and Sunlite all suffered losses.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was dull today through to the close on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

This offers in flax and rye resulted in fractional gains in a local and commission house trade. Oats and barley prices were firm to fractionally higher in oats, also a result of thin offers taken by domestic shippers.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged except for No. 1 and No. 2 Durum, up one cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures advanced three cents on the Board of Trade today under the strongest buying activity in the pit in many months.

Other grain and soybean futures were influenced to a degree by the advance of corn prices and closed on strong tones in every contract. Trade was active.

The strongest factor in the advance of corn prices was widespread precipitation over the U.S. corn belt which has delayed harvesting. As a result, hedge selling was very limited and buying active.

Japan Firm Will Assist Coal Project

TOKYO (Reuters) — Mitsui Coal Mining Co. of Japan says it is negotiating with the Kaiser Coal Co. Ltd. of Canada for the joint development of coking coal fields in Alberta. This will be the first Japanese project to develop overseas coal fields jointly with foreign interests.

The coal is known as "Barmer brand," currently being imported to Japan at the rate of about 400,000 tons a year.

Mitsui declined to reveal details of its plan, but Tokyo trade journals reported that the Canadian firm plans to cut steep coal seams using Mitsui's hydraulic mining technique.

The reports said Mitsui hopes to start a trial development early next year to test the Japanese technique.

The Japanese firm also hopes to negotiate details with Kaiser to establish a joint venture in Canada, the reports said.

Mitsui hopes to have other Japanese companies join the project to help raise funds and facilitate sales of coking coal, the reports said.

Foreign Car Sales Hike Predicted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sales of foreign cars in Canada will continue to increase in 1969, the 27th annual convention of the Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations was told Tuesday.

Bill Dalglish of London, Ont., moderator of a panel discussion on imported cars, said there is a variety of reasons for foreign car popularity in Canada.

One of the main reasons, he said, is the rising cost of car operation. Another is psychological — the decline of the auto as a status symbol with the increase in popularity of color television, high-powered boats and summer homes.
